

A training program to support your clinical practice

End of Life Law for Clinicians (ELLC) is a free training program for medical practitioners, nurses, allied and other health professionals, and health professional students about the law relating to end of life decision-making.

Improving your knowledge of end of life law can enhance your capacity to manage legal issues in end of life decision-making, leading to improved quality of care and practice.

ELLC's 13 free online training modules on end of life law explore:

- › The role of law in end of life care (Medical practitioners, Nurses, and Allied and other health professionals)
- › Capacity and consent to medical treatment
- › Withholding and withdrawing life-sustaining medical treatment
- › Advance Care Planning and Advance Care Directives
- › Substitute decision-making for medical treatment
- › Legal protection for providing pain and symptom relief
- › Children and end of life decision-making
- › Futile or non-beneficial treatment
- › Urgent treatment for adults
- › Managing conflict
- › Voluntary assisted dying
- › Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples and end of life law
- › Inclusive end of life decision-making with people from diverse populations

ELLC is complemented by End of Life Law in Australia, a website about end of life law in all Australian States and Territories.
