

ELLC End of Life Law for Clinicians

Free online training courses for medical practitioners

End of Life Law for Clinicians (ELLC) is a free online training program for medical practitioners caring for older people in aged care. It focuses on Australian law on end of life decision-making. Knowing end of life law can help medical practitioners to manage legal issues in practice, and deliver optimal end of life, palliative, primary and aged care.

Learn about:

- › The role of law in end of life care
- › Capacity and consent to medical treatment
- › Withholding and withdrawing life-sustaining medical treatment
- › Advance Care Planning and Advance Care Directives
- › Substitute decision-making for medical treatment
- › Legal protection for providing pain and symptom relief
- › Children and end of life decision-making
- › Futile or non-beneficial treatment
- › Urgent treatment for adults
- › Managing conflict
- › Voluntary assisted dying
- › Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples and end of life law
- › Inclusive end of life decision-making with people from diverse populations
- › Older people and end of life law

Meet safety and quality standards and gain CPD hours

ELLC's online training modules can support health services and organisations to meet quality and safety standards for end of life care. Find out more in our quality standards guides for primary care, aged care, and acute care.

CPD hours may be claimed from your professional organisation. Certificates of completion are available.

Register at ellc.edu.au

ELLC is funded by the Australian Government Department of Health, Disability and Ageing. It is administered by the Australian Centre for Health Law Research, Faculty of Business and Law, Queensland University of Technology (QUT), in partnership with the Faculty of Health, QUT. For more information contact endoflifelaw@qut.edu.au