Recordkeeping at QUT

Under the Public Records Act 2002, QUT is required to make and keep full and accurate records of its activities in accordance with recordkeeping standards and policies issued by the State Archivist.

The university's records management policy states that all staff and organisational areas have responsibilities for recordkeeping and specifies requirements for records capture and retention.

The university's strategic approach is to capture records in electronic formats, taking account of the manner in which most transactional business is now conducted.

For this purpose, the university uses an electronic recordkeeping and document management system, TRIM, which meets the system requirements of the relevant legislation and standards.

Substantial work has been undertaken by the university to implement TRIM in a comprehensive way, and to integrate it with corporate information systems supporting key business processes. This work continued during 2012.

The university's recordkeeping program is documented through its policies and procedures, a business classification scheme and a university sector-specific retention and disposal schedule.

Audits of recordkeeping compliance are conducted annually in key areas and are also considered as part of the audits and reviews conducted by the university's Assurance and Risk Management Services.

A Records Management Services unit within the Division of Administrative Services is responsible for implementing QUT's records management program and for supporting faculties and divisions in undertaking their records management activities.
