

Health Planning and Evaluation

Delivered over two block periods, each block consisting of two days

Unique opportunity to participate in this new course, developed and delivered by experts in health planning, policy and evaluation.

Ideal for individuals seeking to develop skills and knowledge in the planning of health services and the translation of health policy into practice.

Overview

Health planners and managers have a responsibility to lead the response of health services to the challenges of a rapidly changing world. Effective responses to these challenges require the ability to plan for future health service needs and to translate policy into practice.

The Health Planning and Evaluation course offers an introduction to the principles and practice of integrated health planning, and the evaluation of the effectiveness of health policies, planning and services.

This course will explore the spectrum of planning including:

- the planning context
- planning information
- planning in action
- planning evaluation.

Cost

$2100.09 for the workshop module only, or $2625.12 for participants who enrol in both the workshop and the assessment modules. ACHSM and AHHA members receive a 15 per cent discount.

www.achsm.org.au

www.ahha.asn.au

A 10 per cent early bird discount applies. Early bird registration closes Monday 28 May 2018.

Register now

Registrations are now being accepted for entry into this short course. Registration closes on Monday 16 July 2018.

Course structure

Block 1: Monday 30 – Tuesday 31 July 2018

Block 2: Monday 10 – Tuesday 11 September 2018

Delivered at QUT Kelvin Grove campus.

Recognition of participation. Option to undertake assessment for recognition of PUN017 in health postgraduate courses.

a university for the real world[®]

