This scholarship is a partnership initiative between the Queensland Ambulance Service (QAS) and Queensland University of Technology (QUT) to financially support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students in the first year of studying an undergraduate degree in business and/or a health discipline.

The scholarship further provides the opportunity to build the students professional capabilities and networks and assist with their transition into the workforce to achieve their desired career.

Application dates
Applications close on 5 March 2021.

What will students receive
A scholarship valued at $4,000 ($2,000 each semester) for the students first year of university to assist with their tuition and additional expenses (terms and conditions apply).

In addition, the QAS will provide access to mentoring and a 12-week full time paid internship during their second or third year of university.

Eligibility
Students must:
- be of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander descent
- be commencing a undergraduate degree in business and/or a health discipline at QUT in Semester 1, 2021
- be enrolled at QUT at the census date
- be studying full time (minimum of three units per semester)
- maintain a grade point average (GPA) of 4 or above.

How to apply
Students must:
- complete the online QAS Tertiary Scholarship Application Form
- provide proof of Aboriginality and/or Torres Strait Islander decent.

QAS career pathways
Upon the successful completion of the students degree, there will be potential for ongoing employment within the QAS as the principal provider of pre-hospital emergency medical care and ambulance transport services in Queensland (subject to the QAS recruitment process).
