QUEENSLAND UNIVERSITY OF TECHNOLOGY

QUT is a leading Australian university with a strong professional emphasis in its course profile and a rapidly developing research reputation. Established as a university in 1989, its predecessor institutions were among Queensland's earliest tertiary education providers. Today, with an annual budget of $580 million, QUT enrolls nearly 40,000 students across more than 300 degree programs.

QUT's courses are in high demand, and graduates enjoy excellent job and career outcomes. Academic programs from bachelor degree to PhD are offered in: built environment and engineering, business, creative industries, education, health, science and technology, and law. Some 22 per cent of total enrolments are at postgraduate level, and 14 per cent of our students come from overseas.

QUT is recognised nationally and internationally for the relevance of its teaching and research to industry, the professions and the broader community. The university's "real world" positioning is also underpinned by close relationships with employers and professional bodies, which provide students with a unique balance of theory and practical skills. QUT makes extensive and innovative use of technology to enhance student learning, and QUT academics led national awards for university teaching in 2008. QUT is also committed to improving educational outcomes for Indigenous Australians and supporting low-income students with scholarships and bursaries. The university has also developed a progressive recruitment and development strategy for early and mid-career academics.

Over the past decade, QUT has greatly expanded its research and international profile. It leads four national research centres (in dementia, construction innovation, engineering asset management and interactive design) and is a participant in several others. It has established Queensland's first Confucius Institute and hosts the Australian-Canadian Prostate Cancer Research Alliance, the ARC Centre of Excellence for Creative Industries and Innovation, the Syngenta Centre for Sugarcane Biofuel Development and the Microsoft eResearch Centre.

In 2008, QUT announced ambitious plans to establish a new Science and Technology Precinct, with the aim to create an internationally significant hub for the integration of science, technology, engineering and mathematics disciplines. QUT's commercialisation company, bluebox, develops and manages commercial relationships between QUT and industry.

Four major institutes draw together researchers from across the university to work together, and with external partners, to provide high-impact solutions to some of the major challenges of our time. The Institute of Health and Biomedical Innovation involves 700 researchers from different disciplines to bridge the gap between science and better health. Other research institutes are in the areas of information security, sustainability and creative industries.

Based in Brisbane, QUT has three campuses: at Gardens Point and Kelvin Grove in the inner city, and at Caboolture north of the city. At Kelvin Grove, a modern urban village development is integrating the campus with the community. QUT's Creative Industries Precinct, the Institute of Health and Biomedical Innovation, community teaching clinics, sporting facilities and student accommodation are all part of the Kelvin Grove Urban Village, along with residential and retail development.

QUT is a member of the Australian Technology Network of universities, along with RMIT, UTS, UniSA and Curtin.

COUNCIL

Composition, membership, powers and responsibilities of QUT Council are governed by the QUT Act 1998 (see MOPP Appendix 1). Procedures for regulating the University's committee system, including conduct of business by Council, are detailed in Council Procedure 1 — Committees (see MOPP Appendix 2).

QUT Council comprises senior members of the professions for which QUT prepares graduates; appointees from higher education, government, commerce and industry; elected staff, students and members of Alumni; and the University's chief executive officer. Council is responsible for the good governance of the University.

Council is empowered to establish committees and to delegate power to committees or officers of the University. While Council is ultimately responsible for the management and operation of QUT, it has delegated authority to the chief executive officer, the Vice-Chancellor, and to various senior administrators of QUT for much of the day-to-day management of the University (see MOPP Appendix 3). Council has also established a number of committees, some of which have been authorised to make decisions in respect of prescribed policy and procedural matters.

The University may award medals known as Queensland University of Technology medals to graduands of certain courses who have achieved an exceptionally high level of performance in their studies.

For the award of a medal, a graduand should have normally achieved a minimum grade point average of 6.5 across all units and thesis where such is required. Medals are awarded by the Registrar, on behalf of University Academic Board, on the recommendation of the relevant faculty academic board. The medal should be testimony that the recipient not only shows exceptional academic promise at the time of the award, but also exhibits an exceptional and consistent record of achievement throughout the whole of the degree.

Eligibility to be considered for the award of a University Medal is limited to:

- graduands of 'end-on' honours degrees where performance in the related bachelor degree is also taken into account
- graduands of degrees with honours, including components of double degree programs where awards with honours are made
- graduands of bachelor degrees of at least three years normal duration where no honours award is available, including relevant components of double degree programs where no honours award is available.

In completing one of the above degrees, graduands must have been enrolled at QUT for at least two years of full-time study or equivalent. The two years of study at QUT must be directly relevant to the course for which the medal is awarded.

For graduands of double degrees, University medals are awarded as appropriate for each of the component degrees.

As the University medal is awarded only for exceptional achievement, University Academic Board has indicated as a guide to faculties that the proportion of graduands who may receive medals in any year should normally be not more than one per 200 bachelor-level graduands (or part thereof) per faculty.

The award is a silver medallion, suitably embossed and inscribed, together with a certificate attesting the award. The medallion is 5.5 centimetres square with rounded corners. The QUT logo is embossed one side and the reverse carries an inscription citing the year of the award and the name of the awardee. Further details may be placed on the certificate.

QUT graduates become members of the University's Alumni. Membership of QUT Alumni is free.

QUT Alumni's mission is to enrich the lives of alumni and engage alumni in QUT's future for mutual benefit. This is achieved through friendly communication and cooperation among the University's graduates, students, faculty staff and close associates.

The Alumni Office at QUT provides services and programs for graduates to enhance professional development, promote lifelong learning, and create opportunities for keeping in touch with other graduates and continuing involvement with the University. As a current student of QUT, you can benefit from the news, programs and services organised by QUT Alumni for the University community.

The Alumni website (www.alumni.qut.edu.au) provides useful information about QUT Alumni and its sponsored activities. Visit the site to find out about:

- how to participate in the Mentor Scheme, which is an opportunity for current students to link with graduates for encouragement and support and to get a practical start to understanding the workplace
- the QUT Alumni Student Leadership Awards that recognise students of QUT for their contributions to the University and the wider community and discover how you could become the QUT Alumni Student Leader of the Year
- QUT Links magazine online. QUT publishes this magazine for its Alumni, close associates and interested members of the University community including business and industry professionals. The magazine profiles successful graduates and provides information on what's happening in the lives of QUT Alumni members as well as what is happening at QUT
- the latest news on Alumni events and other activities for graduates by checking out the events listing at QUT Events
- the Outstanding Alumni Awards which recognise graduates who have performed exceptionally in their chosen career and who have made outstanding contributions to the community
- the existing Alumni Chapters and Groups at QUT
- the benefits and services that the University has to offer its Alumni
- the Alumni Annual Appeal that supports University projects, in particular scholarships for disadvantaged students.

Giving to QUT

QUT is proud of the strong support it receives from the community, including the alumni.

Alumni, individuals, corporations, foundations and government give generously, both financially and through other in kind means, to the University's teaching, research and community outreach activities.

Alumni may wish to donate their time to QUT. Examples of donating time are: being a guest speaker at an event; participating in the Governance of QUT; or sharing experience and expertise as a career mentor to QUT students.

Financial donations from alumni ensures support for students through scholarships and prizes, an improved learning environment and world-leading research that solves real world problems. An example of donating to QUT is by supporting the Learning Potential Fund. The fund provides scholarships and bursaries to support QUT's disadvantaged students.

Donations to QUT are fully tax deductible. Bequests for general or specific purposes may also be made to the University.

For further information visit the Giving to QUT website (www.giving.qut.edu.au) or contact QUT Development on 07 3138 1838.

QUT Gardens Cultural Precinct, located at the University's Gardens Point campus, is situated on one of Queensland's most central and historically important sites. The Precinct encompasses:

- Gardens Theatre, with a 400 seat state-of-the-art theatre;
- QUT Art Museum, one of Australia's most sophisticated contemporary art museums; and
- Old Government House, the historic building that was the official residence of the Governors of Queensland until 1909.

Gardens Cultural Precinct is at the centre of a circuit of culture and recreation incorporating the South Bank, the city, and Gardens Point itself with its Botanic Gardens, Riverstage, historic campus buildings and Parliament House.

In addition to the core activity of exhibitions and performances, Gardens Cultural Precinct offers unique arts-based educational programs that provide practical ways for Queensland University of Technology to extend the benefits of its knowledge, research and services to the wider Queensland community. These programs have a practical emphasis and include hands-on sessions with curators, artists talks, activity booklets, guided tours and demonstrations.

Venue Hire

QUT Gardens Cultural Precinct is home to four unique and multipurpose venues which are available for hire.

Gardens Theatre complex includes the Auditorium as well as the Foyer which boasts floor to ceiling windows. QUT Art Museum is ideal for conference cocktail functions and the historical Old Government House provides a perfect background for events in a timeless elegant setting. Please note, Old Government House is currently closed for an exciting restoration but will re-open in July 2009 as a premium venue for hire.

QUT Art Museum

QUT Art Museum is a modern art gallery that has a reputation for displaying the finest works from the QUT Art Collection and presenting thought-provoking exhibitions of contemporary art.

Open to the general public, QUT Art Museum is an important cultural facility for the city of Brisbane. The Museum plays a vital role in the educational and intellectual life of the University. It houses a significant art collection that has become a valuable cultural resource for the students and staff of the University, and for the wider community.

The collection is one of the largest in Queensland and contains approximately 2500 artworks of great quality and diversity, mostly by Australian artists. It includes fine early paintings, ceramics and prints, important examples of indigenous art and challenging contemporary works.

As part of its exciting and dynamic program the Art Museum offers an annual program of exhibitions drawn from the collection, national touring exhibitions from other galleries, and works from several creative academic disciplines within the University.

The Museum's educational services are designed to complement and enhance the exhibitions program for the benefit and enjoyment of the public. For free public program information visit www.artmuseum.qut.com

Old Government House

Old Government House was the official residence of the Governors of Queensland from 1862-1909. Since that time the house has been occupied by the University of Queensland, the National Trust of Queensland, and Queensland University of Technology's predecessor institutions, Central Technical College and Queensland Institute of Technology.

Old Government House is owned by the Queensland Government. In October 2002, a Heads of Agreement was signed between the Queensland Government, National Trust of Queensland and Queensland University of Technology for the future conservation, management and use of Old Government House.

QUT has accepted responsibility for the continued enhancement of Old Government House and the accompanying grounds in accordance with the Government's Conservation Plan.

To celebrate its history and advance knowledge of Queensland's architectural, political and educational heritage,

QUT has previously opened the doors of Old Government House to provide a welcoming environment for all Queenslanders and visitors to enjoy and learn about the building and its site. Guided tours are available on request.

As of mid 2007, Old Government House closed for a major restoration and will re-open as a new and exciting venue in July 2009.

QUT STUDENT GUILD

The QUT Student Guild fosters the welfare of all QUT students and protects their rights. It advocates for students who experience difficulties during their time at QUT and represents all students on various University committees. Being a member of the Student Guild is like having an insurance policy; it is there to help you when things go wrong. Many QUT students have graduated only because the Guild has advocated for them when they have experienced academic difficulties.

The QUT Student Guild is owned and operated by and for students. The Student Guild is governed by Guild Council which consists of the Executive (President, General Secretary, Academic Rights Director, International Director, Womens Director, Welfare Director, Recreation Director, Indigenous Director and Queer Services Directors, campus representatives, and specialist representatives (for part-time and external students, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students, and postgraduate students).

Members of the Guild Council are elected at the annual general election and all students are eligible to stand for positions at the election. Students are also able to nominate and vote for campus coordinator positions to help organise activities and services on campuses.

The Student Guild sends representatives to express students' views to many University committees, including the University Academic Board.

The QUT Student Guild is an organisation which offers support, advocacy and representation to all students at QUT on issues ranging from academic appeals to lobbying the state and federal governments on higher education issues. Quite often, access and equity to education can be affected by government policy. The Student Guild will often call on its members to attend rallies to stop regressive changes to the education system. The Student Guild fully supports a free public education system where everyone has equal access.

The QUT Student Guild also operates several commercial services across all campuses. These consist of the Guild Fitness Centres, Guild Bars, Guild Aquatic and Squash Centre, Guild News and Post Office, the Guild Child Care Centres and Creche, Academic Gown Hire and the Guild Second Hand Textbook Shop.

The Guild has a presence on the Web which can be accessed at www.guildonline.net. All of the Guild's services are listed there along with an events page where students can find out what is happening on their campus as well as up-to-date accommodation and part-time employment listings.

INTRODUCTION

Please refer to the online Manual of Policies and Procedures for the latest version of the Student Rules (www.mopp.qut.edu.au/Appendix/append01cst.jsp).

Detailed information about procedural aspects of these rules can be obtained by accessing relevant topics at Student Services web site (www.studentservices.qut.edu.au) or by contacting the Student Services Department.

For information on the University's admission policy and procedures, please refer to the various booklets available from QUT's Admissions Office.

Students are warned that penalties (including fines, sanctions, withholding results, exclusion or expulsion) may be imposed if these or any other QUT rule or policy is contravened, or if obligations are not met (including failing to pay prescribed fees, late fees or fines, or for failing to return library/faculty materials or equipment).

These Student Rules (www.handbook.qut.edu.au/rules/rules.jsp) are made pursuant to:

- QUT Statute No. 1 (Course of Study) 1999
- QUT Statute No. 2 (Student Discipline) 1999
- QUT Statute No. 3 (Fees) 1999.

They should also be read in conjunction with:

- Schedule 1 to the QUT Act 1998, Conduct on University Land. This Schedule authorises certain University officers to direct disorderly persons or those creating disturbances to leave the University. A person failing to comply with such a direction may be fined
- Information Facilities Rules (pursuant to QUT Statutes 2 and 3, and to the relevant staff conditions and awards).

THE RULES

PART 1 - PRELIMINARY

Division 1 - Interpretation

1. Definitions

In these rules -

'assessment' means work (for example, an examination, assignment, practical, performance) which a student is required to complete for any one or more of the following purposes -

- (a) the fulfilment of an educational purpose (for example, to motivate learning, to provide feedback);
- (b) to provide a basis for a record of achievement or certification of competency;
- (c) to permit grading.

'award course' means a program of study leading to the award of a degree, diploma or certificate accredited by QUT.

'cancellation of enrolment' means that a student has discontinued an award course or a program of non-award studies.

'course coordinator' includes a staff member performing the functions of course coordinator specified by the director, QUT international college.

'course requirements' means the specific requirements for completing an award course approved by university academic board and includes the following -

- (a) the course structure;
- (b) any conditions for enrolment in or for completion of particular units required for the course;
- (c) any conditions for academic progression through the course;
- (d) any requirements for attendance type or mode of study.

'dean' means the executive dean of the faculty having responsibility for a unit or an award course and includes the director, QUT international college, in the case of a program of non-award studies for which the director is responsible.

'faculty academic board' means the body established by university academic board to manage academic policy and practices within the faculty or QUT Carseldine.

'international student' has the same meaning as "overseas student" in the Higher Education Support Act 2003 (Cwth).

'non-award studies' means a unit or group of units which a student undertakes at the university other than as part of an award course of QUT.

'QUT' means the Queensland University of Technology.

'registrar' means the university's chief administrative officer.

'unit coordinator' includes a staff member performing the functions of unit coordinator specified by the director, QUT international college.

'university academic board' means the body established by council to provide leadership on academic policy and practices of QUT.

1A. Academic calendar and teaching periods

(1) In these rules, 'teaching period' means a designated period of weeks in which the program of study and instruction for a unit or an award course is undertaken.

(2) The vice-chancellor approves the academic calendar for each year.

(3) The registrar -

- (a) designates the teaching periods in which programs of study or instruction may be offered; and
- (b) sets the dates for teaching periods within the academic calendar; and
- (c) designates unit addition and withdrawal periods in Schedule 1; and
- (d) sets the dates for unit addition and withdrawal in accordance with Schedule 1.

2. Attendance type and mode

(1) A student's attendance type is normally designated as full-time if the enrolment program for the teaching period is -

- (a) in the case of a student enrolled in an award course, at least 75 per cent of the number of credit points for a standard enrolment program load for full-time enrolment in that course in a teaching period; or
- (b) in the case of a student undertaking non-award studies, at least 75 per cent of the number of credit points for a standard enrolment program load designated by the registrar for that purpose.

(2) If a student's enrolment program load is less than the amount specified in rule 2(1), the student's attendance type is normally designated as part-time.

(3) Addition or withdrawal of units in accordance with division 2 of part 3 of these rules may be deemed by the registrar to change a student's attendance type.

(4) For the purposes of these rules and for course requirements, a student's attendance mode is designated as -

- (a) internal, where instruction or supervision in all units in which the student is enrolled in a teaching period is delivered by attendance at a place designated by the registrar as a campus of the university; or
- (b) external, where instruction or supervision in all units in which the student is enrolled in a teaching period is delivered other than by attendance at a campus of the university (for example, by posting instructional materials to the student); or
- (c) multi-modal, where instruction in some, but not all units, is in internal mode.

Division 2 – Students' responsibilities under these rules

3. Student responsibility for compliance with these rules and other requirements

(1) It is the student's responsibility to do all acts associated with admission, enrolment and academic progression in compliance with these rules, including, but not limited to -

- (a) providing information to the university under rule 7(2) , including statistical information and a mailing address; and
- (b) re-enrolling at the university each year; and
- (c) submitting an appropriate enrolment program and rectifying any known discrepancies with the enrolment program.

(2) In the case of international students, the student must also comply with any requirements for enrolment or study at the university specified in the Education Services for Overseas Students Act 2000 (Cwth) , including, but not limited to -

- (a) any requirements relating to attendance type or mode; and
- (b) any conditions for enrolment programs and progress through an award course; and
- (c) any conditions relating to leave of absence.

PART 2 - ADMISSION

4. Application for admission

(1) A person must apply for admission to the university before first enrolling in an award course or non-award studies.

(2) Except where specified by the registrar, a person must apply for admission before each teaching period in which they propose to enrol in non-award studies.

(3) A person who seeks to re-enrol in an award course must apply for re-admission following -

- (a) cancellation of enrolment in an award course or program of non-award studies; or
- (b) an unapproved period of absence; or
- (c) a period of exclusion from an award course imposed under part 6 of these rules.

(4) The registrar must prescribe the dates for and the manner of applying for admission to the university.

5. Criteria for admission

1) University academic board may specify general requirements to be met by a person applying for admission to the university.

(2) The faculty academic board having responsibility for an award course must specify minimum course entry requirements and may specify different requirements for different major areas of study within an award course.

(3) The registrar determines the maximum number of persons to be offered admission to the university.

6. Offer of admission

(1) The registrar makes offers of admission.

(2) An offer of admission may be conditional upon the person providing documents or fulfilling other requirements specified in the offer.

(3) The registrar may withdraw an offer of admission and reject enrolment where -

- (a) the person fails to provide documents or to fulfil other requirements specified in the offer of admission; or
- (b) the offer of admission has been made as a result of the provision of incomplete or inaccurate information by the person or a certifying authority; or
- (c) the person fails to submit an enrolment program in accordance with the offer of admission by the specified date.

PART 3 - ENROLMENT

Division 1 - General requirements for enrolment

7. Enrolment procedures

(1) The registrar -

- (a) must prescribe closing dates for submission of an enrolment program for each teaching period; and
- (b) may prescribe different closing dates for different categories of students.

(2) The registrar must prescribe the manner of submitting the enrolment program, and the information to be included with the enrolment program.

(3) For each teaching period, the registrar must -

- (a) publish the closing dates for addition or withdrawal of units in accordance with schedule 1; and
- (b) specify the manner of submitting changes to the enrolment program.

8. Valid enrolment

(1) Subject to rule 8(2), enrolment in any teaching period means that the student has submitted an enrolment program for study, instruction or research at the university in that teaching period.

(2) A student is validly enrolled upon -

- (a) submission of an enrolment program for the teaching period by the specified date or such later time as permitted by the registrar; and
- (b) acceptance of the enrolment program by the registrar <sup>1</sup> ; and
- (c) payment of fees and charges required under these rules by the specified date or such later time as permitted by the registrar; and
- (d) fulfilment of any other requirements specified in these rules.

(3) The registrar may reject a student's enrolment where the student has not met all of the requirements of rule 8(2).

Division 2 - Enrolment programs

9. Requirements for enrolment programs

(1) A student's enrolment program must comply with the general requirements specified in this division.

(2) In the case of a student enrolled in an award course, the student's enrolment program must also comply with the course requirements.

10. Addition of a unit to enrolment program

Subject to the requirements of this division, a student may add a unit to their enrolment program in a teaching period if -

- (a) the unit is added by the addition date published in accordance with schedule 1 ; or
- (b) where the student proposes to add the unit after the addition date published in accordance with schedule 1 -
  - (i) the student pays the administrative charge specified in schedule 2 ; and
  - (ii) the unit coordinator agrees to the addition of the unit; and
  - (iii) the registrar is satisfied that the student has demonstrated that exceptional circumstances for addition of the unit exist.

11. Withdrawal from a unit

(1) Subject to the requirements of this division, a student may withdraw from enrolment in a unit -

- (a) by the withdrawal date published by the registrar in accordance with schedule 1 - without academic penalty; or
- (b) after the withdrawal date published by the registrar in accordance with schedule 1 - with academic penalty.

(2) Despite rule 11(1)(b), the registrar may permit withdrawal without academic penalty if, following advice from the dean, the registrar is satisfied that the student has demonstrated that exceptional circumstances for withdrawal from the unit exist.

(3) In this section, 'academic penalty' means that the unit in question is awarded a failing grade.

12. Relationship between units of study

(1) Course requirements may specify any of the following conditions for enrolment in a specified unit -

- (a) a student must have achieved a passing grade in a pre-requisite unit before enrolment in the specified unit;
- (b) a student may enrol in the specified unit only if -
  - (i) the student also enrolls in a corequisite unit at the same time; or
  - (ii) the student has previously achieved a passing grade in the corequisite unit;
- (c) a student must not enrol in the specified unit if the student has achieved a passing grade in an incompatible unit.

(2) A unit coordinator may permit a student to enrol in a specified unit without having satisfied the condition listed in rules 12(1)(a) or 12(1)(b) if the unit coordinator is satisfied that the student has demonstrated sufficient knowledge to undertake the unit.

(3) In this section, an 'incompatible unit' means a unit in which the subject matter or the body of learning is substantially similar to that included in the specified unit.

13. Maximum and minimum enrolment program load

Course requirements may specify either or both of the following -

- (a) the maximum number of credit points for full-time enrolment;
- (b) the minimum number of credit points for part-time enrolment.

14. Time limits for completion of an award course

University academic board must specify time limits for completion of an award course, and may impose different time limits for different categories of courses.

15. Acceptance of enrolment program

The registrar may not accept a student's enrolment program in any of the following circumstances -

- (a) the student has not enrolled in accordance with their offer of admission, including, where specified, major area of study, attendance type, attendance mode and location of study;
- (b) if the student is enrolled in an award course, the student has not submitted an enrolment program which is consistent with course requirements;
- (c) except where permitted by the course or unit coordinator, as the case may be, the student has not complied with the requirements of division 2 of part 3 of these rules;
- (d) if the student is enrolled in an award course, the student has not met the requirements of part 6 of these rules;
- (e) the student is subject to a penalty imposed under rule 29 or Statute No 2 (Student Discipline) 1999 which prohibits their enrolment in the current teaching period;
- (f) the student is in breach of any other statute or rule of the university which specifies rejection or suspension of enrolment as a penalty.

16. Amendment of enrolment program

The registrar may amend an enrolment program, after consultation with the course coordinator, if any of the following conditions exist -

- (a) the student has not complied with the requirements of rule 13;
- (b) the student has not complied with other course requirements;
- (c) the student cannot attend classes or meet other unit requirements due to timetable incompatibility;
- (d) the student has not complied with any conditions of probationary enrolment imposed under part 6 of these rules.

Division 3 - Credit

17. Credit for previous studies

(1) University academic board may specify the amount and type of credit for previous studies which may be granted in award courses, and may specify different amounts of credit for different categories of award courses or students.

(2) The registrar must specify the procedures to be followed, and the documentation to be supplied, by students applying for credit.

(3) The course coordinator must determine the amount and type of credit to be granted in accordance with university academic board determinations.

Division 4 - Discontinuation or interruption of enrolment

18. Leave of absence

(1) University academic board may specify the circumstances in which a student may take leave of absence from an award course.

(2) A student must apply to the registrar for leave of absence from the award course.

(3) The registrar determines the student's application for leave of absence.

19. Cancellation of enrolment

(1) A student must notify the registrar if they wish to cancel their enrolment in an award course or non-award studies.

(2) A student who cancels their enrolment is deemed to have withdrawn from enrolment in all units in their enrolment program in accordance with rule 11.

PART 4 - FEES

20. Definitions for this part

In this part—

'HES Act' means the Higher Education Support Act 2003 (Cwth) as amended from time to time.

'student contribution amount' means a fee being the contribution for the teaching period in question determined by the university in accordance with the HES Act.

21. Imposition of fees and charges

(1) Except as specified under the HES Act, the university may impose student contribution amounts and fees for enrolment and study at the university, or for services and facilities associated with enrolment and study, and may impose different student contribution amounts and fees for different categories of students.

(2) The officer or body listed in schedule 2 sets the student contribution amounts and fees.

(3) For each teaching period, the registrar must prescribe the dates for payment of student contribution amounts and fees.

(4) A student must pay the student contribution amounts and fees specified in these rules by the prescribed dates.

(5) A student is not validly enrolled <sup>2</sup> unless all student contribution amounts and fees specified in these rules have been paid, including any additional student contribution amount or tuition fee required to be paid as a result of addition of a unit to a student's enrolment program in accordance with rule 10 .

22. (Repealed - 19.04.06)

23. Liability for a student contribution amount

(1) Except as specified in the HES Act, a student who enrolls in any teaching period in a unit or units for an award course is liable for a student contribution amount.

(2) A student who is liable for a student contribution amount must submit a Commonwealth assistance form specifying the method for payment of the contribution in any of the following circumstances—

- (a) when the student first enrolls at the university;
- (b) when the student changes to another award course;
- (c) if the student elects to pay the contribution by another method.

(3) For each teaching period, the registrar must prescribe the date for submission of the Commonwealth assistance form.

(4) Except as specified in the HES Act, a student may discharge a liability for a student contribution amount by—

- (a) paying the required amount directly to the university by the date specified by the registrar; or
- (b) supplying a tax file number to the university; or
- (c) a combination of (a) and (b).

24. Tuition fee

(1) This rule applies to students who are not liable to pay a student contribution amount for a teaching period or a unit.

(2) A student (other than an international student or a student deemed by the registrar to be liable to pay a student contribution amount) who enrolls in a unit or units for an award course must pay the tuition fee specified in schedule 2 .

(3) A visiting student (other than a visiting international student) who enrolls in a unit or units must pay the tuition fee specified in schedule 2 , except that the dean may specify a different fee for students undertaking a designated enrolment program.

(4) An international student must pay to the university, for each teaching period, the international student tuition fee specified in the offer of admission.

(5) Where the HES Act specifies, a student who is normally liable to pay a student contribution amount may be required to pay the tuition fee specified in schedule 2 for enrolment in a particular teaching period or unit.

(6) For this rule—

a 'visiting student' means a student who enrolls in non-award studies, but does not include a cross-institutional Commonwealth supported student who enrolls in a unit or units at QUT to obtain credit towards an award course at another Australian university.

'Commonwealth supported student' means a student who is liable to pay a student contribution amount for a unit or units for an award course in accordance with the HES Act.

25. Incidental fees

(1) A student or a person applying for admission must pay the relevant incidental fee prior to taking the action or requesting the service listed in schedule 2 .

(2) If the fee has not been paid, the student's action or request for the service has no effect.

26. Cancellation fee and refunds

(1) The university may retain a proportion of student contribution amounts or fees paid by a student as a charge for cancellation of enrolment, and may impose different cancellation fees for different categories of students.

(2) Schedule 2 specifies the amount which will be retained by the university where a student cancels their enrolment in a unit or units.

(3) A student who withdraws from enrolment in a unit or units must apply by the date specified by the registrar for a refund of student contribution amounts or fees paid to the university.

26A. Exemption or deferment of payment of fees

(1) The vice-chancellor must specify the circumstances in which students may be granted exemption from payment of fees.

(2) The registrar determines whether a student may be granted exemption from payment, either in whole or in part.

(3) The registrar may permit a student to defer payment of fees for a specified time during a teaching period.

27. Consequences of non-payment of fees and charges

Except where action is taken by the registrar under rule 26A, the registrar may do either or both of the following if a student does not pay by the specified date the full amount of fees required by the university under this part—

- (a) reject the student's enrolment in accordance with rule 8 ;
- (b) require the student to pay an incidental fee specified in schedule 2 .

PART 5 - ASSESSMENT

Division 1 - General requirements for assessment

28. Notice of assessment requirements

A student who is enrolled in a unit must receive notification of assessment requirements in the manner and by the time prescribed by university academic board.

29. Academic dishonesty

(1) A student must not act in a manner which constitutes academic dishonesty.

(2) Academic dishonesty means an action or practice which may compromise or defeat the purposes of assessment, and includes, but is not limited to -

- (a) cheating, or attempting to cheat;
- (b) plagiarism;
- (c) misrepresenting or fabricating data or results or other assessable work;
- (d) breaching requirements specified by university academic board under rule 32 for conduct during examinations, in a way that may compromise or defeat the purposes of the assessment.

(3) University academic board may prescribe procedures for investigating allegations of academic dishonesty.

(4) The penalties for academic dishonesty are -

- (a) mark reduction or zero mark for an assessment item; or
- (b) awarding of a failing grade in the unit in which academic dishonesty is detected; or
- (c) awarding of a failing grade in the unit in which academic dishonesty is detected and in another unit or all other units undertaken in that teaching period; or
- (d) suspension from the university for a specified period of time, together with the allocation of failing grades specified in rule 29(4)(c); or
- (e) permanent expulsion from the University, together with the allocation of failing grades specified in rule 29(4)(c).

(5) The dean may impose the penalties listed in rule 29(4)(a) and 29(4)(b).

(6) The registrar may impose any of the penalties listed in rule 29(4).

Division 2 - Examinations

30. Availability for examinations

(1) A student must be available to undertake an examination-

- (a) at the time and place specified for the examination in the central examination period; and
- (b) at any other time specified for an examination in the notification of assessment requirements.

(2) The registrar publishes an examination timetable for each central examination period.

(3) In this rule, 'central examination period' means a period of at least 2 weeks at the end of each semester or other teaching period designated for conducting examinations.

31. Alternative examination sittings

A student who holds religious convictions which preclude attendance at an examination at the time specified in the published examination timetable, may apply in the manner prescribed by the registrar for an alternative examination sitting.

32. Conduct during examinations

University academic board must specify procedures for examinations, including -

- (a) requirements for a student entering or leaving the examination room; and
- (b) requirements for a student's conduct during the examination.

33. Deferred examinations

(1) A student who, due to exceptional circumstances beyond the student's control, is unable to attend an examination at the prescribed time may apply in the manner prescribed by the registrar for a deferred examination.

(2) The dean determines the outcome of an application for a deferred examination.

Division 3 - Final grades

34. Grading scale

University academic board must specify the grading scale to be used in allocating a record of achievement for studies at the university.

35. Allocation and notification of grades

(1) The dean approves a student's final grade for a unit.

(2) A student will be notified of their grades in the manner determined by the registrar.

36. Special consideration

(1) A student who believes that their performance in completing an assessment item has been adversely affected by exceptional circumstances may apply for special consideration in the manner prescribed by the registrar.

(2) The dean determines the application for special consideration.

37. Supplementary assessment

Supplementary assessment may be granted to a student only in the circumstances prescribed by university academic board.

PART 6 - UNSATISFACTORY ACADEMIC PERFORMANCE

38. Requirement to perform satisfactorily in studies

(1) In this part, a "program of study" means an award course or a structured program of non-award studies.

(2) A student undertaking a program of study must maintain a satisfactory level of academic performance in accordance with this part.

(3) University academic board determines the standards for satisfactory academic performance and must specify the following matters—

- (a) the circumstances in which a student may be placed on probationary enrolment;
- (b) the circumstances in which a student is an eligible student for the purposes of rule 41;
- (c) the circumstances in which an eligible student may be excluded from enrolment in other award courses or programs at the university.

39. Probationary enrolment

(1) The registrar determines the students to be placed on probationary enrolment at the end of each semester, or at six monthly intervals in the case of other teaching periods.

(2) The registrar must notify a student in writing of the decision to place the student on probationary enrolment.

40. Conditions of probationary enrolment

(1) A student is placed on probationary enrolment for a period of six months.

(2) While on probationary enrolment, a student must -

(a) consult the course coordinator about their enrolment program; and

(b) if the course coordinator specifies an enrolment program, submit the enrolment program as specified.

(3) If a student on probationary enrolment cancels their enrolment in the program of study but is subsequently re-admitted by the registrar to the same program of study in accordance with part 2 of these rules, the registrar, upon re-admission -

(a) must place the student on probationary enrolment for the first teaching period of enrolment; and

(b) may require the student to submit an enrolment program specified by the course coordinator.

41. Exclusion from enrolment in an award course

(1) At the end of each semester, or at six monthly intervals in the case of other teaching periods, the faculty academic board responsible for the program of study may exclude an eligible student from enrolment in that program.

(2) The registrar may -

(a) exclude an eligible student from enrolment in other award courses or programs of study, provided that the circumstances specified by university academic board under rule 38(3)(c) apply; or

(b) if the faculty academic board does not exclude an eligible student, place the eligible student on probationary enrolment in accordance with rule 39.

(3) The registrar must notify a student in writing of the decision to exclude the student from enrolment.

42. Consequences of exclusion

(1) If exclusion is imposed on a student under rule 41, the student is excluded from a program of study indefinitely, unless permitted to re-enrol in accordance with rule 43.

(2) A student who is excluded from a program of study is not permitted to enrol in any units forming part of that program.

43. Enrolment following exclusion

(1) An excluded student may re-enrol in a unit or units as part of the program of study if -

(a) the student successfully appeals against exclusion; or
(b) the student, following exclusion for at least 12 months, is re-admitted to the program of study by the registrar.

(2) Where a student re-enrols in the program of study in accordance with rule 43(1), the registrar must place the student on probationary enrolment for a period of one semester or for teaching periods equivalent in duration to one semester.

PART 7 - ELIGIBILITY TO GRADUATE

44. Minimum passing grades for graduation

(1) This rule applies if, at the time that a student's grade in a unit was determined, the grading scale approved by university academic board under rule 34 and then in effect, included a low passing grade.

(2) For the purposes of determining a student's eligibility to graduate from an award course, a faculty academic board may designate the maximum number of units for which the student can be awarded a low passing grade.

45. Eligibility to graduate from an award course

(1) Subject to rule 44, a student is eligible to graduate from an award course upon completion of all course requirements.

(2) Faculty academic board determines whether a student has completed all course requirements.

(3) University academic board confers the award on a student who is eligible to graduate.

PART 8 - REVIEW AND APPEALS

46. Review of grades and academic rulings

(1) University academic board must prescribe procedures for dealing with applications for review of grades and academic rulings.

(2) A student may apply for a review of -

(a) their grade for a unit; or

(b) other academic rulings made under these rules.

47. Appeal to university academic board

(1) A person who has been refused admission to the university may appeal to university academic board.

(2) A student may appeal to university academic board if -

(a) the student has been excluded from an award course under rule 41; or

(b) the student has been penalised by the dean or the registrar under rule 29.

48. Status pending outcome of review or appeal

Pending the outcome of a review or appeal, the registrar may permit a student to attend classes or undertake examinations.

PART 9 - MISCELLANEOUS

49. Research higher degree students

(1) For students undertaking the doctor of philosophy degree, university academic board must specify general requirements for -

(a) admission as a candidate for the degree; and
(b) enrolment and progression as a candidate; and
(c) submission and examination of the thesis.

(2) For students undertaking another research higher degree, faculty academic board must specify course requirements.

50. Delegation of powers and functions<sup>3</sup>

(1) Where these rules specify that a particular person or body exercises a power or function, that person or body may delegate the power or function to another person or body.

(2) Despite rule 50(1), a course coordinator or a unit coordinator may not delegate a function or power to another person.

End Notes

SCHEDULE 2 – FEES AND CHARGES

TABLE A – STUDENT CONTRIBUTION BANDS

The cost of your units is based on the field of education classification of each unit of study. Units are grouped on the basis of their field of education into four bands. QUT sets a student contribution rate for each of the four bands.

These bands show the student contribution required for one equivalent full-time student load (EFTSL) or 96 credit points of study, if all units were taken from that band.

The actual amount of your student contribution will depend on the EFTSL value of your individual units within your course.

To see the actual contribution costs for your units and their EFTSL value view the alphabetical list of units or refer to your course structure in Studyfinder.

2009 student contribution bands for Commonwealth supported students*	Pre-2008 students	Pre-2009 students	2009 students
Band 1: humanities, behavioural science, social studies, foreign languages, visual and performing arts	$5201	$5201	$5201
Band 2: mathematics, statistics, science	$7412	$7412	N/A
Band 2: computing, built environment, other health, allied health, engineering, surveying, agriculture	$7412	$7412	$7412
Band 2: accounting, administration, economics, commerce	$7412	N/A	N/A
Band 3: accounting, administration, economics, commerce	N/A	$8677	$8677
Band 3: law, dentistry, medicine, veterinary science	$8677	$8677	$8677
Band 4: National priorities: education, nursing	$4162	$4162	$4162
Band 4: National priorities: mathematics, statistics, science	N/A	N/A	$4162

* The bands are indicative only. The actual contribution may vary depending on the units in your course.

TABLE B - DOMESTIC POSTGRADUATE TUITION FEES

Domestic postgraduate tuition fees are determined at the unit level taking into account the principal subject matter of the unit and the level of study. The aggregation of the cost of units undertaken in 2009 will determine the 2009 fee for the course. The table below outlines the framework for domestic postgraduate tuition fees.

Note: Special rates apply to certain units offered to study abroad students, in offshore courses, QUT International College courses, or courses customised for corporate delivery. If you are unable to locate your unit in this list please email sbs.fees@qut.edu.au for more information.

Field of Education Classifications	Rate per credit point 2009
Law, accounting, administration, economics, commerce	$105–$270
Humanities	$140
Mathematics, statistics, behavioural science, social studies, education, computing, built environment, other health	$140
Education	$140–$150
Clinical psychology, allied health, foreign languages, visual and performing arts	$140–$225
Nursing	$140–$170
Engineering, science, surveying	$140–$240
Dentistry, medicine, veterinary, science, agriculture	$285
Research thesis (normally PhD) exceeded maximum time	$140

* Tuition fee places offered to students after Commonwealth supported places are filled or maximum entitlements for RTS/RTA are exceeded.

Course information available through Studyfinder includes an indicative cost per semester. This is calculated as an average over the whole course using the most common units in which students enrol.

SCHEDULE 2 – FEES AND CHARGES

Table C - International Student Tuition Fees

These fees are set in accordance with rule 24(4), QUT Student Rules by the authority of the Vice-Chancellor.

Application fee for award courses: $55 (incl GST)

International student tuition fees are determined at the unit level taking into account the principal subject matter of the unit and level of study. The aggregation of the cost of units undertaken in 2009 will determine the 2009 fee for the course.

Some courses have special rates approved:

Course Code	Course Title		2009 Fee
BS40	University Diploma of Business	Semester	$7725
IF06	University Diploma in Professional Communication	Semester	$7725
IT10	University Diploma in Information Technology	Semester	$7725

ACADEMIC POLICIES

Access to assessment results

The University is committed to a policy of openness with respect to the release of assessment results. This policy of openness supports the purposes of assessment, including the objective of providing feedback as an aid to future learning (see C/5.1.1), and meets QUT's obligations under freedom of information and privacy legislation.

Access to marks

For units where percentage marks are calculated, such marks will be placed on the confidential individual student records located in the QUT Virtual web pages (<https://qutvirtual.qut.edu.au/>). Provision of information to students about component marks for individual assessment items in a unit is encouraged.

Access to examination scripts

A student may request access to their own examination scripts, written answers to examination questions or other forms of written assessment. The request must be made within three months of the release of final results in the unit, as this is the minimum period for which examination scripts or other written materials must be retained (for further information, refer to http://www.governance.qut.edu.au/rms/accessing\_records/).

Where a student intends to seek review of the grade, access to the written materials should be sought and provided within the timeframe specified for review of grades (see E/9.1).

Unit coordinators must make appropriate arrangements for students to obtain access to examination scripts and other written materials. Access is generally in the form of perusal of the examination script under supervision, which may incorporate individual feedback on performance where possible.

If a student requests a photocopy of their examination script, a fee is levied under Schedule 2 of the Student Rules.

However, where examination question papers or other forms of assessment will be re-used in successive examinations, unit coordinators must arrange for students to receive advice on their performance with reference to their own examination scripts in a way which does not prejudice the examination mode. In this case, the student is not entitled to obtain a photocopy of the examination script.

Return of assignments to students

Assignments are generally returned to students following completion of marking. This should be done in a manner which does not breach other students' privacy and which protects students' work from tampering or unauthorised collection.

Assessment provisions for students with disabilities

Students with permanent or temporary disability have the right to alternative arrangements for assessment which provide equality of opportunity to enable students to fulfil course requirements.

Students should contact the relevant campus Disability Officer early in the teaching period and preferably prior to the published date for withdrawal without financial penalty for the relevant teaching period.

Alternative arrangements for assessment are negotiated between the student, Disability Officer and the course coordinator.

Students are required to present evidence to the Disability Officer, usually in the form of documentation from a medical or other relevant specialist practitioner which substantiates the nature of the special need. The University adheres to principles of confidentiality and privacy and documentation together with records of interviews are maintained by the Disability Officer.

The Disability Officer will develop a service plan which includes recommendations for alternative arrangements for assessment for approval by the relevant course coordinator. Service plans are reviewed and re-negotiated each semester. The student will be advised in writing of any alternative arrangements for their assessment.

Further information on support provided by the University for students with disabilities is contained in the Guide for Students with Disabilities. Refer also to University policy on disability services (see A/8.6).

a) Centrally organised assessment

For centrally organised examinations, responsibility for the conduct and administration of alternative assessment provisions for students with disabilities, including the costs of employing invigilators, personal assistants and providing examination materials, rests with the Student Business Services Department.

b) School-based assessment

For assessment other than central examinations, administrative and financial responsibility, including organisation of appropriate equipment and support personnel, rests with faculties and schools.

Awards with honours and awards with distinction

The decision to offer awards with honours and awards with distinction is approved during the curriculum approval process (see C/4.1). Student Business Services maintains a list of courses that are awarded with honours and with distinction and determines deadlines by which all results are recorded on the student information system. Procedures for conferral of awards with honours and awards with distinction are provided in E/10.1.3.

To be eligible for an award with distinction or an award with honours a graduand must have:

- met all requirements for completion of the course
- completed the course within the maximum number of calendar years specified in the policy on time limits for completion of courses (see Student Rules in Appendix 1(c))
- completed at least 50% of the total credit points required for the course at QUT.

Eligibility for awards with honours and awards with distinction for double degrees is based on consideration of the separate component degrees. For either degree, only the units associated specifically with that component are taken into account in the GPA calculation used to determine eligibility or level of award.

In exceptional cases faculty academic boards may recommend to University Academic Board a relaxation of normal eligibility criteria for a particular graduand. Such a recommendation must be accompanied by an appropriate rationale.

Awards with honours

Awards with honours are made to students who have achieved meritorious achievement in their course, and to indicate that students may appropriately proceed to higher degrees. Faculties may choose to award honours in bachelor degree courses of 384 credit points or more. First class honours, second class honours division A, and second class honours division B may be awarded. The grade point average (GPA) levels shown below are to be used in determining the level of honours awards and no other criteria may apply to awards with honours:

- First Class Honours: GPA of 6.00-7.00 or equivalent
- Second Class Honours, Division A : GPA of 5.50-5.99 or equivalent
- Second Class Honours, Division B: GPA of 5.00-5.49 or equivalent.

Awards with distinction

Awards with distinction are made to students who have achieved meritorious achievement in their course. Faculties may choose to offer awards with distinction in any associate degree, bachelor degree or graduate diploma, except those courses which are awarded with honours. The GPA levels shown below are to be used in determining eligibility for awards with distinction and no other criteria may apply:

- GPA of 5.5 for undergraduate courses, and
- GPA of 5.75 for postgraduate courses.

Supplementary assessment

Supplementary assessment is provided to support transition into the workplace (graduation) and transition into the University (the First Year Experience). Supplementary assessment may also be available to students who receive a grade of 3 in a unit.

Students are responsible for making applications for supplementary assessment.

A maximum of four supplementary assessments will be available to students in coursework programs of three or more years full-time duration or equivalent, In the case of coursework programs of less than three years full-time duration or equivalent, this maximum number is two.

Supplementary assessment is not a reassessment of the student's overall grade or the mark for an individual assessment item. It is a new item of assessment designed to assist students to complete requirements for their qualification. Students who successfully complete supplementary assessment requirements will be awarded a minimum passing grade (grade of 4).

Where students transfer between related QUT courses (eg a double degree and one of the components; nested courses), supplementary assessments that have already been granted in the first course will be counted in the second course. In cases where students transfer between unrelated QUT courses (eg single degree courses offered by different faculties), supplementary assessments will be counted in the second course only if they were received for units in the first course that are being credited towards the second course.

Supplementary assessment supporting transition into the workforce (graduation)

Students may be granted:

- up to two supplementary assessments in the final 96 credit points of study, at the faculty's discretion, for coursework programs of three or more years full-time duration or equivalent; and
- one supplementary assessment in the final 48 credit points of study, at the faculty's discretion, for coursework programs of less than three years full-time duration or equivalent (this includes students enrolled in a QUTIC diploma).

Supplementary assessment supporting transition into the workforce should only be provided when a student receives a grade of 2 or a grade of 3 in a non-designated unit (see E/6.7.3 for definition of designated unit).

Supplementary assessment will not be granted:

- to students enrolled in any designated unit listed on the Student Business Services website; or
- to students who have been graded 1 (low fail) or K (withdrawn – failure).

Supplementary assessment supporting transition into the University (First Year Experience)

Students may be granted one supplementary assessment in a core or mandatory unit in the first 96 credit points of an undergraduate course.

Supplementary assessment in first level undergraduate units is provided to avoid disruption of a standard program of study caused by failure in one core or mandatory unit. Supplementary assessment supporting transition into the University should only be provided when a student has received a grade of 2 or a grade of 3 in a core or mandatory unit. To be eligible to apply for the supplementary assessment, students must also have obtained passing grades in all units other than that in which the supplementary assessment is sought. Supplementary assessment will not be granted to students who have been graded 1 (low fail) or K (withdrawn – failure).

Supplementary assessment where a student has been awarded a grade of 3

Students may be granted supplementary assessment in a limited number of cases where a grade of 3 has been achieved. This limit depends on any other supplementary assessments granted to support transition (see E/6.4.2 and E/6.4.3) such that the maximum number overall in a course is:

- four in coursework programs of three or more years full-time duration or equivalent, or
- two in coursework programs of less than three years full-time duration or equivalent.

LIFE ON CAMPUS

Children on campus policy

QUT recognises the diversity of needs and demands placed on staff and students when balancing work, study and family responsibilities, and that occasionally it may be necessary to bring a child or children onto campus.

This policy should be read in conjunction with the University's policy on childcare and family responsibilities (see section A/8.8)

Application

The children on campus policy applies to all students and staff members. This policy does not apply to situations where a child is brought on campus for the purpose of attending a registered child care facility, the Early Childhood Development Unit, clinics and approved programs such as vacation care.

Principles

Under the Queensland Workplace Health and Safety Act 1995 QUT has obligations to ensure the health and safety of all, including children, at or near the workplace. The legislation requires that students and staff meet the following obligations

- to follow instructions related to their study or employment at QUT
- to not interfere with or misuse anything provided for health and safety
- to not place others or themselves at risk

Consistent with these obligations, a student or staff member must consider the following issues prior to bringing a child on campus.

- It is anticipated that students will make all reasonable attempts to arrange alternative childcare before bringing a child to the workplace.
- It is anticipated that staff will make all reasonable attempts to arrange alternative child care before bringing a child to the workplace or avail themselves of flexible work practices (eg flexitime) or leave options (eg Personal leave) where available and appropriate.
- Approval to bring a child on campus should be obtained from the relevant staff member or supervisor as soon as practical, ie in advance if possible or on arrival.
- Children must not enter areas where potentially dangerous equipment or hazardous substances are present or areas that are subject to particular statutory or local regulations.
- A common sense approach is necessary when bringing children on campus. For example, children recently exposed to an infectious illness (eg chicken pox, rubella, mumps etc), or who are known to be ill, must not be brought on campus.
- It is important that the child's presence on campus does not result in disruption to the workplace, including classes and non-teaching areas such as the Library.

Further information and detailed procedures relating to this policy are available from HR Health and Safety Advisory Services.

Policy on smoking

Given the proven health risks of smoking, QUT is moving towards making the University a smoke-free environment.

Smoking is prohibited:

- in all buildings or parts of buildings under QUT's control
- in any outdoor area of a food outlet, or any outdoor area where food and drink is provided
- in QUT vehicles
- within 10 metres of any entrance to buildings, air conditioning intakes, ventilation louvres or opened windows
- on all semi-enclosed thoroughfares such as verandahs or colonnades and on all elevated walkways with or without fixed roof structures which require people using building entrances or moving between buildings to pass through tobacco smoke emissions
- in any other area where there is signage expressly prohibiting smoking.

Smokers are required to follow directions given by authorised QUT staff and Security personnel in regard to the implementation and enforcement of the University's policy on smoking.

Policy on cultural diversity and anti-racism

Consistent with its equal opportunity and diversity policy (A/8.4) and the QUT Reconciliation Statement (A/8.3), QUT's approach to cultural diversity and anti-racism:

- promotes and encourages awareness, understanding and appreciation of the differences that exist amongst cultural groups and acknowledges and celebrates the breadth of experience and resources that people from diverse backgrounds bring to the University;
- recognises and acknowledges the particular significance of Indigenous Australian peoples as the original owners of this land;
- recognises the responsibility of educational institutions to redress disadvantage and to overcome exclusion, bigotry, ethnocentrism, prejudice and racism;
- respects and protects the rights of its students and staff to study and work in a discrimination-free environment.

Responsibilities and commitments

Organisational culture and environment – QUT will take all reasonable steps to provide and support a culturally diverse and inclusive work, study and research environment. A culturally diverse community is characterised by a wide range of traditions, languages, beliefs, values, ideas and practices. Consistent with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) and with Australian law, the University will make every effort to ensure staff and students are aware of their rights to have their cultural identity respected and to be free of discrimination. All members of the University community have an individual responsibility to ensure that their interactions and activities with cultures, other than their own, affirm diversity and are anti-racist.

The University will provide opportunities to increase respect for cultural diversity, such as training, events, inter-cultural interaction, promotional materials and open debate, and ensure that decision-making structures are inclusive.

Through strategic planning, QUT will monitor its progress towards being a culturally-inclusive environment. Any complaints that may arise on cultural, ethnic or racial grounds will be resolved by the University using established processes (see A/6.1 and A/8.5).

Human resources – Managers and supervisors are responsible for ensuring the workplace and study environment is culturally inclusive and free from race discrimination and harassment. QUT will facilitate cross-cultural competencies by providing professional development and learning opportunities for staff and will recognise those who develop their skills and knowledge in this area. The University will also support managers and supervisors with their culturally inclusive responsibilities and monitor their effectiveness in fulfilling these responsibilities, as well as providing working conditions which are consistent with the needs of a socially and culturally diverse community, particularly the cultural and religious obligations of staff.

Curriculum and students – QUT will develop and deliver programs which are culturally inclusive in course design, curriculum content and teaching methodologies. Through these programs the University is responsible for producing cross-culturally competent graduates who can engage with multiple perspectives, operate in diverse environments, work in multicultural teams and understand Indigenous perspectives. Student policies, procedures and support services, appropriate for a diverse student population, will be provided as well as targeted support services for specific groups identified as needing particular support.

Research and community service – Through public debate, discussion and by reflecting the values, experiences and images of all the ethnic and cultural groups within QUT, the University will raise the awareness and understanding of the wider Australian community of diverse cultures. The University will also encourage research and community service activities that actively engage with cultural diversity issues, and are inclusive of and beneficial to diverse groups.

Disability services policy

Principles

Consistent with the University's commitment to social justice (see A/8.4), the University supports the right of people with a disability to work or study in an accessible and inclusive environment, free from discrimination.

QUT takes all reasonable steps to provide an inclusive learning and working environment which respects diversity and the dignity of all staff and students. This policy seeks to ensure equal opportunities for people with a disability to participate in all aspects of University life, including education and employment.

QUT recognises its legal obligations under current State and Commonwealth anti-discrimination legislation, principally:

- Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cwth)
- Disability Standards for Education 2005 (Cwth)
- Anti-Discrimination Act 1991(Qld).

Under this legislation the University can be vicariously liable for discrimination or harassment against a person with a disability by a member of staff or any of its agents.

Objectives

The University's approach to implementing this policy includes:

- The requirements of people with a disability are recognised and embedded in the planning process, resource allocation, and the development of policy (see QUT Disability Action Plan). Resources will be sufficient to ensure an appropriate level of services to students and staff.
- Reasonable accommodations are provided for people with a disability, which neither advantage nor disadvantage them in comparison to other people not receiving disability support services.
- Access to work and study, by law, is not limited on the basis of the cost of services and accommodations required, unless the adjustments would impose "unjustifiable hardship" on the University.

- The physical environment on all campuses should be accessible and safe and easy for people with a disability to negotiate. All new buildings are designed in accordance with the appropriate standards and codes. The University is improving access to older buildings, where possible, to meet these standards.
- The University respects the rights of people with a disability to privacy and confidentiality (see F/9.1) and may seek information about a person's disability primarily for the purpose of a request for reasonable accommodation. This information remains confidential and is not part of the person's open record of employment or academic progress.
- The University provides programs for staff to promote awareness of disability issues.

Definitions

Discrimination

'Discrimination' means treating people with a disability less favourably than people without that disability would be treated under the same circumstances. For further details on definitions of discrimination, refer to the University's grievance resolution procedures for discrimination related grievances (A/8.5).

Disability

As outlined in legislation, a disability may be temporary or permanent, total or partial, physical, psychological or psychiatric, life-long or acquired. Also included are people who require devices or aids for assistance, or are accompanied by guide dogs or other assistance animals as defined by the relevant legislation.

Reasonable accommodation

'Reasonable accommodation' refers to administrative, physical or procedural alterations required to ensure equal opportunity for a person with a disability.

Unjustifiable hardship

In some cases it may be unreasonable for the University to make certain adjustments. Relevant circumstances in determining unjustifiable hardship include: the nature of the benefit or detriment likely to accrue or be suffered by any persons concerned; and the financial circumstances of the institution and the cost of making the required adjustments. A thorough understanding of the effect of the disability on the individual and the impact of any adjustment or alteration is required in order to determine whether such adjustments are reasonable and necessary. The relevant State and Commonwealth administrative bodies require detailed evidence to support a claim of unjustifiable hardship.

Provisions for people with a disability

Provisions for students with a disability

The needs of a student with a disability are assessed on an individual basis, following consultation between the student and a University disability adviser. The disability adviser makes recommendations for reasonable accommodations based on the functional limitations imposed by the disability and the supporting documentation provided by the student. Recommendations, in the form of a service plan, are forwarded to the relevant faculty / school liaison person for distribution to teaching staff.

Particular support services are available for students with a disability. Further information is available in the publication Guide for Students with a Disability.

Staff seeking additional information are referred to the publication and website: Supporting Students with a Disability: a guide for staff which includes information on common forms of disability, effective communication, teaching strategies, curriculum design and assessment. See also policy on alternative arrangements for assessment for students with a disability (E/6.3)

Provisions for employment

QUT actively encourages the employment of people with a disability. Supervisors and managers should be aware of the relevant legislation and policies relating to employment of people with a disability and ensure that all employment procedures are appropriate and non-discriminatory.

In considering a candidate with a disability for a specific job, the University makes adjustments in the workplace and adjustments to work conditions, if required.

Workers with a disability are afforded equal opportunities to acquire the skills and experience necessary to advance in their careers.

The University provides advice, information and services, upon request, to staff with a disability and/or the section of the University in which the person is employed or is seeking employment.

Other provisions

It is the responsibility of the student or staff member to substantiate their eligibility for disability services.

People with mobility impairment should be aware of the parking regulations in force on each campus. Further details are available from the Facilities Management website.

The University ensures that all essential educational, administrative and promotional material is available in alternative formats for access by people with a disability.

A working party of Equity Board (A/8.9) reviews and recommends policies and practices relating to the needs of people with a disability.

Information access and privacy

QUT's functions necessitate the collection, creation and use of personal information about students, staff and other clients. QUT is strongly committed to protecting personal privacy by complying with 11 information privacy principles which govern how and when personal information may be collected, stored, used and disclosed. QUT recognises that staff and students, both past and present, and other clients and individuals having links to QUT, have a legitimate expectation that the University will protect and appropriately manage the personal information it collects and holds about them.

This policy is derived from obligations under the Queensland Government's Information Standard No 42 - Information Privacy (IS42), which applies to statutory authorities such as QUT. This policy also supports QUT's obligations to comply with information security requirements (see F/1.2).

Definition of personal information

This policy applies to "personal information". This is defined in IS42 as any information or opinion, whether true or not, and whether recorded in a material form or not, about an individual whose identity is apparent, or can reasonably be ascertained, from the information or opinion. Personal information can be in any format and, for the purposes of this definition, includes photographs and images, usernames and passwords. Unique identifiers such as student/staff/payroll numbers, tax file numbers, credit card numbers and bank account details are also personal information. Personal information may be recorded in a variety of formats including, but not limited to, hard copy records, databases, administrative systems and staff/student identity cards.

Where data is recorded in a way which cannot be linked to a known individual, then the privacy principles do not apply.

Roles and responsibilities for privacy

All staff

It is the responsibility of all staff to respect personal privacy in so far as they collect, access or use personal information about others in the course of their duties, and to comply with the specific requirements of this policy.

Privacy must also be appropriately respected in the human research context, and all staff and students undertaking research must comply with the University's policies and procedures for research involving personal information, including the requirement to obtain ethical approval where applicable. Refer to Office of Research (Research Ethics Office) for further details.

Data custodians

The nominated data custodian of major datasets used to support QUT functions must comply with specific responsibilities described in this policy and in QUT's policy on provision and use of information resources and services (F/1.1.3) and in the information security policy (F/1.2), all of which support QUT privacy obligations.

Heads of organisational units

As the functions of many organisational units within the University require the collection or management of personal information, responsibility for assessing privacy risk and for implementing business processes which are consistent with privacy principles rests with the head of each organisational unit. Specific, ongoing responsibilities include:

- implementation and regular review of appropriate data collection practices (see section 9.1.4 below);
- ensuring personal information is used and managed appropriately by staff within the organisational unit;
- implementing adequate security requirements for access to and storage of personal information in all formats within the organisational unit; and
- ensuring that privacy training and awareness is embedded in practices and procedures of the organisational unit as appropriate.

Privacy Contact Officer

The Registrar, as chief administrative officer, has general responsibility for privacy management, and has designated a Privacy Contact Officer in Governance Services to facilitate the implementation of IS42 at QUT. Specific responsibilities of the Privacy Contact Officer include:

- maintenance of QUT's privacy plan;
- training and advisory services, including the development of a strategy for regular training of staff on their responsibilities in areas of high privacy risk;
- provision of assistance for the development of privacy notices; and
- receipt of privacy complaints (see section 9.1.12 below).

Collection of personal information

Personal information must be collected only where necessary and relevant to QUT's functions and activities and in accordance with other privacy collection principles. The head of an organisational unit responsible for functions or activities requiring the collection of personal information must:

- regularly review data collection activities to exclude collection of personal information which is irrelevant to the business process or where there is no specific and immediate use for the information collected;
- develop appropriate privacy notices when collecting information directly from the person concerned, irrespective of the means by which personal information is collected;
- ensure that collection methods adopted meet requirements for fairness, and are non-intrusive (in particular, in the context of logging network or IT activities);
- determine whether recording names or other identifying details is necessary to perform the function or activity.

Special considerations apply to data collection practices in the context of human research. In particular, the principle of informed and voluntary consent should form the basis of data collection practices in human research, and when properly applied, is consistent with privacy principles. For further details, refer to policy on research involving the participation of humans (D/6.2) and supporting guidelines.

Access and security for personal information records

The implementation of adequate security safeguards is a significant means of protecting personal privacy. Reasonable measures must be put in place to prevent unauthorised access, loss, disclosure or misuse of personal information. Detailed arrangements for management of information security generally are found in the information security policy (F/1.2).

For personal data in information systems, the data custodian has formal responsibility for implementing adequate security measures to protect privacy (see F/1.1). Additionally, the data custodian determines user access levels for the dataset or system, though the decision to grant access to individual staff may be delegated. Access rights should be formally documented and reviewed periodically. The data custodian is also responsible for implementing appropriate mechanisms to revoke access to personal information data or records when access is no longer necessary or appropriate, for instance, in the case of a change in position or formal responsibilities, or termination of employment. In regard to local files and records, security procedures and management of access are the responsibility of the head of the organisational unit.

The head of the organisational unit is responsible for ensuring that personal information records held in physical or hard copy files and records is also secured. Physical security strategies may include restricting building and work area access, ensuring facilities (offices, filing cabinets or other storage facilities) are locked when not in use, and implementing "clean desk" procedures.

In addition, good records management practices for physical files, for instance recording file movements, undertaking file audits, placing appropriate security classifications on files, and managing records retention, are designed to safeguard against loss or unauthorised access. Care must be taken to ensure secure and confidential destruction of records containing personal information (which may only be undertaken in accordance with authorised disposal schedules). Refer to QUT's records management policy (F/8.1) and supporting procedures.

Individual staff are entitled to access personal information records (irrespective of format) only where there is a legitimate need to do so, and only to the extent required to perform the staff member's duties (the "least privilege" principle). Additionally, individual users of QUT's personal information datasets and systems must take reasonable precautions to safeguard their access to these systems, such as the protection of passwords. Individual user responsibilities for security are outlined in QUT's Information Facilities Rules (Appendix 1(c)).

Use of personal information records

Privacy obligations impose the following requirements in relation to the use by the University of personal information held in QUT records and datasets:

- the requirement to take reasonable steps to ensure that information is accurate, up-to-date and complete before it is used, since it is important that decisions or actions by the University are based on accurate and complete facts. This responsibility rests with the relevant data custodian or head of the organisational unit in which the personal information is held;
- the requirement to use information only in circumstances where it is relevant, and provided that it is used only for the purpose for which it has been collected or a directly related purpose. This is the responsibility of all staff.

There are several recognised but limited exceptions to the restrictions on use of personal information and further guidance on use of personal information for other purposes is available from the Privacy Contact Officer.

Prohibition on disclosure of personal information

Staff must not disclose personal information to individuals or organisations outside the University. Disclosure refers to release of personal information out of the effective control of the University (that is, to a body, agency or person separate from the University).

Exceptions relating to disclosure of personal information

In extremely limited circumstances, disclosure of personal information in the following circumstances may not be a breach of privacy.

Consent

Personal information may be disclosed where the individual concerned has consented to that disclosure. Consent must be expressly given and it is expected that the consent will be in writing. In limited circumstances, verbal consent may be acceptable if it is verifiable and the disclosure is clearly in the best interests of the individual. Staff proposing to release information where the consent is not in writing must discuss the circumstances with the Privacy Contact Officer before disclosure occurs.

Implied consent must not generally be relied upon as a basis for disclosure. Where a person seeks personal information as a representative or agent of another, then documentation confirming the scope of the agent's authority should be obtained before release of any personal information held by the University.

Previous provision of a privacy notice

Personal information may be disclosed where individuals have been informed of the usual practices for disclosure.

Other situations

In rare circumstances, disclosure of personal information may also be permitted where:

- disclosure is necessary to prevent or lessen an imminent and serious threat to a person's life or health;
- disclosure is required by law (for example, if the University's records are subpoenaed, or if there are statutory requirements to provide information to a government department such as the Australian Taxation Office, Centrelink, or Department of Education, Science and Training);

- disclosure is necessary for enforcement of criminal or other laws imposing penalties such as fines.

Any request or proposal to disclose personal information in these situations must only be undertaken in compliance with protocols issued by the Registrar, or following discussions with the Privacy Contact Officer confirming that disclosure is necessary and acceptable under privacy principles.

Register of graduates

Privacy principles do not apply to material which is maintained on a public register. Given that one of QUT's primary functions is to confer higher education degrees and awards, QUT maintains a register of its graduates (including of predecessor institutions) in the student management system. Information concerning a person's status as a graduate of the University is available to any member of the public upon formal request to the Student Business Services Department. The only details confirmed are the graduate's name (as recorded in QUT systems), the degree conferred or to be conferred and the date of conferral. QUT may charge a fee for this service.

No other personal information is regarded as being on a public register.

Student numbers and other unique identifiers

Student numbers are unique identifiers and they are used as the basis for recording a large amount of student information. To protect student privacy and to secure student information from unauthorised use or disclosure, student number information must not be published or made generally available in a way which links the number to a student's name, for example, by being printed on mailing labels which are sent through the post.

Similar principles apply to other unique identifiers such as staff or payroll numbers.

Access to and amendment of an individual's own record

Privacy principles entitle an individual to have access to the personal information which the University holds about them, and to amend it where it is inaccurate, incomplete, out-of-date or misleading. IS42 recognises that, in Queensland, these rights are dealt with in the Freedom of Information Act 1992 (FOI Act). QUT is however committed to providing, as far as practicable, an open environment which enables members of the QUT community to obtain access to their personal information without recourse to formal procedures contained in the FOI Act (see Freedom of Information policy - F/10.1). To achieve this, QUT has in place administrative procedures for information access by staff and students.

Privacy complaints

If an individual believes that QUT has not dealt with their personal information in accordance with IS42 or this policy, they may make a complaint to QUT. A complaint must be made in writing within six months from the date when the breach of privacy was suspected to have occurred. Complaints should be sent to the Privacy Contact Officer or referred to that officer if received by another area of the University.

The Privacy Contact Officer will refer the matter to the most appropriate senior officer to resolve the complaint. In the case of complaints regarding a staff member's conduct or actions, this will be the head of the organisational unit in which the staff member is employed. In other cases, the complaint may be referred to the head of the organisational unit having responsibility for the personal information to which the complaint relates.

Primary responsibility for investigating and responding to the complaint will rest with the senior officer, with advice from the Privacy Contact Officer as required. The University's main objective in responding to privacy complaints is to conciliate an outcome which is acceptable to the complainant and which addresses any broader or systemic privacy issues which may arise.

If a complainant does not agree with the University's response, an internal review process is available.

Monitoring of privacy complaints is undertaken via annual reporting as part of QUT's compliance program. For full details of procedures to be followed in managing privacy complaints, refer to the QUT Privacy Plan.

Contracts involving personal information

Contractual arrangements entered into by the University may involve access to or use of personal information owned or held by QUT. Typically these arrangements may outsource routine support functions, though some contractual arrangements may also relate to commercial research and consultancies.

Any contract which is entered into by the University must place appropriate safeguards on protection of personal privacy, since contractual arrangements do not alter or eliminate QUT's obligations for protection of personal information. It is the responsibility of the senior officer who has delegated authority to enter contracts and commercial arrangements, to ensure that privacy risks are adequately addressed and that QUT's privacy obligations are appropriately incorporated into the formal terms of the contract where necessary. For further information, refer to QUT's policy on management of contracts and MOUs (G/6.1). Queries concerning appropriate contractual provisions covering QUT's privacy obligations may be directed to the Privacy Contact Officer or the Office of Commercial Services.

Equal opportunity and diversity policy

QUT's vision, goals and organisational values (A/2.1) reflect a belief in the crucial role of knowledge in understanding and improving the human condition.

Consistent with its vision, goals and organisational values, QUT will infuse social justice philosophy and practices into all aspects of its activities. Such embedding enhances the University's core business, as well as enhancing the opportunities of disadvantaged students and staff.

Informed by global standards of justice and fairness (eg UN/ILO Conventions), the University's pursuit of social justice is underpinned by a commitment to equal opportunity and diversity.

Thus, QUT aims to:

- respect and protect the rights of its students and staff;
- promote a fair and inclusive educational and work environment;
- ensure its graduates possess a sense of social and ethical responsibility; and
- contribute to the social well-being of Brisbane, Australia and other nations.

Rights and responsibilities

All students and staff have individual rights

- to be treated fairly by the University and by each other; and
- to study and work in an environment free from discrimination and harassment.

To respect and protect these rights, QUT will

- educate and inform members of the University community about their rights and responsibilities (see QUT Code of conduct and QUT Student Charter);
- review and reform University practices to ensure they are inclusive and non-discriminatory; and
- administer grievance resolution procedures (see A/6.1).

Inclusive environment and culture

The student and staff body should reflect the cultural and social diversity of the community. Therefore, under-represented and disadvantaged groups will have particular outreach and recruitment strategies, especially students and staff who are Indigenous, low-income students, rural students, and students and staff with a disability.

All students and staff should experience a sense of belonging which arises from an inclusive learning and working environment which respects diversity. Therefore, learning experiences, on-campus services and administrative procedures for students, as well as career development and management practices for staff, will be fair.

With regard to equal opportunity, QUT acknowledges that treating all people in the same way does not necessarily result in fairness or equality. To promote equality of outcomes for staff and students, the University recognises that social disadvantage creates barriers to success, and that targeted attention to overcome these barriers is a necessary precursor to true equality. Thus, the University's equal opportunity activities encompass particular support and assistance measures for students and staff in equity groups at QUT.

The objective is for the pass rates, attrition rates and satisfaction levels of students in equity groups to be comparable with those of other students, and for promotion rates, resignation rates and satisfaction levels of staff in equity groups to be comparable with those of other staff.

Knowledge and community

As an institution whose core business is knowledge, QUT has a unique role to play in both the social justice knowledge and skills which graduates acquire, and the social justice aspects of research.

Graduates of QUT will have a sense of social and ethical responsibility, and an understanding of Indigenous and international perspectives (see C/4.3). QUT courses will be characterised by content, pedagogy and assessment embedded with Indigenous perspectives, inter-cultural perspectives, and an understanding of social justice. Students in their work-integrated learning and community engagement / service learning activities should have opportunities to engage with disadvantaged and marginalised communities.

Staff at QUT will ensure that their research activities include a positive impact on disadvantaged and marginalised groups in the broader community.

The University's community engagement activities will reflect its civic responsibility and be inclusive of culturally and socially diverse communities.

With regard to public policy, the University will contribute its knowledge, analytical skills and ideas through public debate and consultancies which include a social justice perspective.

Planning

To give effect to its social justice policy aspirations, QUT will infuse equity considerations into its planning, reporting and accountability arrangements. Priority issues, such as dealing with student poverty or supporting staff and students who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersexed or queer (LGBTIQ), will be determined from time to time.

Training and awareness-raising programs and appropriate resourcing will be available to inspire and enable staff and students to engage with social justice activities. Reward and recognition schemes will acknowledge the equity-related achievements of staff and students.

OVERVIEW

QUT's Built Environment and Engineering Faculty is all about changing and growing to better meet the needs of students, industry and the professions.

The real world does not stand still and neither do our courses. Industry partners and professional bodies are closely involved in our course development and are increasingly demanding graduates with more breadth and superior skills in dealing with clients and other professionals.

We work hard to ensure all courses are fully recognised or accredited both in Australia and overseas. Sometimes this puts limits on how much choice students have in what they study, but wherever possible we encourage you to broaden your core studies with subjects from across the Faculty or other QUT faculties.

Depending on your course, you can choose an eight unit second major or up to two four unit minors in another field. The Faculty has packaged up a range of second majors and minors that ensure you get a rich and meaningful depth of knowledge in a complementary area rather than skating over the surface of the discipline.

Undergraduate courses are grouped around three broad themes with course structures that maximise interaction:

Bachelor of Design

- Architecture
- Interior Design
- Industrial Design
- Landscape Architecture.

Bachelor of Urban Development

- Construction Management
- Property Economics
- Quantity Surveying
- Urban and Regional Planning
- Spatial Science.

Bachelor of Engineering

- Aerospace Avionics
- Civil
- Civil and Environmental
- Civil and Construction
- Electrical
- Infomechatronics
- Mechanical
- Medical
- Software.

These courses are supported by an extensive research base in the Faculty that is grouped around core themes of medical engineering, smart systems, sustainability and infrastructure. Our research focuses on problems that need to be solved and brings together brilliant people with diverse backgrounds to find new answers. The Faculty is a key player in QUT's research institutes for Sustainable Resources and Health and Biomedical Innovation.

The Faculty has formed partnerships with a range of high-profile organisations including Shell, Brisbane Airport Corporation, Brisbane City Council, CSIRO, QRAIL and Queensland Government. Our partners provide living laboratories for our research and bring their experience to bear through part-time teaching or hosting students undertaking internships and practicums.

A number of the professional bodies that accredit our courses set minimum requirements for practical experience that students must have achieved by the time they graduate. For example, Engineering students complete at least 60 days approved real-work experience and Spatial Science students must have 90 days of such experience. Students complete their work experience through the Faculty's Work Integrated Learning (WIL) programs which combine university study with real work experience.

Courses in Design and Urban Development can also include opportunities to work on real-world projects. Student work in planning and design regularly wins industry awards and competitions.

SENIOR STAFF

Faculty Office

Executive Dean: Professor M. Betts, BSc (Hons) Reading, PhD CNAAB, FCIIOB, FRICS, FIEAust, FRSA, CPEng

Assistant Dean, Teaching and Learning: Professor S. Savage, BArch (Hons) MArch Qld, DipAdultVocEd Griff.

Assistant Dean, Research: Professor J.M. Bell, BSc(Hons) Syd., PhD NSW, FIEAust, MAIP, CPEng

RESEARCH THEMES

Design

Design concentrates on investigation of people-systems-environments relationships and provides new knowledge and innovation beneficial to their users. Research in design fields improves the quality of work and life and brings social and economic advantages to the industry and community. Design incorporates research in:

- Architecture
- Industrial Design
- Interior Design
- Landscape Architecture
- Urban Design
- Centre for Subtropical Design

The theme is cross/inter – disciplinary related with relevant DESIGN fields and the other three Faculty Research Themes: Infrastructure, Smart Systems and Medical Engineering. It has links across the University community and Institutes – Institute for Health and Biomedical Innovation (IHBI), Institute for Creative Industries Innovation (iCi), Information Security Institute (ISI), Institute for Sustainable Resources and relevant Collaborative Research Centres (CRC) – ACID, Construction and Innovation and AHURI.

Research focus within the theme includes:

- Colour and light
- Cultural landscapes
- Design Education and Design Theory and Methodology
- Design Tools
- Human-Centred Design Research and Usability
- Person-Environment Studies
- Sustainable Systems
- Virtual prototyping

Medical Engineering

This Theme develops and promotes the use of engineering and technology, often in collaboration with surgeons, to provide new techniques, materials, devices, procedures and manufacturing techniques for medical devices. Medical Engineering is based largely on core mechanical and electrical engineering skills applied to problems in medicine. The applied research is built on a strong foundation of knowledge in biomechanics, fluid mechanics and automation and control, but incorporates knowledge in cell biology, human anatomy and physiology. New knowledge is being developed and applied to the full range of orthopaedic diseases and injury (such as knee and hip replacements, fractures and spinal deformities), other diseases such as heart failure, and to provide improved quality of life for people with disabilities. The Theme includes research in the following areas:

Orthopaedic and Trauma

Orthopaedics and Trauma Queensland incorporates programs of research collaboration with hospital partners. Key research is conducted in bone and cartilage diseases; bone and cartilage substitute systems; bone fracture healing; spinal surgical procedures; and osteoporotic bone and crush fractures.

Artificial Organs

This area of research investigates non-biological replacement organs, for example, artificial heart; congestive heart failure; and impaired function of other organs.

Compression Bandaging

This research project aims to gain a better understanding of the clinical application of pressure bandaging to develop improved bandaging techniques and clinical practice.

Smart Systems*Asset Management

Infrastructure research, in collaboration with industry, government and professions, aims to strengthen the nation's building and infrastructure systems. Research concentrates on investigating the performance of existing and new building and infrastructure systems under realistic structural and environmental loadings including those due to natural, accidental and man-made hazards. It uses smart materials, systems and technologies, and advanced computer analysis and test methods to assess and improve the performance of existing and new building and infrastructure systems.

Asset Management research focuses on innovative industry-directed research and development, education and commercialisation in an integrated approach to lifecycle physical asset management to meet present and future needs to ensure international competitiveness and sustainability of Australian industry. The overall research program will be focused on five main industry sectors: Defence, Water and Waste, Power Generation and Distribution, Extraction and Process, and Transport Infrastructure.

This research is closely aligned to the CRC for Construction Innovation and the CRC for Integrated Engineering Asset Management (CIEAM).

Robotics and Automation

The Robotics and Automation program is focused on world-class research on robotics and navigation systems for unmanned aerial vehicles, and involves collaboration with CSIRO and Boeing. However similar automation strategies and technologies are used in a variety of control applications such as energy network control, and in-fomechatronic systems, and satellites. Much of the work in this group will be conducted through the newly formed Australian Research Centre for Aerospace Automation (ARCAA).

Speech and Signal Processing

This program conducts internationally competitive research in order to solve practical problems, which enable Speech and Signal Processing to be applied in products and processes. Research focuses on, state-of-the-art speech audio and video technologies including speech/speaker recognition and personal identification technologies for forensic and security applications; speech coding for storage and communication; speech synthesis for voice response systems; audio compression for broadcasting, television and Internet applications, video compression, and image recognition and restoration. Researchers in this area are supported by the CRC for Advanced Automotive Technology and the Information Security Institute.

Infrastructure*Energy

The provision of sustainable energy supplies is of critical importance to the future of Australia, and this research involves experimental and theoretical research on solar cells, wind energy and solar thermal energy generation as well as fundamental research on energy supply networks, including distributed generation technology and energy policy. This research is conducted in collaboration with energy utilities and the Queensland Sustainable Energy Industry Development Group, and is a key component of the Institute for Sustainable Resources.

Water

The supply of fresh water and the quality of water supply are key issues facing Australia over the next 20 years, and this research looks at water re-use technology and policy. The research is practically focused with significant collaboration with local government and industry in South-East Queensland. Research in the Faculty links strongly with research in the Faculties through the i-water initiative of the Institute for Sustainable Resources.

Transport

The aim of this program is to focus research effort in the freight and logistics area with an emphasis on multi-modal transportation systems. The main research areas include freight vehicle impacts, freight and logistics e-business systems, freight corridor evaluation analysis, ITS applications in freight and logistics, emissions modelling, transit evaluation methodologies, rail track modelling and analysis, and intermodal terminal planning and operations.

Housing and Construction

This research makes contributions to improved practice in the specific areas of housing, urban planning, international project management, construction and property performance, construction information and procurement technologies, and property market choice, investments, constraints opportunities, internationalisation, taxation, lifecycles, risk and culture. Much of the research in this area is supported by the Australian Housing and Urban Research Institute, the CRC for Construction Innovation and the Construction Industry Institute of Australia.

Cooperative Research Centres (CRCs)

The faculty is also involved in the following Cooperative Research Centres (CRC) and externally-funded collaborative research ventures:

CRC for Construction Innovation

The Centre aims to create and commercially exploit tools, technologies and management systems to deliver innovative constructed assets of financial, environmental and social benefit to the community. The centre combines basic research with strategic research and development in five related programs: virtual environments for lifecycle design and construction; construction project delivery strategies; environmental sustainability; integrated design and construction support systems; and management, adaptability and the future of built assets.

CRC for Integrated Engineering Asset Management

The CRC for Integrated Engineering Asset Management (CIEAM) delivers capabilities and technologies for integrated and sustainable asset management to a wide range of Australian industries in both the private and the public sectors. CIEAM consists of leading edge researchers and practitioners focused on industry directed R&D and education in the management of Australia's major engineering assets in the Defence, Utilities (power, water and gas), Process and extraction, and Transportation industries. CIEAM involves five research program areas. These are Models and decision systems, Advanced sensors, Intelligent diagnostics and life prediction, Systems integration and IT, and Strategic human dimensions.

CRC for Railway Engineering and Technologies

The Centre aims through research to develop an internationally competitive, efficient and sustainable rail industry and to facilitate the development of an Australian export industry in railway technologies. Benefits will flow in terms of improved rail efficiency and infrastructure capacity, energy savings, reduced maintenance cost, and better asset utilisation. The main research areas include 'Smart train' intelligent systems; innovative/automated maintenance and upgrading technologies; optimal traffic control and scheduling; IT systems and standards for rail management; new materials, systems and components for railways; and industry skills development (education and training).

CRC for Advanced Automotive Technology

The CRC for Advanced Automotive Technology brings the automotive industry together with researchers in design, engineering and manufacturing to enhance the industry's international competitiveness. The aim of the research is to reduce the concept-to-product cycle times; improve manufacturing flexibility and efficiency; and the development of new material systems to meet the challenges of weight reduction, increased safety and greater functionality. The CRC will also improve vehicle safety through improvements in the crash worthiness of vehicles and new intelligent products/systems that provide increased comfort, performance and entertainment.

Australian Housing and Urban Institute (AHURI)

The Institute is a consortium of CSIRO Division of Building, Construction and Engineering; Queensland University of Technology; University of Queensland; Monash University; and Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology (RMIT). Its broad objective is to conduct research into issues in housing and urban fields in Australia and the Asia-Pacific region.

Centre for Subtropical Design

The Centre for Subtropical Design is a collaboration between QUT, the Brisbane City Council and the Office of Urban Management, focussing on sustainable development of the subtropical urban environment. This Centre will promote high quality planning, design and development that responds to the City of Brisbane and South-East Queensland region's cultural, landscape, and climatic characteristics in ways that are sustainable and enhance the enjoyment of the region's subtropical lifestyle.

Queensland Sustainable Energy Industry Development Group

This group, formed in 2004 by QUT, the University of Queensland, Central Queensland University, Stanwell Corporation, CS Energy, and the Queensland Conservation Council, is continuing the work of the Australian CRC for Renewable Energy in areas of energy policy, training for the sustainable energy industry (supply and use), and renewable energy technology.

Australian Centre for Tropical Crops and Biocommodities

This Centre is the research division of the former Sugar Research Institute which transferred to QUT in July 2005. This Centre conducts research into the post-harvest processing and economics of sugar cane and has a particular expertise in milling technology (mechanical engineering and computational fluid dynamics modelling), separation science, and total biomass utilisation, in particular the transformation of sugar cane waste into biofuels (ethanol) and biopolymers to provide renewable fuels and industrial chemicals.

Australian Research Centre for Aerospace Automation (ARCAA)

ARCAA was formed in 2006 as a collaboration between CSIRO and QUT to promote the safe and efficient operation of Unmanned Vehicles in controlled airspace. The Centre is constructing a new research facility at Brisbane Airport where major programs on UAV navigation and collision avoidance, risk management and applications of UAV technology in areas as diverse as border security, vegetation management, and disaster recovery will be conducted.

Medical Engineering Research Facility (MERF)

The Medical Engineering Research Facility is a new $10 million facility being constructed at the Prince Charles Hospital to provide state-of-the-art research and education facilities in orthopaedic research.

Australasian CRC for Interaction Design (ACID)

ACID is the leader in research and development in interaction design – using new technologies to work, live, learn and play. It builds on the strengths of more than 20 educational and corporate partners and is active internationally through new industry and university partnerships. ACID's research themes – Virtual Heritage, Smart Living, Digital Media, Multi-User Environments and New Models of Advertising for Interactive Television – build connections between consumers and industry, content and application developers, software system developers and hardware manufacturers.

Construction Industry Institute of Australia (CIIA)

The Construction Industry Institute, Australia (CIIA) gives members the opportunity to access worldwide leading edge research and implement outcomes before others. Its vision is to create national wealth through innovative design, construction, engineering and management of sustainable built assets. The CIIA's mission to undertake applied research, implementation and research training in the engineering, construction and property industries for the purpose of advancing knowledge, creating national wealth and providing a competitive advantage to Australian business in the national and international market place. The CIIA believes that wealth creation and industry improvement can best be achieved by collaboration between all parties involved in the project delivery process. Applied research projects are used as the bridge to bring together the participant, particularly clients and service providers, to generate creative ideas and undertake leading edge research that results in major breakthroughs which add significant value to members and Australian industry. The CIIA is part of an international network of similar institutes based at universities in the United States, Europe and Australia and more recently, in South East Asia. The goal of these Institutes is to undertake research to create value and stimulate industry change, and create a work environment that fosters innovation. They achieve this by bringing together researchers and industry participants in multi-disciplinary task forces focussing on programs of applied research and by providing their members with a forum for local, regional and international debate. The Institutes also collaborate with a wide range of sister research organisations across the world.

□ Notes for BEE undergraduate courses

Course progression

It is important that students follow as normal a progression through their courses as possible. Units should be taken in an orderly sequence as set out in published course structures. Units failed should be repeated or taken again in the next semester that they are offered (usually the following year). Prerequisite units must normally be passed before a student may proceed to a further unit which has the prerequisite so specified. The course coordinator should be consulted regarding variations from the course structure. Students who have failed units, or have doubts about having the necessary background to proceed, should seek the advice of the course coordinator.

Limit of Grades of 3

From Semester 1, 2009, grades of 3 will be considered failing grades across all QUT Faculties and courses. Continuing students in 2009 may have grades of 3 designated as conceded passes on their academic record. In this case, continuing students enrolled in courses with the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering can achieve a maximum of 12.5% of total course credit points at a grade of 3. Please note that any grades of 3 achieved from Semester 1, 2009 onwards will count as failing grades and will not contribute to the maximum allowable proportion of conceded passes.

Supplementary assessment

Supplementary assessment is provided to support transition into University and transition into the workplace. Supplementary assessment is a new item of assessment designed to assist students to complete the requirements for their qualification. Students who successfully complete their supplementary assessment requirements will be awarded a minimum passing grade (grade of 4).

Please note the following:

- No more than four supplementary assessments will be available to students in their entire course of study.
- Students may be granted one supplementary assessment in a core or mandatory unit in the first 96 credit points of an undergraduate course. To be eligible, students must have obtained passing grades in all units other than that in which the supplementary assessment is sought.
- Students may be granted up to two supplementary assessments in the final 96 credit points of study, at the Faculty's discretion, for coursework programs of three or more years full-time duration or equivalent; and one supplementary assessment in the final 48 credit points for coursework programs of less than three years full-time duration or equivalent.
- Students may be granted supplementary assessment in a limited number of other cases where a final grade of 3 has been achieved.
- Supplementary assessment will not be granted to students who have been graded 1 (Low Fail) or K (Withdrawn Failure).

Students are responsible for making applications for supplementary assessment.

Awards with honours

Honours may be awarded to graduands of the following courses:

- DE40 Bachelor of Design

- EN40 Bachelor of Engineering
- UD40 Bachelor of Urban Development
- AR48 Bachelor of Architecture
- All pre-2005 four-year Bachelor of Engineering courses
- All five-year double degrees with the Bachelor of Engineering
- The four-year Bachelor of Applied Science courses in Construction Management, Quantity Surveying and Property Economics.
- All pre-2005 four-year Bachelor of Surveying courses.

First class honours, second class honours division A and second class honours division B may be awarded. Candidates for a degree with honours must fulfil the requirements for a pass degree and achieve a standard of proficiency in all course units is determined by the Faculty Academic Board and approved by University Academic Board.

Eligibility for honours

Eligibility for awards with honours is not affected by the time taken to complete a course. However, to be eligible for such an award, a graduand must have completed the course within the maximum number of calendar years specified in the Student Rules. Three- and four-year (full-time) courses must be completed in ten years. Combined (double) degree courses must be completed in eleven years. Time limits are measured in calendar years from the first day of the first semester in which the student was enrolled and include periods of interruption such as leave of absence. In addition, to be eligible for an award with honours, a graduand must have been enrolled in the course at QUT for at least two years of full-time study or its equivalent.

Honours based on grade point average

The Built Environment and Engineering Academic Board has resolved that awards with honours for students graduating post-1992 will be based on grades achieved by students throughout the whole of their course as determined by the Grade Point Average (GPA) calculation.

The GPA calculation includes all attempts at units which are awarded a numeric grade, or the result 'Withdrawn — Failure' (which is converted to a grade of 1).

Students obtaining a GPA of 6.0 or greater will normally qualify for the award of first class honours. Students obtaining a GPA of 5.5 to 5.99 will normally qualify for the award of second class honours division A. Students obtaining a GPA of 5.0 to 5.49 will normally qualify for the award of second class honours division B.

Students enrolled in double degrees must obtain the required GPA in the Engineering degree component to be eligible for BEE Honours.

Awards with distinction

Awards 'with distinction' may be awarded to graduands of the three-year single degree courses and the graduate diploma courses undertaken in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering. Candidates for a degree 'with distinction' must fulfil the requirements for a pass degree and achieve a standard of proficiency in all course units is determined by the Faculty Academic Board and approved by the University Academic Board.

Eligibility for 'With Distinction'

Eligibility for awards with distinction is not affected by the time taken to complete a course. However, to be eligible for such an award, a graduand must have completed the course within the maximum number of calendar years specified in the Student Rules. Three-year (full-time) courses must be completed in ten years. Time limits are measured in calendar years from the first day of the first semester in which the student was enrolled and include periods of interruption such as leave of absence. In addition, to be eligible for an award with distinction, a graduand must have completed at least 50% of the total credit points required for the course at QUT.

Distinction based on grade point average

The Built Environment and Engineering Academic Board has resolved that awards 'with distinction' will be based on grades achieved by students throughout the whole of their course as determined by the grade point average calculation.

The GPA calculation includes all attempts at units which are awarded a numeric grade, or the result 'Withdrawn — Failure' (which is converted to a grade of 1).

Students obtaining a GPA of 5.5 or greater will normally qualify for the award of with distinction.

Dean's list

The Dean's List comprises students who have achieved a GPA of 6.50 or more within a semester. These students receive a certificate in recognition of their achievement.

Use of calculators in examinations

Restrictions apply on the use of calculators in examinations. Students should consult their unit coordinator for details.

Field trips

Attendance at field trips or field projects in engineering and surveying/mapping courses is compulsory.

Personal Protection Equipment (PPE) Policy

Protective equipment refers to safety glasses/goggles, hearing protection, safety boots, gloves and similar items. While all care is taken to reduce the risks to which students are exposed, protective equipment will be required to be worn in some practical sessions and field excursions. Students are required to wear PPE where and when it has been made clear that it is needed. Students are required to provide certain PPE as indicated by each School within the Faculty.

Students enrolled in units specified by the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be required to wear safety shoes for most laboratory practicals and/or field trips. Students not wearing appropriate safety shoes on these occasions will be barred from (i) participating in activities in these units, and (ii) submitting any assessment associated with these activities. Students must provide their own safety shoes, safety glasses/goggles and hearing protection equipment.

All students are bound by the Queensland Workplace Health and Safety Act. In this respect, students carrying out their final year projects will be required to do a risk assessment of such projects, including risk management and control to prevent incident and accidents.

Industrial experience for DE40 Bachelor of Design (Architectural Studies) (students who commenced 2006 and after)

Graduates of DE40 Bachelor of Design (Architectural Studies) will be subject to a GPA requirement to qualify for entry to the postgraduate course DE80 Master of Architecture. Graduates who successfully complete both degrees (DE40 and DE80) will meet the academic requirements for membership of the Australian Institute of Architects (AIA). Successful graduates of both degrees (DE40 and DE80) who have completed a minimum of 2 years' practical experience, of which at least one year is postgraduate experience, will be eligible to undertake the Architectural Practice Examination, which (if successful) will enable the graduate to be eligible for registration with any Board of Architects in Australia.

Graduates of DE40 Bachelor of Design (Architectural Studies) will also meet the academic (technical) requirement for the Building Design Licence with the Queensland Building Services Authority.

Students will have the opportunity of undertaking a minor or major in Work Integrated Learning (WIL), or taking BEB701 Work-Integrated Learning 1 as part of any Faculty-wide second major or minor, which will count towards their practical experience.

Industrial experience requirements for EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (students who commenced 2006 and after)

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering must obtain at least 60 days of approved industrial experience/practice in an engineering environment as part of BEB701 Work Integrated Learning in Year 3 or 4.

Bachelor of Engineering (Aerospace Avionics) students are required to obtain 10 days specialist experience in the avionics industry. This is included in the 60 days industrial experience (WIL) requirement.

Industrial experience requirements for UD40 Bachelor of Urban Development (Students who commenced 2006 and after)

- A candidate for the degree Bachelor of Urban Development (Spatial Science) must obtain at least 90 days of industrial experience (WIL) in a surveying environment as part of BEB701 Work Integrated Learning.
- A candidate for the degree Bachelor of Urban Development (Quantity Surveying) must obtain at least 100 days of approved industrial experience (WIL) as part of BEB701 Work Integrated Learning.
- A student in the Bachelor of Urban Development (Construction Management) seeking professional registration will be required to undertake specified minors that will involve 100 days of industrial experience (WIL) as part of BEB701 Work Integrated Learning.
- A student in the Bachelor of Urban Development (Urban and Regional Planning) seeking professional registration is strongly encouraged to complete the Faculty Applications minor that will involve a minimum of 14 days industrial experience (WIL) as part of BEB701 Work Integrated Learning.

Industrial experience for Engineering and Surveying/Mapping courses (students who commenced prior to 2006)

Industrial Experience forms part of the requirements of engineering and surveying degree courses, in order to provide a realistic background for formal academic studies and to ensure that students become effectively balanced in their professional development. For engineering students, it is a requirement of the Institution of Engineers, Australia, for graduate membership. Industrial Experience is usually undertaken during the long vacation or the mid-semester recess as an employee of a private firm, government agency or local authority, but can also be accumulated as employment during semester.

Candidates must submit a report no later than the fourth week of the semester, following each period of Industrial Experience. The report is to be written in the required format describing work carried out during the period of Industrial Experience. An Industrial Experience Record Form signed by the employer is also to be submitted. Industrial Experience Record Forms.

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Technology (Civil) must obtain at least 45 days of industrial experience in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Technology (Mechanical) must obtain at least 50 days of industrial experience approved by the course coordinator.

Bachelor of Engineering students must obtain at least 60 days of Industrial Experience in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Bachelor of Engineering (Aerospace Avionics) students are required to obtain 10 days specialist experience in the avionics industry. This is included in the 60 days industrial experience requirement.

Bachelor of Surveying students must obtain at least 90 days of industrial experience in a surveying environment approved by the course coordinator.

Industrial Experience information can be obtained from any of the BEE Student Services Counters listed below:

- S Block, Level 10, Rm S1031 (School of Engineering Systems)
- L Block, Level 2, Rm L220 (School of Urban Development)
- D Block, Level 1 Resource Centre, Rm D-107 (School of Design).

Enrolment in industrial experience

Surveying/mapping and Engineering students enrolled in courses other than EN40 or UD40 should not formally enrol in industrial experience.

Industrial experience requirements for Bachelor of Architecture (AR48) course

A Bachelor of Architecture student must be engaged in approved employment for at least 72 recognised weeks within the last 2-3 years of the course (ADB796 Practice Experience B). Prior to entering Year 4 Semester 1 students enrolled in the full-time course structure, must have completed 20 recognised weeks of approved employment which will be credited to the requirements of Practice Experience B. Students enrolled in the flexible full-time course structure must be engaged in approved employment for at least 48 recognised weeks within the first 3 years of the course (ADB795 Practice Experience A). Flexible full-time students enrol in ADB795 Practice Experience A in second semester of third year. All students enrol in ADB796 Practice Experience B in the second semester of the final year of the course.

Approved employment means working under the direction of an architect who is registered at the place of practice where the experience is obtained.

A recognised week is 5 days actually worked (7.6 hrs per day with a maximum of 42 hours per week). The minimum period with one employer is 8 weeks.

Allied experience can be obtained in approved areas allied to architecture (eg, Civil Engineering, Interior Design, Industrial Design, Quantity Surveying, Construction Management, Town Planning, Landscape Architecture, Building, etc). The maximum period of allied experience is 12 recognised weeks in ADB795 and 18 recognised weeks in ADB796.

Prior work experience under the direction of a registered architect before enrolment in the course is accepted up to a maximum of 24 weeks in ADB795 and a maximum of 36 weeks in ADB796.

Approved employment during leave of absence is accepted (a) in ADB795 up to a maximum of 24 recognised weeks and (b) in ADB796 after completion of at least one semester of fourth year and prior approval of the course coordinator up to a maximum of 36 recognised weeks.

Reporting each month is required on the electronic logbook. Students without access to the electronic logbook system are to contact the course coordinator who will establish the reporting arrangements for their work experience. The electronic logbook automatically produces the AACA log-sheets required in ADB796.

Credited employment period only counts once (eg, period required for ADB795 cannot also be used for the 20 week period for entry in the last 2 years full-time mode). The employment period of ADB795 for students admitted directly into the third year of the flexible full-time course is 24 recognised weeks and the employment period of ADB796 for students admitted directly into the last year of the course is one year (52 recognised weeks).

Types of experience required:

- ADB795 Practice Experience A
At least 50% of time in undertaking design and/or documentation duties.
- ADB796 Practice Experience B
(a) At least 50% of time in undertaking design and documentation duties.
(b) Provide the following experiences on the electronic AACA log sheets:
  - contract documentation experience (AACA element 2.2.2); and
  - preliminary site investigation and evaluation of at least one project during the last 2-3 years of the course (AACA element 3.1.2); and
  - some aspect of the administration of the project contract of at least one project during the last 2-3 years of the course which can be 'observer' status where direct experience is unavailable (AACA element 3.3.1).

□ Notes for BEE postgraduate courses

Course progression

It is important that students follow as normal a progression through their courses as possible. Units should be taken in an orderly sequence as set out in published course structures. Units failed should be repeated or taken again in the next semester they are offered (usually the following year). Prerequisite units must normally be passed before a student may proceed to a further unit which has the prerequisite so specified. The course coordinator should be consulted regarding variations from the course structure. This is considered to be a major concession. Students who have failed units or have doubts about having the necessary background to proceed should seek the advice of the course coordinator.

Supplementary assessment

Supplementary assessment is provided to support transition into the workplace. Supplementary assessment is a new item of assessment designed to assist students to complete the requirements for their qualification. Students who successfully complete their supplementary assessment requirements will be awarded a minimum passing grade (grade of 4).

Please note the following:

- No more than four supplementary assessments will be available to students in their entire course of study.
- Students may be granted up to one supplementary assessment in their final 48 credit points of study, at the Faculty's discretion, for coursework programs of less than three years full-time duration or equivalent.
- Students may be granted supplementary assessment in a limited number of other cases where a final grade of 3 has been achieved.
- Supplementary assessment will not be granted to students who have been graded 1 (Low Fail) or K (Withdrawn Failure).

Students are responsible for making applications for supplementary assessment.

Awards with distinction

Awards 'with distinction' may be awarded to graduands of graduate diploma courses undertaken in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering. Candidates for a graduate diploma 'with distinction' must fulfil the requirements for a pass degree and achieve a standard of proficiency in all course units as is determined by the Faculty Academic Board and approved by the University Academic Board.

Eligibility for 'With Distinction'

Eligibility for awards 'with distinction' is not affected by the time taken to complete a course. However, to be eligible for such an award, a graduand must have completed the course within the maximum number of calendar years in the Student Rules. Time limits are measured in calendar years from the first day of the first semester in which the student was enrolled and include periods of interruption such as leave of absence. In addition, to be eligible for an award with distinction, a graduand must have completed at least 50% of the total credit points required for the course at QUT.

Personal Protection Equipment (PPE) Policy

Protective equipment refers to safety glasses/goggles, hearing protection, safety boots, gloves and similar items. While all care is taken to reduce the risks to which students are exposed, protective equipment will be required to be worn in some practical sessions and field excursions.

Students are required to wear PPE where and when it has been made clear that it is needed. Students are required to provide certain PPE as indicated by each School within the Faculty.

Students enrolled in units specified by the faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be required to wear safety shoes for most laboratory practicals and/or field trips. Students not wearing appropriate safety shoes on these occasions will be barred from (i) participating in activities in these units, and (ii) submitting any assessment associated with these activities. Students must provide their own safety shoes, safety glasses/goggles and hearing protection equipment.

Bachelor of Architecture (AR48)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: No

CRICOS code: 052308E

Course duration (full-time): 5 years full-time

Domestic fees (indicative): 2009: Full fee tuition $8,250 per semester (indicative); CSP rate 2009 available July 2008

Domestic Entry: February

International Entry: February

QTAC code: 412372; Dfee: 412376

Past rank cut-off: 90. Admission to this course is based on prior study entry requirements in addition to a rank. Please refer to Additional Admission Information. Dfee places were not offered last year.

OP Guarantee: Yes

Total credit points: 480

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Ms Sheona Thomson

Discipline coordinator: Mr Paul Sanders

Campus: Gardens Point

Additional Admission Information

The AR48 Bachelor of Architecture course has been replaced by DE40 Bachelor of Design (Architectural Studies) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the AR48 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are not required to lodge an academic credit form, as academic credit will be awarded by QUT before the census date of your first teaching period.

After being awarded this credit and if you wish to seek for additional academic credit, you are then required to lodge an Application for Academic Credit form for that additional credit by the due date and subject QUT rules .

International Students Course Structure - 6 years

International students enrol in the full time course structure for years 1 - 3 and the flexible full time structure for years 4 - 6. Prior to entering year 4, students may seek approval from the course coordinator to enrol in the full time course structure allowing them to complete in 5 years. To be eligible for the full time course structure (years 4-5), students must have completed 20 recognised weeks of approved employment which will be credited to the requirements of the unit Practical Experience B."

Early Exit Option

Students may elect to complete their studies after three years full-time (288 credit points). Students who select this option will graduate with The Bachelor of Built Environment (Architectural Studies), which is a pre-professional degree in architecture.

Professional Recognition

Graduates of the Bachelor of Architecture degree meet the academic requirements for membership of the Royal Australian Institute of Architects and, following one year of post-graduate architectural experience, are eligible to undertake the registration examinations of the Board of Architects of Queensland.

Special course requirements

A Bachelor of Architecture student must be engaged in approved employment for at least 72 recognised weeks within the last 2-3 years of the course (ADB796 Practice Experience B). Prior to entering Year 4 Semester 1 students enrolled in the full time course structure, must have completed 20 recognised weeks of approved employment which will be credited to the requirements of Practice Experience B. Students enrolled in the flexible full-time course structure must be engaged in approved employment for at least 48 recognised weeks within the first 3 years of the course (ADB795 Practice Experience A).

Career Outcomes

Industrial designers create and produce commercial and industrial products to improve peoples' lives. They make models and prototypes of designs that cover a wide range of manufactured goods from toasters to computer terminals to rapid transport systems. When designing new or improving existing products they must consider factors influencing product design such as useability, costs, materials, technology or environment. They research product usage, make detailed drawings and supervise the construction of prototypes for testing. They mainly work in small business or consulting practices. QUT Industrial Design graduates are working worldwide in places such as the UK, Singapore and France.

Overview

Students in this course develop their capacity to contribute to the design of products and systems for the mutual benefit of users and manufacturers of a wide range of products.

Professional Recognition

Graduates of the Bachelor of Built Environment (Industrial Design) who go on to complete the Graduate Diploma in Industrial Design are eligible for associate membership of the Design Institute of Australia. QUT is an Educational Member of the International Council of Societies of Industrial Design (ICSID).

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals

48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit points required for course completion. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Interior Designers plan and execute the layout, finishes, lighting, fittings and furnishings in domestic interior design, retail and entertainment industry design, hospitality industry design, commercial office and corporate design. Interior designers may work as consultants or with a design company. They may also seek work involving production design for film, television and theatre as well as furniture and exhibition design. There is a trend for Australian interior design companies to practice in South East Asia and bid competitively for international commissions.

Overview

Students undertaking this course receive a general background in studies in built environment combined with a series of experiences exercises relating to basic design & specifically to interior design.

Professional Recognition

Successful completion of the Bachelor of Built Environment (Interior Design) satisfies the requirements for entry into the Graduate Diploma in Interior Design. Together the courses are recognised by the Design Institute of Australia as meeting the basic requirements for professional practice.

Minors

Career Outcomes

Landscape architecture is predominantly a young profession with an increasing number of female practitioners. Sixty per cent of the profession is employed in private consultancies of landscape architects, architects, planners, urban designers and engineers. They are engaged primarily in site planning, site design, planting design and, to a lesser degree, landscape planning. Other opportunities for employment occur in the design sectors of government agencies. Some graduates work freelance on a contractual basis.

Overview

This course provides a broad based education for those seeking a career in landscape architecture. Landscape design forms the core of the course, and theory and problem-solving techniques enhance the development of students' capabilities.

Professional Recognition

Successful performance in the Bachelor of Built Environment (Landscape Architecture) enables students to gain entry to the Graduate Diploma/Master courses. The Graduate Diploma in Landscape Architecture is the only course of its kind in Queensland, and is accredited by the Australian Institute of Landscape Architects (AILA). Graduates from the Graduate Diploma or Master of Landscape Architecture are recognised in New Zealand and Hong Kong and overseas generally through their AILA membership.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. ### Career Outcomes

Urban and Regional Planners develop plans and policies for the use of land and resources. They aim to fulfil the social, cultural economic and environmental needs of the community. There are numerous employment opportunities can found in state and local government departments, with private sector planning consultants and land development enterprises. Graduates can build careers in urban design, community health and welfare, housing, transport, and strategic land-use planning, and land and resource development.

Overview

Urban and regional planning involves environmental design, map and aerial photo interpretation, human environment, land use generation, population and urban studies, economics of town planning, employment and industry, land development, demography and housing, and provision of community facilities.

Professional Recognition

Successful completion of the Bachelor of Built Environment (Urban and Regional Planning) enables students to gain entry to the Graduate Diploma/Masters in Urban and Regional Planning, which are both fully accredited by the Planning Institute of Australia (PIA).

Entry Requirements

A four-year degree in an appropriate discipline with Honours or equivalent qualification or a graduate diploma or masters degree in an appropriate discipline with a minimum grade point average of 5 with relevant experience or professional experience and/or other qualifications.

Part-time Study

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Overview

From this research degree you acquire advanced knowledge of applied science research methods, applied to research problems in the built environment. As well as mastering relevant techniques, you can expect to develop high-level skills in investigation and critical thinking and extensive knowledge in a specialist area. Specialisations are available in Architecture, Interior Design, Industrial Design, Construction Management, Quantity Surveying, Property Economics, Project Management, Planning, Landscape Architecture and Surveying. Our Faculty staff are available to discuss your application with you. You are encouraged to approach them early in the development of the research proposal that forms part of your application. Master by Research studies normally include:

- * assessed coursework
- * participation in university scholarly activities such as research seminars, teaching and publication
- * regular meetings with supervisors
- * a program of supervised research and investigation
- * preparation of a thesis.

Fees

Australian students enrolling after August 31 2000 in a higher degree by research are subject to the conditions of the Commonwealth Government's Research Training Scheme (RTS). Research Students who enrol at QUT will be awarded an RTS place, which is funded by the Commonwealth, or a QUT Research Training Award Scheme (RTA) place, which is a fee remission scholarship.

Research Masters students are entitled to two years full-time equivalent study under these schemes. Students who exceed this entitlement may apply to QUT for an extension, however the University may charge fees for the period of the program which exceeds the student's entitlement. The University determines the fee level.

1 - General Conditions

1.1 The Council of the Queensland University of Technology was established in 1989 under the Queensland University of Technology Act 1988.

1.2 The Council's power to approve recommendations from Faculty Academic Boards regarding the registration, supervision and examination of research degree candidates and to develop policy and procedures relating to research degrees is exercised through a University Research Committee which is a subcommittee of University Academic Board.

1.3 University Research Committee has delegated responsibility for day-to-day administration of research masters degree courses to faculty academic boards. Academic boards shall report biannually to University Research Committee on progress made by Research Masters degree candidates.

1.4 This program is administered by the Academic Board of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering through its Faculty Research Committee. The program is offered in Architecture, Civil Engineering, Construction Management, Electrical and Electronic Systems Engineering, Industrial Design, Interior Design, Landscape Architecture, Mechanical, Manufacturing Engineering and Medical Engineering, Property Economics, Planning and Surveying.

1.5 In order to qualify for the award of the degree of Master of Applied Science (Research) or Master of Engineering a candidate must:

- * have completed the approved program involving advanced work under the supervision of a Thesis Panel prescribed by the Faculty Research Committee of the Built Environment and Engineering Academic Board
- * have submitted, and the Faculty Research Committee accepted a thesis, together with reports and/or documents where applicable, prepared under the supervision of the Thesis Panel
- * have completed such other work as may be prescribed by the Faculty Research Committee, and
- * submit to the Faculty Research Committee a declaration signed by the candidate that they have not been a candidate for another tertiary award without permission of the Faculty Research Committee.

2 - Registration

2.1 Applications shall be accepted subject to the availability of facilities and supervision.

2.2 Applications may be lodged with the Registrar at any time.

2.3 There is a six-month maximum period for domestic students and nine months for international students, between acceptance by the Faculty Research Committee and enrolment by the candidate in the Master of Applied Science (Research) or Master of Engineering before the offer of admission to the program lapses. Candidates are required to complete an enrolment form each semester.

A Note Regarding Enrolment

The Faculty and Student Services are to be advised of any changes to name, address or other personal details. Application to vary any aspect of the candidacy must be made in writing directly to the Faculty Research Committee for Built Environment and Engineering and be endorsed by the principal supervisor.

2.4 The minimum academic qualifications for admission to the Master of Applied Science (Research) or Master of Engineering are:

- * a four-year degree in an appropriate discipline in which the candidate has received at least second class Honours from the Queensland University of Technology, or
- * a qualification judged equivalent by the Faculty Research Committee, or
- * a grade point average of 5.0 or better in a graduate diploma program, in a relevant discipline, together with demonstrated potential for further study and/or evidence of professional standing, or
- * a grade point average of 5.0 or better in a coursework masters degree program in a relevant discipline, together with demonstrated potential for further study and/or evidence of professional standing.

An applicant for the Master of Applied Science (Research) or Master of Engineering program without the minimum entry requirement may present a case for admission based on the submission of evidence of qualifications which demonstrate the applicant's capacity to pursue the course of study.

The case may be based on the following:

- (a) three years professional experience in the general field in which the proposed work lies, or
- (b) satisfactory completion of an appropriate Masters qualifying program including formal coursework and/or reading program in related fields stipulated by the Faculty Research Committee, or
- (c) the submission of technical publications or other appropriate evidence which satisfies the Faculty Research Committee that advanced knowledge has been acquired in a branch of applied science relevant to the built environment or a division of engineering in which the applicant has worked as a professional practitioner in a position of responsibility. This knowledge should be relevant to the field of study proposed.

2.5 A candidate will be eligible to be registered as a graduate student if they are considered by Faculty Research Committee to meet the requirements for entry.

2.6 A candidate shall receive confirmed registration as a graduate student when they:

- * have satisfied the requirements for admission and achieved by work and study a standard recognised by Faculty Research Committee, or
- * have satisfied Faculty Research Committee that they are a suitable person to undertake the program, and
- * have satisfied Faculty Research Committee that they can devote sufficient time to the research and study.

2.7 In considering an applicant for registration, the Faculty Research Committee shall, in addition to assessing the applicant's suitability, be satisfied that:

- * the proposed program is relevant to the aims and objectives of the University
- * the proposed program has relevance to the needs of society or industry, and
- * adequate resources are available to support the proposed program.

2.8 An application for registration should set out systematically and fully the candidates intended course of study including the following:

- * a description of the area of study within which the candidates course lies
- * a summary of the work to be undertaken, the proposed title of the thesis to be written, the aim of the proposed program, its background, the significance and possible application of the research program, and the research plan
- * the location at which the work will be undertaken, the amount of time which will be devoted to it and the resources required
- * details of academic qualifications and supporting evidence, including copies of results for each year of courses undertaken
- * a brief account of industrial experience
- * a list of publications
- * sponsorship details
- * statement of approval by Head of School and/or Postgraduate Research Coordinator, and
- * any other relevant material.

2.9 The program is offered on a full-time or a part-time basis and may be undertaken externally. Part-time students normally will be employed in some professional capacity during the day and carry out their research projects on a part-time basis at QUT, in their place of employment or in a sponsoring organisation.

2.10 Full-time students may be on a scholarship from industry or QUT, and may carry out their research at QUT or in a sponsoring organisation. Normally full-time students would be expected to work on their research projects at QUT for not less than three-quarters of a normal working week, averaged over each year of candidacy. Such a candidate may not devote more than 300 hours annually to teaching activities, including preparation and marking.

2.11 A candidate may be based at QUT or at a place of employment or sponsoring institution. Normally, support of the sponsoring institution for the candidate's application is required for registration. A candidate may also be external where their residence is outside of Brisbane.

2.12 The Faculty Research Committee may cancel a candidate's registration if, after consulting a candidate's supervisor and having taken account of all relevant circumstances, the committee is of the opinion that the candidate either has effectively discontinued their studies or has no reasonable expectation of completing the course of study within the maximum time allowed (see Section 4).

2.13 A candidate whose registration has lapsed or has been cancelled, and who wishes subsequently to re-enter the course of study to pursue a research program which is substantially the same as the previous investigation may be re-admitted under such conditions as the Faculty Research Committee shall prescribe.

3 - Course of Study

3.1 A candidate for the degree of Master of Applied Science (Research) or Master of Engineering will undertake a program of research and investigation on a topic approved by the Faculty Research Committee.

3.2 All projects should be supported by outside agencies such as industry, government authorities and professional organisations, or by QUT itself. This provision is to ensure that programs are relevant to the aims of the University and the community. It is important that projects be primarily directed towards society or industry need.

3.3 The program must be such as to enable the candidate to develop and demonstrate a level of scientific competence significantly higher than that expected of a first degree graduate. The required competence normally would include mastery of relevant techniques, investigatory skills, critical thinking, and a high level of knowledge in the specialist area.

3.4 Where advised, a candidate may be required to complete satisfactorily a program of formal coursework in subjects relevant to the field of study up to a total class contact of 32 credit points.

3.5 The course of study normally will include:

- * participation in University scholarly activities such as research seminars, teaching and publication

- * regular face-to-face interactions with supervisors, and

- * a program of supervised research, design, investigation, development, construction, or any combination thereof.

The course of study may also include a program of assessed coursework.

3.6 Coursework at masters level demands a capacity for critical analysis and a specialisation of research interests not normally appropriate for an undergraduate program. Such coursework may be conducted in a number of ways:

- * as advanced lecture courses

- * as seminars in which faculty and candidates present critical studies of selected problems within the subject field

- * as independent study or reading courses, or

- * as research projects conducted under faculty supervision.

Candidates will be encouraged to attend conferences where these are related to the field of the research.

In all cases, coursework will be based upon a formal syllabus setting out the educational outcomes expected from the course, a list of topics to be covered, the prescribed reading material and the method of assessment of progress through and at the end of the course.

3.7 Maximum and Minimum Coursework Requirements:

Thesis - 96 credit points minimum (at least two-thirds of the degree content)

- * Maximum coursework requirement - 32 credit points

- * Minimum coursework requirement - 4 credit points - IFN001 Advanced Information Retrieval Skills

- * Maximum of 16 credit points per semester for each semester of the program

- * Additional Requirements:

Attendance and participation in School of Research Centre seminars/workshops (compulsory).

Students must contact the Postgraduate Research Coordinator in their School to finalise any other coursework component of their program.

4 - Period of Time for Completion of Course of Study

4.1 The duration of study will normally be a minimum of one year and a maximum of two years or the part-time equivalent.

4.2 In order to encourage completion of research degrees within a reasonable timeframe, QUT has set a limit of two years on the length of time for which it will fund a faculty for full-time research masters degree candidates.

4.3 A registered full-time graduate student shall present the thesis for examination after a period of at least one year but not more than two years has elapsed from the time of confirmed registration. A registered part-time graduate student shall present the thesis for examination after a period of at least two years. The maximum time is four years from the time of confirmed registration. In special cases the Faculty Research Committee may approve a shorter period.

4.4 Time limits are measured in years from the time of first registration as a graduate student. Periods of exclusion or absence without approval are included.

4.5 Candidates who exceed these limits may be asked to show cause why they should not have their registration in the program terminated. Such candidates must make formal application to the Faculty Research Committee to have their registration extended beyond the normal time. Details of the candidate's progress shall be presented to the committee together with the reasons for the delay in completing the course and the expected date of completion. Where the committee agrees to an extension, a time limit will be set for the maximum period of registration in the program.

4.6 Candidates are notified of termination by registered mail. They have right of appeal to the Academic Appeals Committee.

5 - Supervision

5.1 The Faculty Research Committee shall appoint at least one supervisor the principal supervisor and also at least one associate supervisor. Each member of the supervisory panel shall bring appropriate experience in the research area of the student.

5.2 The Principal Supervisor shall normally be from the academic staff of the QUT school in which the candidate is enrolled.

5.3 The Supervisory Panel shall supervise all aspects of the candidate's work program, shall receive reports from the candidate on progress and shall recommend to the Faculty Research Committee both on successful and unsuccessful completion of components of the coursework incorporated in the candidate's program, on progress on the thesis research project and on continued enrolment.

5.4 The Supervisory Panel shall receive a formal oral and written report from the candidate at least once every semester on progress on the research project.

5.5 Summary of Faculty Supervisory registration process: To ensure that students receive appropriate supervision from experienced supervisors and active researchers the Faculty has introduced a Supervisors Register which requires registered supervisors to demonstrate performance in three areas.

1. Practice - previous supervisory experience of at least five years.

2. Research - evidence of active research through grants and publications

3. Continuous development

6 - Place and Conditions of Work

6.1 The research program will normally be carried out under supervision in a suitable environment within Brisbane. However, external study is possible. External candidates will be required to spend a minimum of four weeks at QUT annually.

6.2 The Faculty Research Committee shall not admit a candidate to a program of research based at the University unless it has received:

- * a supporting statement from the Head of the QUT School and/or Postgraduate Research Coordinator in the School in which the study is proposed indicating that, in their opinion, the applicant is a suitable person to undertake a research program leading to the masters degree, that the program is supported, that the school is willing to undertake the responsibility of supervising the work of the applicant and that resources are available to support the proposed research.

6.3 The Faculty Research Committee shall not admit a candidate to a program of research based at a sponsoring establishment unless it has received:

- * a supporting statement from the employer or director of the sponsoring institution that they are aware of the course rules and are prepared to sponsor and support the applicant, that the applicant will be provided with facilities and time to undertake the research project and that they are willing to accept responsibility for supervising the applicant's work, and

- * a supporting statement from the head of the QUT school or Postgraduate Research coordinator in which the study is proposed indicating that, in their opinion, the applicant is a suitable person to undertake a research program leading to the Masters degree, that the program is supported, and that after examination of the proposed external facilities and supervision, the school is willing to accept the responsibility of supervising the work.

7 - Thesis

7.1 In the form of presentation, availability and copyright, the thesis shall comply with all the requirements of the document Requirements for Presenting Theses (Appendix 51 in the Manual of Policies and Procedures).

7.2 A candidate shall submit the title of their thesis for approval by the Faculty Research Committee with their application, and after approval has been granted, no change will be made except with the permission of the committee.

7.3 The candidate shall give two months' written notice of intention to submit their thesis through the Principal Supervisor.

7.4 The thesis shall comply with the following requirements:

- * a significant proportion of the work described (as determined by the Faculty Research Committee) must have been carried out subsequent to initial registration for the Masters degree.

- * it must describe a program of work carried out by the candidate and must involve either an advanced contribution to the knowledge of the subject or an advanced application of existing knowledge.

- * it must reach a satisfactory standard of literary presentation.

- * it shall be the candidate's own account of the work. Where work is carried out conjointly with other persons, the Faculty Research Committee shall be advised of the extent of the candidate's contribution to the joint work.

- * the thesis shall not contain as its main content any work or material which the candidate has previously submitted for another degree or similar award.

- * the thesis may consist primarily of reports, plans and/or documents or may be supported by these if they have a bearing on the subject of the thesis. Other supporting documents such as published papers may also be submitted with the thesis.

- * the thesis shall contain an abstract of not more than 300 words.

7.5 Except with the specific permission of the Faculty Research Committee, the thesis must be presented in the English language. Such permission must be sought at the time of application for registration, and will not be granted solely on the grounds that the candidate's ability to satisfy the examiners will be affected adversely by the requirement to present the thesis in English.

7.6 Subject to QUT's Intellectual Property policy, the copyright of the thesis is vested in the candidate.

7.7 Where a candidate, supervisor or the sponsoring establishment wishes the thesis to remain confidential for a period of time after completion of the work, application for approval must be made to the Faculty Research Committee when the thesis is submitted. The period normally shall not exceed two years from the date on which the examiners recommend acceptance of the thesis, during which time the thesis will be held on restricted access in the QUT Library.

7.8 Except where confidentiality of the thesis is necessary, students shall submit their thesis electronically after completion of the examination process and any corrections required to the QUT Library for inclusion in the Australian Digital Thesis Project.

8 - Examination of Thesis

8.1 The Faculty Research Committee shall appoint three examiners, at least one of whom shall be from outside of the University. No supervisor of the candidate shall be appointed as one of the examiners.

8.2 Normally, examiners must agree to read and report upon the thesis within two months of its receipt.

8.3 A candidate may be required to make an oral defence of the thesis.

8.4 On receipt of the reports from the examiners, the Faculty Research Committee shall:

- (a) recommend that the thesis be accepted without modification, and to Academic Board that the candidate be awarded the degree, or

- (b) recommend to Academic Board that the candidate be awarded the degree, after any minor amendments requested by the examiners have been made, or

- (c) recommend that the thesis not be accepted until major revisions have been made. Such revisions might be rewriting one of the sections, with or without additional work, or

- (d) not accept the thesis and terminate the candidate's registration.

8.5 If the examiners' reports are conflicting, the Faculty Research Committee may, after appropriate consultation with the Thesis Panel, resubmit the thesis to the examiners with copies of the examiners' reports and/or seek the advice of a further external examiner. After due consideration of further reports from the examiners, a majority decision will be accepted by the Faculty Research Committee.

Master of Engineering (BN72)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: Yes

CRICOS code: 003465J

Course duration (full-time): 1 year (minimum), 2 years (maximum)

Course duration (part-time): 2 years (minimum), 4 years (maximum)

Domestic fees (indicative): Aust citizens or PRs will be awarded an RTS/RTA place or a QUT sponsorship for tuition fees. If you exceed the max time, you will be charged - 2009: $6,720 per semester (indicative)

International Fees (per semester): 2009: $11,500 (indicative) per semester (subject to annual review)

Domestic Entry: At any time

International Entry: At any time

Campus: Gardens Point

Entry Requirements

A four-year degree in an appropriate discipline with Honours or equivalent qualification or a graduate diploma or masters degree in an appropriate discipline with a minimum grade point average of 5 with relevant experience or professional experience and/or other qualifications.

Part-time Study

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Overview

This research program for professional engineers equips you to solve complex industrial problems. The program is available in Civil, Electrical and Electronic Systems, Mechanical, Manufacturing and Medical Engineering. In completing the course you apply yourself to real-world problems in a research project which usually be sponsored by industry, government authorities, professional organisations or QUT. You can enhance your preparation for the research project by completing coursework units as part of your program. Master of Research studies normally include:

- * assessed coursework
- * participation in university scholarly activities such as research seminars, teaching and publication
- * regular meetings with supervisors
- * a program of supervised research and investigation
- * preparation of a thesis.

Fees

Australian students enrolling after August 31 2000 in a higher degree by research are subject to the conditions of the Commonwealth Government's Research Training Scheme (RTS). Research Students who enrol at QUT will be awarded an RTS place, which is funded by the Commonwealth, or a QUT Research Training Award Scheme (RTA) place, which is a fee remission scholarship.

Research Masters students are entitled to two years full-time equivalent study under these schemes. Students who exceed this entitlement may apply to QUT for an extension, however the University may charge fees for the period of the program which exceeds the student's entitlement. The University determines the fee level.

Overview

This course serves as a preparation and pathway program for students wishing to enter a masters program in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering. It is particularly aimed at students with either a three-year undergraduate degree, or a degree in a different area to the masters of their choice.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant discipline area; or a three-year full-time diploma and three or more years of relevant professional experience in a relevant discipline; and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study, or an equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

Career Outcomes

The Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering does not provide any specific career path. It is offered only as an alternative entry pathway to masters courses in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Further Information

Special Note

The course structures are divided into two major categories: Standard program and UD50 Articulation program.

All students, except those intending to advance to UD50 Masters of Urban Development (Urban and Regional Planning), must follow the standard program.

Standard Course structure - February Entry and July Entry

Full-time Structure - Year 1, Semester 1

BEE Undergraduate Unit 1

BEE Undergraduate Unit 2

Other Faculty Postgraduate Unit A

Other Faculty Postgraduate Unit B

All units to be approved by Postgraduate Coordinator prior to enrolment.

Part-time Structure

A part-time course structure will require completion of 1 BEE undergraduate level unit and 1 Other Faculty postgraduate level elective unit each semester (50% of standard load as above.)

Postgraduate Level Electives

IFP100	Knowledge Transfer and Research Commercialisation (Core Unit)

Overview

This course offers an engineering management qualification to practising engineers through a formal qualification in management with advanced engineering skills and knowledge. You can choose to specialise in manufacturing or maintenance engineering. Early exit with a Graduate Diploma is available upon completion of four units in the course.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant engineering discipline area and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study, or an equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language. Applicants from a non-relevant background may gain entry through successful completion of BN85, the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

Career Outcomes

The Master of Engineering Management allows graduates to become specialist engineering managers within their chosen professional field, particularly to become a leader and manager of engineering processes. Graduates can also use the skills and knowledge gained to diversify their capabilities across a broader spectrum of engineering disciplines.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Advanced Standing

Students completing two Masters courses in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be eligible to apply for a maximum of 24 credit points advanced standing in the second course on the basis of common units already completed. Such students will be required to complete a minimum of 72cp to be determined in consultation with the nominated Course Leader, to achieve the second Masters.

Overview

This course addresses the main concepts and methodologies of infrastructure planning and management. It aims to advance and enhance your skills and understanding of the diverse types of infrastructure assets planning and management, including the environmental, social, institutional assessments, and economic and financial aspects of infrastructure management. Early exit with a Graduate Diploma is available upon completion of four units in the course.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant discipline area; or an equivalent qualification, and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study, or an equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language. Applicants from a non-relevant background may gain entry through successful completion of BN85, the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

Career Outcomes

Graduates may choose to become a project manager, asset manager, planner within an infrastructure organisation, or use the skills and knowledge gained to diversify their capabilities across a broader spectrum of construction disciplines. In particular, this course provides graduates with the skills and knowledge to become leaders and managers of infrastructure planning and management.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Advanced Standing

Students completing two Masters courses in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be eligible to apply for a maximum of 24 credit points advanced standing in the second course on the basis of common units already completed. Such students will be required to complete a minimum of 72cp to be determined in consultation with the nominated Course Leader, to achieve the second Masters.

Overview

This course is designed to provide you with appropriate knowledge and experience in managing projects in professional organisations. It addresses the main concepts and methodologies of project management and provides you with educational opportunities for advanced study following your graduation in a relevant discipline. This course aims to produce project managers capable of ensuring project success through the management of constraints in time, cost and quality, as well as of social, political and environmental challenges. Early exit with a Graduate Diploma is available upon completion of four units in the course.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant discipline area; and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study, or an equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language. Applicants from a non-relevant background may gain entry through successful completion of BN85, the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

Career Outcomes

Graduates will have the necessary expertise to take on managerial roles in projects of their chosen profession. They will have acquired professional experience which will enable them to manage project goals within constraints, contribute to strategic decision making through understanding a range of specialty areas relevant to project management. They will also make a difference to professional practice by introducing project-based practices and a project management approach.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Advanced Standing

Entry Requirements

Applicants must apply via QTAC and satisfy the entry requirements for the Associate Degree in Civil Engineering at the Southbank Institute.

Career Outcomes

Civil Engineering Technologists provide complex technical support to assist civil engineers on the design construction and maintenance of projects. The Bachelor of Technology qualification is now required in government organisations such as Main Roads for positions such as chief design draftsman and construction supervisors. Immediate employment would be as design draftsman and on-site supervisor. The civil engineering consulting industry will also have a need for technologists trained in routine design procedures and CAD drafting skills.

Professional Recognition

The course has provisional recognition by Engineers Australia.

Dual TAFE/QUT Awards

This dual award is a cooperative arrangement between Southbank Institute (SBI) and the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering, Queensland University of Technology. Initial entry is to a specially designed two-year associate degree at SBI, followed by a third year at QUT, to qualify for the Bachelor of Technology degree. In their second year students study units from QUT and SBI which form part of the Advanced Diploma, and in third year students study one module at SBI together with their QUT units to complete their Bachelor of Technology (Civil) degree.

Subject to final approval.

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Technology (Civil) must obtain at least 45 days of industrial experience/practice in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Additional Admission Information

The CE44 Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the CE44 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

Civil engineers plan, design, construct, operate and maintain roads, bridges, dams, water supply schemes, sewerage systems, transportation, harbours, canals, dockyard facilities, airports, railways, factories and large buildings. Civil engineers may gain employment with Local State and Commonwealth Governments, semi-government agencies, construction firms, power generating authorities, mining firms, property developers and consulting engineering firms. A small number are employed in research activities and teaching. After obtaining suitable experience there is also the opportunity to establish their own consulting engineering practice.

Overview

Fields of Study: Civil Eng major; Structural Analysis and Design, Computer Applications, Transport Engineering, Environmental Engineering, Geotechnical Mechanics, Water Engineering, Construction Management, Waste Management. Environmental major; Sustainable development, waste management, toxic site rehabilitation, water & wastewater Environmental Major: Students select the environmental units in their last year.

Professional Recognition

This degree is recognised for the purpose of membership of Engineers Australia. It is professionally recognised by the Hong Kong Institution of Engineers, the UK Institution of Mechanical Engineers, the Institution of Professional Engineers, New Zealand, The Institution of Engineers, Ireland and the various professional engineering registry bodies in the USA.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit points required for course completion. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Mid-year entry

The CE45 Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) midyear course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the CE45 course in 2006 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 72 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit).

If offered a place, you may be are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

Environmental management is concerned mainly with the assessment and management of the effect of human and other activity on the environment. Graduates apply their skills to find solutions for the management of liquid and solid waste, or air and noise pollution. Graduates can be employed by government bodies and private companies involved with the environmental aspects of planning, designing, constructing and monitoring of structures and facilities including mines, factories, power stations, water and waste water treatment plants and refineries. As legislation becomes more stringent and the community's expectations increase, there will be need for institutions to employ more environmental engineers.

Overview

The course provides technical education civil, environmental engineering and science as well as environmental management skills in urban infrastructure and mining development will be taught. The course also teaches social, legal government and economic topics related to sustainable development.

Professional Recognition

This course has provisional accreditation from Engineers Australia (EA).

After being awarded this credit and if you wish to seek for additional academic credit, you are then required to lodge an Application for Academic Credit form for that additional credit by the due date and subject QUT rules .

Career Outcomes

Graduates employed in the construction process are involved in the coordinating of the construction and maintenance of large building projects, the development of government and corporate policies, the administration of regulations, and the development and research of building systems and products. They may be employed in private organisations such as large construction and development companies or consultancies while some are employed by government departments.

Overview

The course is concerned with the management of the overall process of construction projects and provides detailed understanding of project development from conception, through planning and construction to commissioning and maintenance. It develops skills in how to manage people, materials, equipment and plant while focusing on issues such as cost, time, quality, safety and environment. It educates students to become effective construction managers with comprehensive technological knowledge, management principles and communication skills.

Special Course Requirements

All students are required to obtain a minimum of 100 days of employment in the final year of the course as a part of CNB409 Professional Practice 1 and CNB423 Professional Practice 2.

Career Outcomes

Quantity Surveyors prepare cost estimates and check actual expenditure for large construction projects. They usually work in offices but can also visit building sites, clients and members of teams. Graduates are employed by private quantity surveying firms, government departments and building companies.

Overview

The course prepares students to work as quantity surveyors or building economists. The course covers building management, cost planing and control, building development techniques, building research, computer software application, measurement of construction, and legal issues.

Special Course Requirements

All students are required to obtain a minimum of 100 days of employment in the final year of the course as a part of the units Professional Practice 1 and Professional Practice 2. Only international students are eligible to complete a portion of their work experience offshore, and in this case students will receive no assistance in gaining work experience.

Professional Accreditation and Recognition

The course is offered with or without honours. The honours version is fully accredited by the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors (RICS), while both the honours and non-honours versions of the course are fully accredited by the Australian Institute of Quantity Surveyors (AIQS) and the Board of Quantity Surveyors Malaysia (BQSM).

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. The course coordinator will therefore need to be satisfied that the student fully understands the implications that the minor will have on professional accreditation and recognition before approval to the minor is granted. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Advanced Standing

Up to 4 semesters of advanced standing may be granted, subject to prior learning and qualifications.

In the special case of students who complete the QUT BAppSc Construction Management course and are therefore eligible to enter the final year of the BAppSc Quantity Surveying course, these students will find that their BAppSc Quantity Surveying course is only accredited by the Australian Institute of Quantity Surveyors.

The CN54 Bachelor of Property Economics course has been replaced by UD40 Bachelor of Urban Development (Property Economics) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the CN54 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are not required to lodge an academic credit form, as academic credit will be awarded by QUT before the census date of your first teaching period.

After being awarded this credit and if you wish to seek for additional academic credit, you are then required to lodge an Application for Academic Credit form for that additional credit by the due date and subject QUT rules .

Career Outcomes

Property economics is the profession associated with the management, administration and use of land and property such as office buildings, shopping centres, factories, hotels etc. Graduates work in private practice or as employees of property development, valuation, property management, investment or property finance companies. They may also work in government departments and local authorities concerned with rating, compulsory acquisitions or property development.

Overview

This course is concerned with all aspects of property - investment, asset management, development, valuation and research - with a focus on finance and on the commercial property market sector. The program incorporates a major in finance (through the Faculty of Business) and specialist 4th year programs, with strong industry links.

Special Course Requirements

All students must undertake 60 days' professional work experience during the course as part of CNB390 Professional Practice. All work experience must be approved by the course coordinator to verify that it is appropriate. A work experience diary is to be maintained and available for inspection by the unit coordinator as a formal assessment component.

A student registered in the flexible or part-time study program must be employed full-time in an approved organisation for three of the final four years of the course. Part-time study generally involves around 8 formal contact hours per week and some release from employment is required.

Professional Recognition

Graduates with relevant professional experience are eligible for membership of the Australian Property Institute and registration by the Valuers' Registration Board of Queensland. The course is accredited by the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit points required for course completion. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Note

Students may elect to complete their studies on the completion of 3 years (or flexible part-time equivalent). Students who select this option will graduate with a Bachelor of Applied Science (Property Economics) degree. This degree provides full domestic accreditation with the Australian Property Institute and Valuers' Registration Board of Queensland. Students graduating on the four year program have the potential to graduate with honours according to their overall grade point average.

Flexible Mode

Students may take up to 3 units per semester from the full-time timetable.

Overview

Urban design is primarily concerned with improving through design, the relationship between the many elements that make up urban areas: buildings, places, spaces and movement and service systems. The course aims to enhance your professional skills through developing an understanding of the social, economic, physical, historical, political, and legal processes which influence the form and structure of urban areas. Particular emphasis is placed on communication skills.

Entry Requirements

Applicants are considered initially for acceptance in the Graduate Diploma in Urban Design. At the completion of 48 credit points students will be considered for articulation to the Master of Built Environment (Urban Design) subject to a grade point average of 5.0 or better in the course.

Applicants may be granted provisional entry to the Graduate Diploma courses with a modified enrolment program on the basis of alternative academic or professional attainments. Some applicants may be required to undertake a qualifying program to develop design literacy and graphic skills. A three-module full-fee paying Summer unit is normally available for this purpose. Computer Literacy is also required.

Focus in the Masters Program

The masters program includes skills and knowledge development through set coursework in common with the Graduate Diploma in Urban Design, but also requires individual research and the writing of a dissertation. An Urban Design Master Studio is conducted over the Summer semester.

Master of Built Environment (Urban Design)

The normal progression will extend the graduate diploma program by a flexibly delivered summer semester (see Course Structure) for part-time and full-time students. Articulation from the graduate diploma to the masters level program will be available after one semester full-time or two semesters part-time provided that applicants have completed the preceding course work with a grade point average of 5.0 or better.

International Student Entry

QUT advises that international students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Overview

Design is the focus of this course; these studies are supported by studies in architectural technology, history and culture of architecture, ethical and legislative frameworks, and the study of architecture in practice.

Career Outcomes

The Bachelor of Design (Architectural Studies) is a four-year full-time pre-professional degree in architecture. Graduates of this course may articulate into the Master of Architecture.

Architects design buildings, provide concepts, specifications, detailed drawings and plans. They oversee construction, negotiate with planning authorities and inspect the work in progress. They are required to have design skills and technical knowledge of materials and processes used in construction. Architects can be employed in general practice or choose to specialise. Some of the specialisations available are commercial, industrial and institutional developments, historic building conservation and housing renovation. They can also be involved in project feasibility studies and strategic asset investigations. Architecture embraces art, technology and service. Architects play a leading role in interdisciplinary teams to solve problems of the built environment. A Bachelor of Architecture gives graduates exciting career choices and the opportunity to travel and work in Australia or overseas.

QUT Entry Bonus Scheme

The QUT Entry Bonus Scheme applies to students completing Year 12 or equivalent in 2008 and applying for entry in 2009.

QUT will award two bonus QTAC ranks for students who successfully complete Maths C or LOTE (Language Other Than English) in secondary school and apply to start a Bachelor of Urban Development at QUT in 2009.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Minors

You will be able to select from two 4 unit approved minors or one 8 unit approved major to enhance and broaden your knowledge in a related field or an area of interest.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Professional Recognition

This course received a successful Preliminary Assessment by the RAI/AACA/Board of Architects of Queensland in 2006. This is the first step in a three-stage process to obtain full recognition and accreditation. Full accreditation will occur in 2010 when the first cohort graduates from the Master of Architecture (DE80).

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Overview

Students in this course develop their capacity to contribute to the design of products and systems for the mutual benefit of users and manufacturers of a wide range of products.

Career Outcomes

Industrial designers create and produce commercial and industrial products to improve people's lives. They make models and prototypes of designs that cover a wide range of manufactured goods from toasters to computer terminals to rapid transport systems. When designing new or improving existing products they must consider factors influencing product design such as useability, costs, materials, technology or environment. They research product usage, make detailed drawings and supervise the construction of prototypes for testing. They mainly work in small business or consulting practices. QUT Industrial Design graduates are working worldwide in places such as the UK, Singapore and France.

QUT Entry Bonus Scheme

The QUT Entry Bonus Scheme applies to students completing Year 12 or equivalent in 2008 and applying for entry in 2009.

QUT will award two bonus QTAC ranks for students who successfully complete Maths C or LOTE (Language Other Than English) in secondary school and apply to start a Bachelor of Urban Development at QUT in 2009.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Minors

You will be able to select from two 4 unit approved minors or one 8 unit approved major to enhance and broaden your knowledge in a related field or an area of interest.

Further Information

The School of Design - Phone +61 7 3138 2626, Fax +61 7 3138 5280, email: bee.enquiries@qut.com

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Design (Industrial Design) is recognised by DIA (Design Institute of Australia). Graduates of this course are eligible for DIA Membership. Industrial Design QUT is also an Educational member of ICSID (International Council of Societies of Industrial Design).

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Careers Outcomes

Interior designers plan and execute the layout, finishes, lighting, fittings and furnishings in domestic interior design, retail and entertainment industry design, hospitality industry design, commercial office and corporate design. Interior designers may work as consultants or with a design company. They may also seek work involving production design for film, television and theatre as well as furniture and exhibition design. There is a trend for Australian interior design companies to practice in South-East Asia and bid competitively for international commissions.

Overview

Students undertaking this course receive a general background in studies in built environment combined with a series of experience exercises relating to basic design & specifically to interior design.

QUT Entry Bonus Scheme

The QUT Entry Bonus Scheme applies to students completing Year 12 or equivalent in 2008 and applying for entry in 2009.

QUT will award two bonus QTAC ranks for students who successfully complete Maths C or LOTE (Language Other Than English) in secondary school and apply to start a Bachelor of Urban Development at QUT in 2009.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Professional Recognition

Successful completion of the Bachelor of Design (Interior Design) is recognised by the Design Institute of Australia as meeting the basic requirements for professional practice.

Minors

You will be able to select from two 4 unit approved minors or one 8 unit approved major to enhance and broaden your knowledge in a related field or an area of interest.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Discipline coordinator: Dr Jeannie Sim

Campus: Gardens Point

Overview

Landscape Architecture is concerned with the ordered design of open spaces at all scales: the appearance, atmosphere, and suitability of environment to assure its health and welfare and that of its inhabitants. Your course covers landscape theory and design, professional values, environment theory, graphic and other communication, and landscape construction supported by project and field work.

Career Outcomes

Landscape Architecture is predominantly a young profession with an increasing number of female practitioners. Sixty per cent of the profession is employed in private consultancies of landscape architects, architects, planners, urban designers and engineers. They are engaged primarily in site planning, site design, planting design and, to a lesser degree, landscape planning. Other opportunities for employment occur in the design sectors of government agencies. Some graduates work freelance on a contractual basis.

QUT Entry Bonus Scheme

The QUT Entry Bonus Scheme applies to students completing Year 12 or equivalent in 2008 and applying for entry in 2009.

QUT will award two bonus QTAC ranks for students who successfully complete Maths C or LOTE (Language Other Than English) in secondary school and apply to start a Bachelor of Urban Development at QUT in 2009.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Professor Jay Yang (Please refer course specific enquiries to Course Leader.)

Discipline coordinator: Dr Kathi Holt-Damant (Course Leader)

Campus: Gardens Point

Overview

The Master of Design addresses the issues of professional development in the design fields of built environment and engineering. It aims to enhance and advance your skills and understanding of the design disciplines through explorations in social, historic, economic, legal, and technological processes and systems that act upon our environments and products. This course advances abilities in visual and design literacy, communication, and design processes, through the integration of aspects of sustainability, project management, leadership, and design project applications. Early exit with a Graduate Diploma is available upon completion of four units in the course.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant discipline area, or equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty, and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language. Applicants from a non-relevant background may gain entry through successful completion of BN85, the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Career Outcomes

Graduates may choose to become specialist urban designers within their chosen professional field, or use the skills and knowledge gained to diversify their capabilities across a broader spectrum of design disciplines. In particular this course provides the skills and knowledge to become a leader and manager of urban design processes, both in the development and implementation of urban design policy and urban design practice. Graduates may typically work in either private practice as urban designers, or in government organisations as urban policy developers and implementers.

Advanced Standing

Students completing two Masters courses in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be eligible to apply for a maximum of 24 credit points advanced standing in the second course on the basis of common units already completed. Such students will be required to complete a minimum of 72cp to be determined in consultation with the nominated Course Leader, to achieve the second Masters.

Domestic Entry: February and July

International Entry: February (July entry available to students with Advanced Standing)

QTAC code: 412502; Dfee: 412506

Past rank cut-off: 80. Admission to this course is based on prior study entry requirements in addition to a rank. Please refer to Additional Admission Information. Dfee places were not offered last year.

OP Guarantee: Yes

Total credit points: 384

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Dr R.Mahalinga-Iyer

Discipline coordinator: Dr Bouchra Senadji

Campus: Gardens Point

Additional Admission Information

The EE41 Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical and Computer Engineering) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the EE41 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

Electrical and computer engineers design, install and maintain electrical, electronic, telecommunications and computing systems. They may specialise as electrical power engineers, electrical design engineers, communications or computer engineers. Graduates find employment with electricity boards, government and semi-government departments, large manufacturing and engineering companies.

Overview

This degree offers a balanced mix of theory and practice with the objective of preparing graduates for the work environment. Students will receive a thorough grounding in the engineering sciences and hands-on, practical experience in real world problem solving and application of theory to suit industry needs.

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia and the Institution of Radio and Electronics Engineers Australia. It is professionally recognised by many international professional institutions including the Professional Engineers Board Singapore.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit points required for course completion. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Mid-year Entry

The EE42 Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical and Computer Engineering) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical) from 2006 onwards. There will be no midyear intake into the EE42 course in 2007 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 168 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit).

If offered a place, you may be are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Industry Cooperative Education Program

High achieving domestic students in third year may also be eligible to participate in the Industry Cooperative Education Program, based on a three-way partnership between the student, University and industry, and involving a full-time, one semester, paid and supervised workplace position with the industry partner.

Special Course Requirements

To graduate, students must complete at least 60 days industrial experience in an engineering environment which is approved by the course coordinator.

The EE46 Bachelor of Engineering (Computer Systems) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Computer Systems) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the EE46 course in 2007/8 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

Graduates will be employed as design engineers, software engineers, hardware engineers, computer system engineers, information systems engineers, research and development engineers and project managers.

Overview

Students will study units from both electrical engineering and computing from a computer-based systems perspective. The course aims to produce students who are employable as design engineers, software and hardware engineers, computer systems engineers, and information systems engineers.

Professional Recognition

The course is provisionally accredited by Engineers Australia (EA).

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit

The EE47 Bachelor of Engineering (Telecommunications) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Telecommunications) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the EE47 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

Telecommunications engineers are involved in the design, planning, commissioning and monitoring of complex telecommunications networks and broadcasting equipment. As a result of the rapid increase in telecommunications technology, Australia currently faces a shortage of experience telecommunications engineers. Prospective employers include all the major carrier companies such as Telstra, Optus, Vodaphone, as well as mobile phone manufacturers such as Voxson, Motorola and Nokia. Other prospective employers are electronic equipment manufacturers and private and government bodies involved in Information Technology (IT), Telecommunication design and development.

Overview

Students study a combination of units from the School of Electrical and Electronic Systems Engineering, School of Computer Science and Software Engineering, School of Data Communication and the School of Mathematics. Areas covered include innovative communications technologies including the Internet, wireless mobile communication systems, optical fibre communications, satellite communication systems ADSL and other fast modem technologies, Bluetooth and HDTV.

Professional Recognition

The course is provisionally accredited by Engineers Australia (EA).

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit points required for course completion. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Optional Pathway

Students entering the Bachelor of Engineering (Electronics)/Bachelor of Information Technology course or the Bachelor of Engineering (Computer Systems) course may transfer to the Bachelor of Engineering (Telecommunications) at the end of the first year without loss of credit, subject to approval from the course coordinator, and meeting minimum course requirements.

Special Course Requirements

Students must complete at least 60 days of industrial experience in order graduate.

Special Note

This course has been discontinued. Any remaining students should seek advice from the Course Coordinator regarding their remaining course program.

Deferment

QUT's deferment policy does not apply to this course.

Potential Careers:

Computer Systems Engineer, Data Communications Specialist, Electrical and Computer Engineer.

Bachelor of Engineering (Aerospace Avionics) (EE48)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: No

CRICOS code: 037543G

Course duration (full-time): 4 years

Domestic fees (indicative): 2009: $3,568 (indicative) per semester

International Fees (per semester): 2009: $11,250 (indicative) per semester (subject to annual review)

Domestic Entry: February

International Entry: February

QTAC code: 412512

Past rank cut-off: 92. Admission to this course is based on prior study entry requirements in addition to a rank. Please refer to Additional Admission Information. Dfee places were not offered last year.

Total credit points: 384

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Dr R.Mahalinga-Iyer

Discipline coordinator: Dr Felipe Gonzalez

Campus: Gardens Point

Additional Admission Information

The EE48 Bachelor of Engineering (Aerospace Avionics) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Aerospace Avionics) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the EE48 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 264 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are not required to lodge an academic credit form, as academic credit will be awarded by QUT before the census date of your first teaching period.

After being awarded this credit and if you wish to seek for additional academic credit, you are then required to lodge an Application for Academic Credit form for that additional credit by the due date and subject QUT rules .

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this course.

Career Outcomes

Aerospace Engineers are involved in the design, development, manufacture and maintenance work on aeroplanes, helicopters, spacecraft and satellites. Graduates are employed by the RAAF, RAN and by government bodies such as the Defence Research Centres and the Civil Aviation Authority. There are also career opportunities with aerospace companies, aircraft maintenance and aeronautical consulting services. Opportunities outside aerospace also exist in the areas of electronics, process control, instrument manufacture and automotive equipment.

Overview

Students study aerodynamics, aircraft control systems, avionics navigation and communication. In later years of the degree, specialist study is undertaken in design of aircraft and satellite systems including systems engineering methodology, aircraft and satellite technology and applications. As many of the teaching staff are involved in relevant research with government and industry sectors, students have the opportunity to work on real projects during their studies.

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia and the Institution of Radio and Electronics Engineers Australia. It is also professionally recognised by many international professional institutions.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students in this course may gain a minor in Systems Engineering by choosing the same group project through the Aerospace Design units and the final year project providing they comply with Systems Engineering principles.

Optional Pathway

Subject to normal course entry rules students may transfer internally from the QUT Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical and Computer Engineering) course to this degree after the completion of the first year full-time if they have obtained a sufficiently high grade point average that will meet the course cut-off for that year.

Articulation to Masters

Subject to University approval, students achieving a certain minimum performance criteria at the end of year 3 of the Bachelor of Engineering course, may be eligible to study two Master of Engineering Science level units as electives.

After successfully completing the Bachelor of Engineering course, students eligible to enrol in the Master of Engineering Science courses can then have these two units credited towards the Masters Program.

Special Course Requirements

In order to graduate students in this course must complete 60 days industrial experience before graduating. An additional 10 days specialist industrial experience must be obtained in the aerospace avionics industry.

Further Information

Deferment

QUT's deferment policy does not apply to this course.

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are not available in this course. Tuition fees are only applicable to currently enrolled students who were unable to comply regulations regarding their original Commonwealth Supported place (i.e. failure to lodge an eCAF, has consumed of other their Student Learning Entitlement etc.) and who have been invited and accepted to continue as a fee-paying student.

Special Note

This course has been discontinued. Any remaining students should seek advice from the Course Coordinator regarding their remaining course program.

Potential Careers:

Aerospace Avionics Engineer.

Graduate Diploma in Computer and Communications Engineering (EE67)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: No

CRICOS code: 015184G

Course duration (full-time): 1 year

Course duration (part-time): 2 years

Domestic fees (indicative): 2009: Full fee tuition $6,750 (indicative) per semester

Domestic Entry: This course is open to continuing students only. NO NEW OFFERS WILL BE MADE AFTER 2007.

International Entry: This course is open to continuing students only. NO NEW OFFERS WILL BE MADE AFTER 2007..

Total credit points: 96

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Associate Professor Jay Yang (Please refer all course enquiries to Course Leader.)

Discipline coordinator: Dr Michael Mason (Course Leader)

Campus: Gardens Point

Potential Careers:

Computer Systems Engineer, Electrical and Computer Engineer, Software Engineer.

Entry Requirements

Applicants for the Graduate Diploma must hold a bachelor degree in Electrical Engineering, Information Technology or equivalent; or have successfully completed the Graduate Certificate in Computer and Communications Engineering.

Overview

This course develops your in-depth knowledge and research skills in computer engineering, communications engineering, and several related areas. You can specialise in either computer or communications engineering or take subjects in both. Computer Engineering covers important contemporary topics such as software development, hardware development computer networks and communications, real time operating systems, and application of computers in robotics, process control, image processing and computer vision. Communications Engineering covers advanced digital communication, signal processing techniques, hardware and software components in communications systems and various applications areas.

Course Structure

Graduate Diploma students select a total of eight units from Semester 1 and Semester 2 lists.

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Further Information

Discipline coordinator: Dr Michael Mason (Course Leader)

Campus: Gardens Point

Entry Requirements

Applicants for the Masters program must hold a bachelor degree in Electrical Engineering, Information Technology or Science with at least second class honours or equivalent; or have partially completed the Graduate Diploma in Computer and Communications Engineering with a grade point average of 5 or better over the first 4 units; or successfully completed the Graduate Diploma in Computer and Communications Engineering with a grade point average of 5 or better; or successfully completed the Graduate Certificate in Computer and Communications Engineering (EE61) with a grade point average of 5 or better.

Overview

This course develops your in-depth knowledge and research skills in computer engineering, communications engineering, and several related areas. You can specialise in either computer or communications engineering or take subjects in both. Computer Engineering covers important contemporary topics such as software development, hardware development computer networks and communications, real time operating systems, and application of computers in robotics, process control, image processing and computer vision. Communications Engineering covers advanced digital communication, signal processing techniques, hardware and software components in communications systems and various applications areas.

Masters Qualifying Program

Applicants who do not meet the entry requirements outlined above, will be required to enrol in the first semester of the Graduate Diploma in Computer and Communications Engineering (EE67). If in this first semester a sufficiently high standard is attained, then candidates will be invited to change enrolment to the Masters program. Otherwise they will continue their studies in the Graduate Diploma in Computer and Communications Engineering towards that award.

Masters Upgrade Program

Those who have completed the Graduate Diploma in Computer and Communications Engineering (EE67) may upgrade by undertaking further study in the Master of Engineering Science (Computer & Communications Engineering) and be given credit for the units which they have completed at Graduate Diploma level. The structure of the course dictates that this upgrade program be undertaken on a part-time basis.

Students undertaking the Masters Upgrade Program will enrol in the following units:

EEP301/1 Project

EEP301/2 Project.

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Overview

This course develops your in-depth knowledge and research skills in computer engineering, communications engineering, and other areas of electrical and associate engineering disciplines. You can broaden your knowledge in project management type units for mechanical and civil engineering courses or specialise in either computer or communications engineering or take subjects in both. The Computer Engineering stream covers important contemporary topics such as software development, computer networks and communications, real time operating systems, and application of computers in robotics, process control, image processing and computer vision. The Communications Engineering stream covers advanced digital communications systems, and various applications.

Recommended study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

Construction engineering is suited to people attracted to the intellectual rigour of engineering, but with a bias towards the challenge of converting design into physical reality. While the course retains sufficient traditional civil engineering to enable graduates to work in consultant's offices, most would be employed by civil construction companies and Government Departments. Commercial and legal studies equip graduates to progress through the management structures of these organisations or to establish companies of their own. The range of work undertaken by civil construction companies ranges from residential land development through earthworks, tunnels, roads and dams to airports, marine facilities, major bridges and complex buildings. The world wide trend towards design and construction being undertaken within one organisation, acts to advantage engineers competent in both.

Overview

This course combines civil engineering with construction management, you will study civil engineering subjects combined with the requirements for managing the construction of large projects.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering (Civil and Construction) must complete at least 60 days of industrial experience/ practice in an engineering construction environment as approved by the course coordinator.

Minors

You will have the opportunity to undertake two minors (a minor is four units or 48 credit points) in the same discipline. For professional recognition you will undertake an Applications Minor which consists of a Work Place Integrated Learning unit, a project unit and two specialised civil engineering units. The second minor may be taken from an approved list outside your discipline.

International Student Entry

International students who are interested in mid-year entry should consult the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering Student Services section regarding the course structure to be undertaken.

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

Environmental management is concerned mainly with the assessment and management of the effect of human and other activity on the environment. Graduates apply their skills to find solutions for the management of liquid and solid waste, or air and noise pollution. Graduates can be employed by government bodies and private companies involved with the environmental aspects of planning, designing, constructing and monitoring of structures and facilities including mines, factories, power stations, water and waste water treatment plants and refineries. As legislation becomes more stringent and the community's expectations increase, there will be need for institutions to employ more environmental engineers.

Overview

This course will provide you with the technical education in civil, environmental engineering and science as well as environmental management skills and mining and sustainable development.

Minors

You will have the opportunity to undertake two minors; a minor is four units (48 credit points) in the same discipline. ### Additional Admission Information

Applicants who are offered a place and eligible to receive 168 credit points (or more) of advanced standing will be admitted to the CE44 Bachelor of Engineering (Civil).

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

Civil engineers plan, design, construct, operate and maintain roads, bridges, dams, water supply schemes, sewerage systems, transportation, harbours, canals, dockyard facilities, airports, railways, factories and large buildings. Civil engineers may gain employment with Local, State and Commonwealth Governments, semi-government agencies, construction firms, power generating authorities, mining firms, property developers and consulting engineering firms. A small number are employed in research activities and teaching. After obtaining suitable experience there is also the opportunity to establish their own consulting engineering practice.

Overview

This course allows you to develop your knowledge in a number of areas such as: Structural Analysis and Design, Computer Applications, Transport Engineering, Environmental Engineering, Geotechnical Mechanics, Water Engineering, Construction Management, Waste Management. Environmental major; Sustainable development, waste management, toxic site rehabilitation, water & wastewater.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Minors

You will have the opportunity to undertake two minors; a minor is four units (48 credit points) in the same discipline. For professional recognition you will undertake an Applications minor which consists of a Work Place Integrated Learning unit, a project unit and two specialised civil engineering units. The second minor may be taken from an approved list outside your discipline.

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) must obtain at least 60 days of industrial experience/practice in an engineering environment as approved by the course coordinator.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

Graduates will be employed as design engineers, software engineers, hardware engineers, computer system engineers, information systems engineers, research and development engineers and project managers.

Overview

Students will study units from both electrical engineering and computing from a computer-based systems perspective. The course aims to produce students who are employable as design engineers, software and hardware engineers, computer systems engineers, and information systems engineers.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Optional Pathways

Students entering the Bachelor of Engineering (Electronics)/Bachelor of Information Technology course or the Bachelor of Engineering (Telecommunications) course can change to the Bachelor of Engineering (Computer Systems) at the end of the first year without loss of credit, subject to approval from the course coordinator and meeting minimum course requirements.

Special Course Requirements

Students must complete at least 60 days industrial experience in order to graduate.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Applicants who are offered a place and eligible to receive 168 credit points (or more) of advanced standing will be admitted to the ME40 Bachelor of Engineering (Infomechatronics).

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

This leading edge degree provides graduates with the combined skills of mechanical engineering, electrical and electronic engineering and information technology to work in the high tech fields of automated systems and robotics for the design, development, construction and service of modern equipment and plant. Graduates from this degree may expect to find employment as consultants, project managers, designers, and maintenance and instrumentation engineers in a wide variety of work situations. The range of employment opportunities is diverse and extensive. Some typical examples of organisations may include: manufacturing plants of consumer products, computer peripherals manufacturers/maintenance companies, automobile manufacturing industries, large scale manufacturing/maintenance industries such as Boeing, instrumentation industries, communication companies, research organisations, food and food processing industries and software development companies.

Overview

This course bridges the three, traditionally separate, disciplines of Mechanical Engineering, Electrical and

Electronic Engineering, and Computing and provides the combined skills required for the design, development, construction and service of modern systems and equipment. Advanced units emphasise the integration of knowledge and skills that impact on all aspects of the design, construction and service of modern computer controlled machines. In the final year a one-semester industry project will integrate and reinforce what has been learned through application in a real world setting.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

The Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) provides a sound education in the basic engineering sciences, synthesis and design, engineering management functions, and the social, economic and ethical aspects of engineering practice. Graduates from this degree may find employment in a variety of roles: consultant, project manager or technical adviser where they maybe involved in the operation of large, integrated energy-based plants such as mining, power stations, sugar factories, oil refineries etc. Others may work under the guidance of more experienced staff selecting equipment, installing and commissioning plants. Some graduates will go into design offices or manufacturing plants where they will be concerned principally with the logistics of production and the efficient management of people and systems.

Overview

This degree offers a balanced mix of theory and practice with the objective of preparing graduates for the work environment. Students will receive a thorough grounding in the engineering sciences and hands-on, practical experience in real world problem solving and application of theory to suit industry needs.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

Graduates from this degree may expect to find employment in hospitals as advisors to health and medical professionals, in firms concerned with the design, manufacture, supply and maintenance of medical, health and sporting equipment, occupational health agencies and in research institutions. In the early stages of their careers biomedical engineers might expect to be involved in the innovative use of technology, in the design of new devices and the assessment of appropriate engineering solutions to medical problems. More experienced biomedical engineers manage Biomedical Engineering Departments in hospitals and manufacturing companies and lead teams of engineers and technologists in the development of engineering solutions to improve health care.

Overview

This degree integrates physical, chemical, mathematical, and computational sciences and engineering principles to study human biology, medicine, human behaviour and health. It will provide you with the skills to design, manufacture, install, monitor and maintain medical and surgical equipment and to provide advice on engineering matters to medical and allied staff. Current issues such as total quality management and health legislation are also covered. In the final year, students undertake a design project in the biomedical field.

Special Course Requirements

Students must obtain at least 60 days of industrial employment in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator. Half of this experience must be in an industry related to Biomedical Engineering.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Minors

For professional recognition you will undertake an applications minor which consists of a workplace intergrated learning unit, a project unit and two specialised engineering units.

Discipline coordinator: Dr Jasmine Banks

Campus: Gardens Point

Additional Admission Information

Applicants who are offered a place and eligible to receive 168 credit points (or more) of advanced standing will be admitted to the EE47 Bachelor of Engineering (Telecommunications).

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Career Outcomes

Telecommunications engineers are involved in the design, planning, commissioning and monitoring of complex telecommunications networks and broadcasting equipment. As a result of the rapid increase in telecommunications technology, Australia currently faces a shortage of experienced telecommunications engineers. Prospective employers include all the major carrier companies such as Telstra, Optus, Vodaphone, as well as mobile phone manufacturers such as Voxson, Motorola and Nokia. Other prospective employers are electronic equipment manufacturers and private and government bodies involved in Information Technology (IT), Telecommunication design and development.

Overview

You will study a combination of units from Electrical Engineering, Computer Science, Software Engineering, Data Communications and Mathematics. Areas covered include innovative communications technologies including the Internet, wireless mobile communication systems, optical fibre communications, satellite communication systems ADSL and other fast modem technologies, Bluetooth and HDTV.

Professional Recognition

Full professional accreditation from Engineers Australia has been given for this course.

Optional Pathways

If you enter the Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical)/Bachelor of Information Technology course or the Bachelor of Engineering (Computer Systems) course, subject to the approval of the course coordinator, and if you meet the minimum course requirements you can apply to change to the Bachelor of Engineering (Telecommunications) at the end of the first year without loss of credit.

Special Course Requirements

To graduate you must complete at least 60 days of approved industrial experience in an engineering environment.

Further Information

School of Engineering Systems - Phone +61 7 3864 1993, Fax +61 7 3864 1516, email: bee.enquiries@qut.com

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

International Entry: February and July

QTAC code: 412052

Past rank cut-off: 99 plus successful questionnaire. Please refer to Additional Entry Requirements.

Past OP cut-off: 1 plus successful questionnaire. Please refer to Additional Entry Requirements.

Assumed knowledge: English (4, VHA) and Maths B (4, VHA)

Total credit points: 384

Course coordinator: Dr R.Mahalinga-Iyer

Campus: Gardens Point

Entry requirements

Applicants must be outstanding current, or returning from a gap year, Year 12 students.

Additional Entry Requirements

Engineering Dean's Scholars applicants are required to complete a questionnaire which will be available via the Engineering Dean's Scholars website.

Shortlisted applicants may be required to attend an interview and will be notified of date and venue after the questionnaire closes.

Fixed Closing Date

Applications for this program will close on 28 November 2008.

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics.

Course Structure

The Dean's Scholars Program offers students the opportunity to complete one of the Bachelor of Engineering programs and a Master of Engineering whilst providing a number of opportunities, which include;

- Introduction to the Engineering environment and high-level engineering management through company site visits;
- Boardroom visits to sponsoring companies to introduce you to prospective employers and engineering managers;
- Leadership Dinner sponsored by one of the companies associated with the program;

- Participation in a number of events relating to industry and association;

- Involvement in programs within the community;

- Access to senior academics who will assist you throughout your course.

Students can choose to complete one out of ten Bachelor of Engineering programs. This does not include the Bachelor of Engineering (Software Engineering).

Domestic Student Fees

Students who enrol will receive a full scholarship that includes payment of all undergraduate Higher Education Contribution Scheme (HECS) monies for the bachelor program. Students who attain a grade point average of 5.5 or above in their QUT studies and wish to continue to the Masters of Engineering accelerated program will receive further scholarship benefits, being the full payment of the course fees for the masters program.

Industry Sponsors

ESSO and Mobil
Visy Paper
EGR Group
Brisbane City Council
Bovis Lend Lease
CIEAM
Thiess

Special Course Requirements

Students enrolled in the Dean's Scholars program must maintain a GPA of 5.5 throughout their course. For a copy of the program rules and regulations please contact the F a c u l t y O f f i c e or www.bee.qut.edu.au/study/scholarships/commencing/deans.jsp

Students must complete at least 60 days of industrial experience in order to graduate.

International Student Fees

International students eligible for a Queensland OP, who are successful in gaining entry and enrol will receive a scholarship, which will partially cover their tuition fees. The Faculty will pay one third of the tuition fee and the student will be responsible for two thirds of the tuition fee and the Student Guild fees. Students who complete their degree with a course GPA of 5.5 or above and accept an offer to continue to the Master of Engineering accelerated program will receive further scholarship benefits: payment of the one third of the tuition fees for the masters program.

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Overview

This course provides a developmental path for professional engineers to master skills in selected engineering disciplines and the interaction of those disciplines. It aims to enhance your skills in dealing with more complex engineering problems and interactions between engineering technical domains and the broader context in which they exist. Systems engineering is concerned with the design, operation and maintenance of electrical and mechanical systems that are employed in medical, aerospace, industrial settings, and in communications technology. This course advances your capabilities in information literacy, problem solving, application of theory, engineering design, communication, and interaction with other professionals. Early exit with a Graduate Diploma is available upon completion of four units in the course.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant engineering discipline area and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study, or an equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language. Applicants from a non-relevant background may gain entry through successful completion of BN85, the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

Career Outcomes

Graduates may choose to become a specialist systems engineering practitioner within their chosen professional field, or use the skills and knowledge gained to diversify their capabilities across a broader spectrum of systems-related disciplines. In particular, this course provides graduates with the skills and knowledge to become a leader, manager and innovator in the chosen discipline. Graduates may typically work in government, semi-government or private organisations as electrical, mechanical, biomedical or avionics engineers.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Advanced Standing

Students completing two Masters courses in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be eligible to apply for a maximum of 24 credit points advanced standing in the second course on the basis of common units already completed. Such students will be required to complete a minimum of 72cp to be determined in consultation with the nominated Course Leader, to achieve the second Masters.

Recommended study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics are recommended.

Career Opportunities

Electrical and computer engineers design, install and maintain electrical, electronic, telecommunications and computing systems on behalf of government and private companies. A stronger training in mathematics and statistics enhances capabilities in modelling, analysis and design.

Overview

The program integrates both the engineering and mathematics degree. Mathematics and engineering have always had close connections, but recent advancement in mathematics and statistics are increasingly being used to help solve complex engineering problems.

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for this course must obtain at least 60 days of industrial experience in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia, and the coursework requirements for accredited graduate membership of the Australian Mathematical Society. Students may also become a member of the Statistical Society of Australia.

Discontinuation

From Semester 1, 2007, this course has been renamed and recoded to IX28 Bachelor of Business/Bachelor of Engineering. Currently enrolled students who wish to remain in, and graduate from the existing program will be permitted to do so up to the end of 2009. From Semester 1, 2010, all students will be enrolled in the new program.

null

This course has been discontinued. Currently enrolled students should check the Course Summary Sheet (via QUT Virtual) for enrolment and unit information.

Doctor of Philosophy (Built Environment, Engineering) (IF49)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: Yes

CRICOS code: 006367J

Course duration (full-time): 2 years (max. 4 years)

Course duration (part-time): 4 years (max. 8 years)

Domestic fees (indicative): Aust citizens or PRs will be awarded an RTS/RTA place or a QUT sponsorship for tuition fees. If you exceed the max time, you will be charged - 2009: $6,720 per semester (indicative)

International Fees (per semester): 2009: $11,500 (indicative) per semester (subject to annual review)

Domestic Entry: At any time

International Entry: At any time

Campus: Gardens Point

Entry Requirements

First class or second class division A honours degree, an appropriate Masters Degree (research or coursework), or a professional doctorate, from a recognised institution. Masters degree by coursework and professional doctorates must contain a significant research component, of no less than 33 per cent of the total degree, and must have a GPA of at least 5.5 on a 7 point scale.

Overview

This program provides in-depth research training in particular areas of built environment and engineering while broadening knowledge in a chosen discipline area. In the multimodal program candidates conduct research away from QUT, often in the workplace, either in Australia or overseas. Videoconferencing, email and other technologies make it possible for candidates to participate in activities such as seminar delivery and progress reporting.

Candidates would normally undertake their Confirmation of Candidature and Final Seminar in person. A QUT staff member of the supervisory team would normally visit the candidate at their research site at least once during their candidature. External candidates must normally spend a minimum of three months at QUT and be present in person for their confirmation of Candidature and Final Semester. Doctoral studies normally include:

- * assessed coursework
- * participation in university scholarly activities such as research seminars, teaching and publication
- * regular meetings with supervisors
- * a program of supervised research and investigation
- * preparation of a thesis. Candidates can enrol in a doctoral program through the Faculty Research Centre.

Fees

Australian citizens and permanent residents will be awarded a Research Training Scheme (RTS) place. Domestic students are not required to apply for an RTS entitlement, as it will be automatically allocated. The RTS covers tuition fees but not Guild fees or other study related costs. PhD Students are entitled to four years full-time equivalent study under these schemes. Students who exceed this entitlement may apply to QUT for extension, however the University may charge fees for the period of the program, which exceeds the student's entitlement. The University determines the fee level.

Research Areas

Areas of research interest

You can enrol in a research program in the following thematic areas of research:

- * Infrastructure (Energy, Water, Housing and Construction)
- * Smart Systems (Speech and signal processing, robotics and automation, and infrastructure and asset management)
- * Medical Engineering (Orthopaedics & trauma, Biomedical modelling and simulation) and
- * Design (industrial design, interior design, urban design and architecture.

DESIGN

The DESIGN theme includes research in Architecture, Industrial Design, Interior Design, Landscape Architecture and Urban Design. It focuses on Subtropical Design, Digital Design, Human-centred Design Research and Useability, Built Environment Design Areas, Cultural Landscape, Design for Aging, Design and Research Methodologies and Design Education. The theme is cross/inter - disciplinary related with relevant fields in the Faculty (eg. mechanical/manufacturing/medical engineering; transport engineering; structures and designs; electronic systems and informatics environment) and across the University community (eg. Institute for Health and Biomedical Innovation (IHBI), Institute for Creative Innovation (iCi), Information Security Institute (ISI), Institute for Sustainable Systems and Resources and relevant Collaborative Research Centres (CRC).

MEDICAL ENGINEERING

This program aims to engender sustainable improvements in quality of life for everybody through the innovative application of new and emerging technologies which will not only help reduce the economic burden of healthcare provision, but also generate wealth for the nation through the stimulation of local industry. Under two broad headings, the program encompasses the following research areas:

* Orthopaedic and Trauma

The Orthopaedic and Trauma group has seven principal areas of focus: bone defects; fracture healing; pathogenesis and repair of osteoarthritis; biomaterials; new approaches to minimally invasive surgery; paediatric and adult spine research; and clinical outcomes.

* Biomechanics, Modelling and Simulation

Apart from orthopaedic research, the Medical Engineering program also encompasses many other areas studying the application of mechanical and electrical engineering to clinically related healthcare problems. These include: amputee gait analysis; paediatric gait analysis; performance of paralympic athletes; osseointegrated implants; spinal and pelvic mechanics; paediatric spine deformity; artificial organs, specifically ventricular assist devices (artificial heart) and artificial lungs; tissue mechanics; bioelectrical signal analysis; tribology of artificial joints; and the interface between devices and the human body.

MEDICAL ENGINEERING - Biomechanical Modelling and Simulation

SMART SYSTEMS - Infrastructure and Asset Management
Infrastructure research, in collaboration with industry, government and professions, aims to strengthen the nation's building and infrastructure systems. Research concentrates on investigating the performance of existing and new building and infrastructure systems under realistic structural and environmental loadings including those due to natural, accidental and man-made hazards. It uses smart materials, systems and technologies, and advanced computer analysis and test methods to assess and improve the performance of existing and new building and infrastructure systems.

Asset Management research focuses on innovative industry directed research and development, education and commercialisation in an integrated approach to lifecycle physical asset management to meet present and future needs to ensure international competitiveness and sustainability of Australian industry. The overall research program will be focused on five main industry sectors: Defence, Water and Waste, Power Generation and Distribution, Extraction and Process and Transport Infrastructure.

This research is closely aligned to the CRC for Construction Innovation and the CRC for Integrated Engineering Asset Management.

SMART SYSTEMS - Robotics and Automation

The Robotics and Automation program is focussed on world-class research on robotics and navigation systems for unmanned aerial vehicles, and involves collaboration with CSIRO and Boeing. However similar automation strategies and technologies are used in a variety of control applications such as energy network control, and infomechatronic systems, and satellites.

SMART SYSTEMS - Speech and Signal Processing

This program conducts internationally competitive research in order to solve practical problems, which enable Speech, and Signal Processing to be applied in products and processes. Research focuses on, state-of-the-art speech audio and video technologies including speech/speaker recognition and personal identification technologies for forensic and security applications; speech coding for storage and communication; speech synthesis for voice response systems; audio compression for broadcasting, television and Internet applications, video compression and image recognition and restoration.

INFRASTRUCTURE - Energy

The provision of sustainable energy supplies is of critical importance to the future of Australia, and this research involves experimental and theoretical research on solar cells, wind energy and solar thermal energy generation as well as fundamental research on energy supply networks, including distributed generation technology and energy policy. This research is conducted in collaboration with energy utilities and the Queensland Sustainable Energy

Industry Development Group.

INFRASTRUCTURE - Water

The supply of fresh water and the quality of water supply are key issues facing Australia over the next 20 years, and this research looks at water re-use technology and policy. The research is practically focussed with significant collaboration with local government in South-East Queensland.

INFRASTRUCTURE - Transport

The aim of this program is to focus research effort in the freight and logistics area with an emphasis on multi-modal transportation systems. The main research areas include freight vehicle impacts, freight and logistics e-business systems, freight corridor evaluation analysis, ITS applications in freight and logistics, emissions modelling, transit evaluation methodologies, rail track modelling and analysis, and intermodal terminal planning and operations.

INFRASTRUCTURE - Housing and Construction

This research makes contributions to improved practice in the specific areas of housing, urban planning, international project management, construction and property performance, construction information and procurement technologies, and property market choice, investments, constraints opportunities, internationalisation, taxation, lifecycles, risk and culture.

The Faculty is also involved in the following Cooperative Research Centres (CRC) and externally-funded collaborative research ventures:

CRC FOR CONSTRUCTION INNOVATION

The Centre aims to create and commercially exploit tools, technologies and management systems to deliver innovative constructed assets of financial, environmental and social benefit to the community. The centre combines basic research with strategic research and development in five related programs: virtual environments for lifecycle design and construction; construction project delivery strategies; environmental sustainability; integrated design and construction support systems; and management, adaptability and the future of built assets.

CRC FOR INTEGRATED ENGINEERING ASSET MANAGEMENT

The CRC for Integrated Engineering Asset Management (CIEAM) delivers capabilities and technologies for integrated and sustainable asset management to a wide range of Australian industries in both the private and the public sectors. CIEAM consists of leading edge researchers and practitioners focused on industry directed R&D and education in the management of Australia's major engineering assets in the Defence, Utilities (power, water and gas), Process and extraction, and Transportation industries. CIEAM involves five research program areas. These are: Models and decision systems, Advanced sensors, Intelligent diagnostics and life prediction, Systems integration and IT, and Strategic human dimensions.

CRC FOR RAILWAY ENGINEERING AND TECHNOLOGIES

The Centre aims through research to develop an internationally competitive, efficient and sustainable rail industry and to facilitate the development of an Australian export industry in railway technologies. Benefits will flow in terms of improved rail efficiency and infrastructure capacity, energy savings, reduced maintenance cost and better asset utilisation. The main research areas include: 'Smart train' intelligent systems; innovative/automated maintenance and upgrading technologies; optimal traffic control and scheduling; IT systems and standards for rail management; new materials, systems and components for railways; and, industry skills development (education and training).

CRC FOR ADVANCED AUTOMOTIVE TECHNOLOGY

The CRC for Advanced Automotive Technology brings the automotive industry together with researchers in design, engineering and manufacturing to enhance the industry's international competitiveness. The aim of the research is to reduce the concept-to-product cycle times, improved manufacturing flexibility and efficiency and the development of new material systems to meet the challenges of weight reduction, increased safety and greater functionality. The CRC will also improve vehicle safety through improvements in the crash worthiness of vehicles and new intelligent products/systems that provide increased comfort, performance and entertainment.

AUSTRALIAN HOUSING AND URBAN INSTITUTE (AHURI):

The Institute is a consortium of CSIRO Division of Building, Construction and Engineering ; Queensland University of Technology; University of Queensland; Monash University, and Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology (RMIT). Its broad objective is to conduct research into issues in housing and urban fields in Australia and the Asia-Pacific region.

CENTRE FOR SUBTROPICAL DESIGN

The Centre for Subtropical Design is one of the Faculty's first funded units in one of our major targeted areas: sustainable development. This Centre will promote high quality planning, design and development that responds to the City of Brisbane and South-East Queensland Region's cultural, landscape, and climatic characteristics in ways that are sustainable and enhance the enjoyment of the region's subtropical lifestyle.

QUEENSLAND SUSTAINABLE ENERGY INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT GROUP

This group, formed in 2004 by QUT, the University of Queensland, Central Queensland University, Stanwell Corporation, CS Energy and the Queensland Conservation Council, is continuing the work of the Australian CRC for Renewable Energy in areas of energy policy, training for the sustainable energy industry (supply and use), and renewable energy technology.

AUSTRALIAN CENTRE FOR SUGAR RESEARCH INNOVATION

This Centre is the research division of the former Sugar Research Institute which transferred to QUT in July 2005. This Centre conducts research into the post-harvest processing and economics of sugar cane, and has a particular expertise in milling technology (mechanical engineering and computational fluid dynamics modelling), separation science, and total biomass utilisation, in particular the transformation of sugar cane waste into biofuels (ethanol) and biopolymers to provide renewable fuels and industrial chemicals.

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Past OP cut-off: 12

OP Guarantee: Yes

Assumed knowledge: English (4, SA) and Maths B (4, SA)

Preparatory studies: MATHS: QUT unit Preparatory Mathematics as a visiting student or Total credit points: 480

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Dr R.Mahalinga-Iyer (Engineering), Mr Richard Thomas (Information Technology)

Discipline coordinator: Dr Jasmine Banks (Engineering)

Campus: Gardens Point

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Math C and Physics are recommended.

Course Update

From semester one, 2009 this course will not be available for commencing students. IF59 will only be available for continuing students. New students - please refer to IX54. Please contact fit.enquiry@qut.edu.au for any enquiries.

Career Outcomes

Many graduates find employment in government instrumentalities such as communications, railways, electricity supply, hospitals, transport and in private organisations that are using electronics, electronic systems, computers and microprocessors to monitor, control, communicate and optimise processes and production.

Overview

The engineering component consists of studies in electronic systems engineering while the information technology component concentrates on software engineering. These studies integrate into a cohesive course which gives a wide and advanced study of modern electronic and computing systems. This double degree produces computer and electronic engineers especially suited for the development and application of electronic systems, including micro, mini and mainframe computer systems in all areas of industry.

Cooperative Education Program

An optional one-year period of paid work experience in an area of information technology is available to eligible full-time students. The Cooperative Education Program is a joint venture between employers and educators to better prepare students for employment upon graduation. Companies that QUT's Cooperative Education students have worked with include Energex, Boeing, CITEC, Global Banking and Securities Transaction, various Queensland Government departments, Dialog, TABQ, RACQ and Sun Microsystems.

For more information visit IT's Cooperative Education program home page at <http://coop.fit.qut.edu.au/>

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia and the Institution of Radio and Electronics Engineers Australia. Graduates of the Bachelor of Information Technology component meet the knowledge requirements for admission to the Australian Computer Society (ACS).

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering (Electronics)/Bachelor of Information Technology must obtain at least 60 days of industrial experience in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Unit Incompatibility/Translation Information

Details on the translation and incompatibility of old and new units is located here:

Undergraduate Translation Table

If you have completed the unit(s) listed under the Translation Unit Codes column you are not permitted to enrol in the listed new code.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Course Overview

The course is a collaborative program between the Faculties of Built Environment & Engineering and Information Technology which provides students with the electrical engineering and software development skills to seek employment as software engineers. The engineering component consists of studies in electronic systems engineering while the information technology component concentrates on software engineering. These studies integrate into a cohesive course which gives a wide and advanced study of modern electronic and computing systems. This degree produces computer and electronic engineers especially suited for the development and application of electronic systems, including micro, mini and mainframe computer systems in all areas of industry.

Course is under review

The Faculty of Science and Technology is currently reviewing this course structure to continue to meet the needs of students and employers. As a result this program may change in 2009 and is subject to final approval. Further information will be available from August 2008. Please contact enquiry.scitech@qut.edu.au for any enquiries.

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics

Career Outcomes

Software Engineers create, maintain and modify computer and software programs such as operating systems or communications software. They may also evaluate and deploy new programming tools and techniques and analyse current software products. You may work in a range of occupational environments. Software engineers can work in Engineering/IT-specific industries, as well as in other organisations requiring software engineering expertise.

Professional Recognition

Professional accreditation from Engineers Australia and the Australian Computer Society is being sought.

Special course requirements

Students are required to complete 60 days approved industrial experience.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics are recommended.

Career Outcomes

Electrical and computer engineers design, install and maintain electrical, electronic, telecommunications and computing systems on behalf of governments and private companies. Graduates of the Bachelor of Business are skilled in many aspects of business including: accountancy, advertising, banking and finance, economics, electronic business, human resource management, international business, management, marketing and public relations.

Overview

Students combine engineering knowledge in electronics, computer systems, telecommunications and electric power with a business course majoring in one or more of accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations.

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia and the Institution of Radio and Electronics Engineers Australia.

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program).

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division).

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA).

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

*Management - Australian Institute of Management;

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association.

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering must obtain at least 60 days of industrial employment/practice in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator, before graduating.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Course Design

Students are required to complete 480 credit points comprised of 252 credit points from the Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical & Computer Engineering) program and 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Business program. Students supplement the engineering component of this program with the 84* credit point Faculty Core units in the Bachelor of Business program together with a 72 credit point Major in one of the following: Accountancy, Advertising, Economics, Finance, Human Resource Management, International Business, Management, Marketing or Public Relations, as well as a further 72 credit points in which the student must complete one of the following: Double Major, Extended Major or Specialisation.

Discipline coordinator: Dr Jasmine Banks (Engineering)

Campus: Gardens Point

Course Description

This degree equips you to build and apply creative, innovative IT solutions across diverse industries. A hands-on, real world based curriculum gives you the opportunity to explore a wide range of areas within the two strands of this degree, and gain deep understanding within your chosen area speciality, such as networking, software engineering, data warehousing, business process modelling, enterprise systems, information management, web technologies, or digital societies. You will experience an innovative, hands-on approach to learning through projects where you develop IT systems. You will be able to gain entrepreneurial skills if you wish to learn how to develop an idea into a commercial opportunity. You learn to harness your creativity and people skills to maximise the impact of your technical know-how in the booming IT marketplace. It positions you for a challenging and rewarding career within the global economy. Full-time students are eligible for the Cooperative Education Program; paid industry work experience with credit towards your degree. Students are also offered many other work-integrated learning opportunities where you receive first-hand industry experience.

The engineering component consists of studies in electronic systems engineering while the information technology component concentrates on software engineering. These studies integrate into a cohesive course which gives a wide and advanced study of modern electronic and computing systems. This double degree produces computer and electronic engineers especially suited for the development and application of electronic systems, including micro, mini and mainframe computer systems in all areas of industry.

Entry Requirements

Year 12 or equivalent

Prerequisites: Nil

Assumed Knowledge: English (4,SA), Maths A, B or C (4,SA)

Primary Fields: B or C

Secondary Fields: B or C

OP Guarantee: Yes

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering (Electronics)/Bachelor of Information Technology must obtain at least 60 days of industrial experience in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

International Students

English language requirements

In addition to the above academic entry requirements, international students must meet the University's English language requirements of IELTS of 6.5 (with no lower than 6.0 for any one band).

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Career Outcomes

Many graduates find employment in government instrumentalities such as communications, railways, electricity supply, hospitals, transport and in private organisations that are using electronics, electronic systems, computers and microprocessors to monitor, control, communicate and optimise processes and production.

Cooperative Education Program

IT's Cooperative Education Program gives you the opportunity of 10-12 months paid industry placement during your course where you can integrate real experience with what you're learning in your degree. Companies that QUT's Coop Ed students have worked with include Energex, Boeing, CITEC, CSC Mining, Environmental Protection Agency, Dialog, UNiTAB, RACQ and many Queensland Government departments. The Coop Ed Program is available to Australian citizens and permanent residents only.

Find out more about the Cooperative Education Program.

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia and the Institution of Radio and Electronics Engineers Australia. Graduates of the Bachelor of Information Technology component meet the knowledge requirements for admission to the Australian Computer Society (ACS).

Pathways to Further Studies

In 2001, the Faculty introduced an accelerated Honours program to increase the number of Bachelor of Information Technology students continuing their studies to complete the Honours year. The program allowed selected high achieving students the opportunity to undertake one postgraduate unit in the final semester of their a BIT degree (or double degree) which would be counted both for completion of the degree and towards the Honours program. The program also provided students with the opportunity to commence their Honours studies over the Summer Semester.

An alternative to the Honours program is the Master of Information Technology (Research). Students who complete a BIT degree (or double degree) with a grade point average equal to, or greater than 5 (7 point scale) and who have decided against enrolling in an Honours program, could undertake this course. In addition, students may wish to enrol in the re-designed postgraduate coursework Masters which has ten specialisations allowing students to either extend their area of interest or specialise in other areas at the Masters level.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Bachelor of Technology (Mechanical) Conversion Program (ME36)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: No

CRICOS code: 020303G

Course duration (part-time): 3 years

Domestic fees (indicative): 2009: CSP $3,188 (indicative) per semester

Domestic Entry: February

International Entry: February

QTAC code: 412543

Past rank cut-off: 93. Admission to course is based on special entry requirements in addition to a rank. Please refer to Special Entry Requirements.

Total credit points: 288 (including 144 cp advanced standing)

Course coordinator: Dr R.Mahalinga-Iyer

Discipline coordinator: Dr Vladis Kosse

Campus: Gardens Point

Special Entry Requirements

Applicants must have completed an Advanced Diploma in Mechanical Engineering (or equivalent qualification) or a Bachelor of Science in an appropriate discipline.

Career Outcomes

Graduates from this degree may work closely with professional engineers and be involved in using advanced computer skills for technical analysis and detailed design, or administration. This degree was developed in direct response to industry needs and there is a strong focus on the employability of graduates in the practical, hands-on approach to subjects. The BTech is an alternative route for those wishing to continue study to professional engineer level. Graduates may commence in a design office doing calculations and preparing technical drawings from which final designs/systems will be constructed. Other areas of employment include the manufacturing sector, concerned with the organisation and maintenance of manufacturing facilities and the quality assurance and control of products. Graduates may be responsible for commissioning and managing staff and/or overseeing the operations of significant engineering plants such as mining, sugar mills, dairy factories and food processing operations.

Overview

This course builds on the practical skills gained through the TAFE Advanced Diploma by providing students with higher level theoretical knowledge, supported by laboratory and practical sessions. Subjects include design, manufacturing, materials, mechanical engineering sciences, and management.

Professional Recognition

This course has been accredited by Engineers Australia. Graduates are eligible for affiliate membership, providing them with official recognition as an engineering technologist. The three-year degree is recognised by the Singapore Institute of Engineering Technologists.

Additional Information

Candidates with an Advanced Diploma in Mechanical Engineering (or equivalent) or a relevant tertiary qualification (eg. Bachelor of Science or CAE Diploma in Mechanical Engineering) will automatically receive credit of 144 credit points.

Part-time Study

Prospective part-time students for this degree should be aware that they may need 9 to 12 hours release from their employment.

Special Course Requirements

Students must obtain at least 50 days of industrial experience with a minimum of 25 days in a engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Course Availability

This course is not taking new admissions/enrolments. Articulation from the TAFE to QUT for existing dual TAFE/QUT award students will be accepted up until semester one, 2008.

Entry Requirements

Applicants must apply via QTAC and satisfy the entry requirements for the Advanced Diploma in Engineering (Mechanical) at Brisbane North Institute of TAFE, Moreton Institute of TAFE and Yeronga Institute of TAFE.

Dual TAFE/QUT Awards

This dual award is a cooperative arrangement between QUT, the Brisbane North Institute of TAFE and Metropolitan South Institute of TAFE. It is a specially designed course offering a two-year Advanced Diploma at the participating TAFE institutes followed by a third year at QUT to qualify for a Bachelor of Technology degree. In their second year students study units from both QUT and TAFE.

Career Outcomes

Technologists may work closely with professional engineers and be involved in using advanced computer skills for technical analysis and detailed design, or administration. Other areas of employment included the manufacturing sector concerned with the organisation and maintenance of manufacturing facilities and the quality assurance and control of products.

Professional Recognition

This course has provisional accreditation from Engineers Australia (EA).

Special Course Requirements

Students must obtain at least 50 days of industrial experience with a minimum of 25 days in a engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Bachelor of Engineering (Infomechatronics) (ME40)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: No

CRICOS code: 037550J

Course duration (full-time): 4 years

Domestic fees (indicative): 2009: CSP $3,568 (indicative) per semester

International Fees (per semester): 2009: $11,250 (indicative) per semester (subject to annual review)

Domestic Entry: February

International Entry: February

QTAC code: 412502; Dfee: 412506

Past rank cut-off: 80. Admission to this course is based on prior study entry requirements in addition to a rank. Please refer to Additional Admission Information. Dfee places were not offered last year.

OP Guarantee: Yes

Total credit points: 384

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Dr R.Mahalinga-Iyer

Discipline coordinator: Dr Gary Chadwick

Campus: Gardens Point

Additional Admission Information

The ME40 Bachelor of Engineering (Infomechatronics) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Infomechatronics) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the ME40 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

This leading edge degree provides graduates with the combined skills of mechanical engineering, electrical and electronic engineering and information technology to work in the high tech fields of automated systems and robotics for the design, development, construction and service of modern equipment and plant. Graduates from this degree may expect to find employment as consultants, project managers, designers, and maintenance and instrumentation engineers in a wide variety of work situations. The range of employment opportunities is diverse and extensive. Some typical examples of organisations may include: manufacturing plants of consumer products, computer peripherals manufacturers/maintenance companies, automobile manufacturing industries, large scale manufacturing/maintenance industries such as Boeing, instrumentation industries, communication companies, research organisations, food and food processing industries and software development companies.

Overview

This course bridges the three, traditionally separate, disciplines of Mechanical Engineering, Electrical and

Electronic Engineering, and Computing and provides the combined skills required for the design, development, construction and service of modern systems and equipment. Advanced units emphasis the integration of knowledge and skills that impact on all aspects of the design, construction and service of modern computer controlled machines. In the final year a one-semester industry project will integrate and reinforce what has been learned through application in a real world setting.

Professional Recognition

This course has provisional accreditation from Engineers Australia (EA).

Special Course Requirements

Students must obtain at least 60 days of industrial work experience in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Articulation to Masters

Subject to University approval, students achieving a minimum performance criteria at the end of year 3 of the Bachelor of Engineering course, may be eligible to study two Master of Engineering Science or Master of Engineering Management units as electives. After successfully completing the Bachelor of Engineering course, students eligible to enrol in the Master of Engineering Science or Master of Engineering Management courses can then have these two units credited towards the Masters Program.

Deferment

QUT's deferment policy does not apply to this course.

Special Note

This course has been discontinued. Any remaining students should seek advice from the Course Coordinator regarding their remaining course program.

Potential Careers:

Manager, Manufacturer, Mechanical Engineer.

Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) (ME41)

Additional Admission Information

The ME41 Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the ME41 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career outcomes

The Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) provides a sound education in the basic engineering sciences, synthesis and design, engineering management functions, and the social, economic and ethical aspects of engineering practice. Graduates from this degree may find employment in a variety of roles: consultant, project manager or technical adviser where they may be involved in the operation of large, integrated energy-based plants such as mining, power stations, sugar factories, oil refineries etc. Others may work under the guidance of more experienced staff selecting equipment, installing and commissioning plants. Some graduates will go into design offices or manufacturing plants where they will be concerned principally with the logistics of production and the efficient management of people and systems.

Overview

This degree offers a balanced mix of theory and practice with the objective of preparing graduates for the work environment. Students will receive a thorough grounding in the engineering sciences and hands-on, practical experience in real world problem solving and application of theory to suit industry needs.

Engineering Management Major

Students enrolled in the Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) have the opportunity to undertake a major in Engineering Management during the final two years of their degree. Students wishing to undertake the major should consult the course coordinator.

Professional Recognition

Graduates meet the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia, the Singapore Professional Engineers Board and the Lembaga Jurutera (Board of Engineers) Malaysia. The course is also professionally recognised by the Hong Kong Institution of Engineers, the UK Institution of Mechanical Engineers, the Institution of Professional Engineers, New Zealand, and the Institution of Engineers, Ireland. The Indonesian Directorate of Higher Education accredit the course as equivalent to the appropriate Indonesian degree.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the Course Coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. This will not affect the total number of credit points required for course completion. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Mid-year Entry

The ME42 Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) midyear course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) from 2006 onwards. There will be no midyear intake into the ME42 course in 2007 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 168 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit).

If offered a place, you may be are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Special course requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) must complete at least 60 days of industrial experience/practice in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator.

Entry Requirements

Bachelor of Technology (Mechanical) from QUT. Applications are made using an I-form for the semester immediately after completion of ME36/37. Students wishing to enter at a later date must apply for the Bachelor Engineering (Mechanical) via QTAC.

Career Options

The Bachelor of Engineering (Mechanical) provides a sound education in the basic sciences, engineering sciences, engineering synthesis and design, the interrelationship between engineering and various management functions, and the social, economic and ethical aspects of engineering practice. Graduates from this degree may expect to find employment in a variety of roles: consultant, project manager, technical adviser. Some are given their initial graduate training in areas where they learn the operating characteristics and expected performance of large, integrated energy-based plants such as mining, power stations, sugar factories, oil refineries etc. Others work under the guidance of more experienced staff where they must select equipment, negotiate with suppliers and install and commission plants. Some graduates will go into design offices dealing with air conditioning and refrigeration systems, steam boilers and associated large materials handling plants. Those who go into manufacturing plants will be concerned principally with the logistics of production and the efficient management of people and systems.

Overview

This degree builds on the Bachelor of Technology and offers a balanced mix of theory and practice with the objective of preparing graduates for work as engineers. Students will continue their studies to include more in-depth study of mechanical engineering sciences including hands-on, practical experience in real world problem solving and application of theory to suit industry needs.

Professional Recognition

This degree is recognised for the purpose of membership of Engineers Australia. It is professionally recognised by the Hong Kong Institution of Engineers, the UK Institution of Mechanical Engineers, the Institution of Professional Engineers, New Zealand, and the Institution of Engineers, Ireland. Graduates meet the requirements for membership of the Singapore Professional Engineers Board, and the Lembaga Jurutera (Board of Engineers) Malaysia. ### Additional Admission Information

The ME48 Bachelor of Engineering (Medical) course has been replaced by EN40 Bachelor of Engineering (Medical) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the ME48 course in 2008 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 240 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the fourth year of the program.

If offered a place you are required to attend an in-person academic credit and enrolment session as detailed in your enrolment materials.

Career Outcomes

Medical engineering integrates physical, chemical, mathematical, and computational sciences and engineering principles to study human biology, medicine, human behaviour and health. The Bachelor of Engineering (Medical) provides the skills to design, manufacture, install, monitor and maintain medical and surgical equipment and to provide advice on engineering matters to medical and allied staff. Graduates from this degree may expect to find employment in hospitals as advisors to health and medical professionals, in firms concerned with the design, manufacture, supply and maintenance of medical, health and sporting equipment, occupational health agencies and in research institutions. In the early stages of their careers biomedical engineers might expect to be involved in the innovative use of technology, in the design of new devices and the assessment of appropriate engineering solutions to medical problems. More experienced biomedical engineers manage Biomedical Engineering Departments in hospitals and manufacturing companies and lead teams of engineers and technologists in the development of engineering solutions to improve health care.

Overview

This course provides students with the skills of mechanical engineering technology and the knowledge of the human body to design, manufacture and maintain equipment and aids for the medical, rehabilitation and sports environments. Students can choose electives such as physiology, rehabilitation psychology and robotics in health care. Current issues such as total quality management and health legislation are also covered. In the final year, students undertake a design project in the biomedical field.

Professional Recognition

This course is accredited by Engineers, Australia (EA).

Special Course Requirements

Students must obtain at least 60 days of industrial employment in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator. Half of this experience must be in an industry related to Biomedical Engineering.

Articulation to Masters

Subject to University approval, students achieving a minimum performance criteria at the end of year 3 of the Bachelor of Engineering course, may be eligible to study two Master of Engineering Science or Master of Engineering Management units as electives. After successfully completing the Bachelor of Engineering course, students eligible to enrol in the Master of Engineering Science or Master of Engineering Management courses can then have these two units credited towards the Masters Program.

Master of Engineering Management (ME76)

Year offered: 2009

Admissions: No

CRICOS code: 006368G

Course duration (full-time): 1 year

Course duration (part-time): 2 years

Domestic fees (indicative): 2009: Full fee tuition $6,750 (indicative) per semester

Domestic Entry: This course is open to continuing students only. NO NEW OFFERS WILL BE MADE AFTER 2007.

International Entry: This course is open to continuing students only. NO NEW OFFERS WILL BE MADE AFTER 2007.

Total credit points: 96

Standard credit points per full-time semester: 48

Course coordinator: Associate Professor Jay Yang
(Please refer all course enquiries to Course Leader.)

Discipline coordinator: Dr Achilles Leontakianakos (Course Leader)

Campus: Gardens Point

Overview

This course combines training in engineering management with advanced elective studies in related fields. It is suitable for those seeking to obtain a formal qualification in management while advancing engineering skills and knowledge. The core units provide an opportunity for postgraduate studies in engineering management, and the elective units allow specialisation in manufacturing and/or maintenance engineering.

Entry Requirements

A bachelor degree in engineering (or its equivalent).

Course Structure

Masters students take eight units or 96 credit points. Units MEN172, MEN177, and MEN280 are normally compulsory, but may be substituted with the approval of the courses coordinator if the student has adequate prior knowledge in the relevant field. With approval of the Course Coordinator students can take up to two graduate level electives from other disciplines.

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Further Information

International Entry: This course is open to continuing students only. NO NEW OFFERS WILL BE MADE AFTER 2007.

Total credit points: 96

Course coordinator: Professor Jay Yang (Please refer all course enquiries to Course Leader.)

Discipline coordinator: Dr Achilles Leontakianakos (Course Leader)

Campus: Gardens Point

Entry Requirements

A Bachelor of Engineering degree with honours in Mechanical Engineering OR equivalent, with a grade point average of at least 5 on a 7-point scale.

Course Structure

The flexible Master of Engineering Science (Mechanical Engineering Studies) program allows students to choose 3 units from a common pool of units offered by all the Engineering Schools (Band 1). A band of Mechanical Engineering units is then offered from which students choose 3 (Band 2). Any units from Band 1 could also be chosen for Band 2 provided that they come from the School of Mechanical, Manufacturing and Medical Engineering. Mechanical Engineering Specialised units allow students to undertake study in the areas of Medical Engineering, Infomechatronics, Engineering Management and general mechanical engineering , such as tribology, maintenance, manufacturing etc. Band 3 requires enrolment in a Mechanical Engineering Project (equivalent to 24 credit points).

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Additional Admission Information

The PS47 Bachelor of Surveying course has been replaced by UD40 Bachelor of Urban Development (Spatial Science) from 2006 onwards. There will be no intake into the PS47 course in 2007 with the exception of QTAC applicants commencing their studies with at least 168 credit points of advanced standing (academic credit); i.e. those students who will be starting in the third year of the program.

If offered a place you are not required to lodge an academic credit form, as academic credit will be awarded by QUT before the census date of your first teaching period.

If offered a place you are not required to lodge an academic credit form, as academic credit will be awarded by QUT before the census date of your first teaching period. After being awarded this credit and if you wish to seek for additional academic credit, you are then required to lodge an Application for Academic Credit form for that additional credit by the due date and subject QUT rules .

Career Outcomes

Surveyors assess geographic and land information for implementing appropriate administration for the land, sea and related structures. All levels of government, private practice and multi-national companies, statutory authorities or semi-government agencies employ them. Graduates have the opportunity to travel as the degree is readily accepted overseas. After some years of experience they may become managers or specialise. Surveyors may also work in one of the related fields such as geographic information systems, remote sensing or photogrammetry.

Overview

The Bachelor of Surveying degree is a broad-based course. The first year is a foundation year designed to prepare students to deliver practical solutions to problems involving spatial information and decision-making. Students study foundation units such as mathematics, physics, computing skills, environmental science as well as surveying in their first year. In the following years the areas covered are geodetic and control surveying, topographic mapping, photogrammetry, mine surveying, hydrographic surveying, land development design and geographic information systems.

Professional Recognition

Australia: The Bachelor of Surveying degree meets the requirements for membership of The Spatial Science Institute (Incorporating the Institution of Surveyors, Australia, the Institution of Engineering and Mining Surveyors, Australia and the Mapping Sciences Institute, Australia).

Overseas: Surveying graduates are readily accepted internationally.

Minors

Subject to the approval of the course coordinator, students may be able to choose a minor area of study. A minor is a collection of four units from the one study area, that totals 48 credit points. Students may choose from the list of minors, available from the office of the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering.

Special Course Requirements

Students are required to attend compulsory field practicals off-campus in the Moreton Region and have access to an advanced scientific calculator for use during the course. Students must obtain at least 90 days of industrial experience/practice in a surveying/mapping environment, approved by the course coordinator.

Entry Requirements

A bachelor degree or three-year diploma, or equivalent professional qualification with a minimum Grade Point Average of 4.5. Applicants entering this course from non-design qualifications require basic skills in design/perception theory, freehand and technical graphics.

In order to be considered for entry to either the Graduate Diploma or Masters courses, applicants must complete:

1. Application for Admission form
2. A personal statement in which the applicant demonstrates an understanding of the profession and the guiding belief systems of landscape architecture and shows the applicant's potential to 'fit' within this profession.
3. An Illustrated Autobiography - a concise self-expose which shows, in a combination of words and graphics, the applicant's life and interests. The objective is to give an insight into the applicant and demonstrate an aptitude for design as the core activity of the profession. This document is not a resume or curriculum vitae. It will be in A3 format and is not to exceed five pages. These documents are to be forwarded to the course coordinator.

Overview

Landscape architecture is concerned with the ordered design of open space at all scales: the appearance, atmosphere, and suitability of environment to assure its health and welfare and that of its inhabitants. Course covers landscape theory and design, professional values, environment theory, graphic and other communication, and landscape construction supported by project and field work. In the Graduate Diploma you complete a program similar to the first two years of the Masters program.

Professional recognition

This course is professionally recognised by the Australian Institute of Landscape Architects

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-times studies.

Discipline coordinator: Dr Tan Yigitcanlar (Course Leader)

Campus: Gardens Point

Overview

Students develop the knowledge, skills and social awareness to become successful urban and regional planners. The course is structured around a core of planning practice and method. Contributions from theory and activity studies are integrated with this core at each stage and set within the broader socio-economic and political contexts. Flexible teaching methods include lectures, projects, workshops, seminars and field studies. In each of the last three years student projects have been awarded top planning Institute awards at State and National levels.

Entry Requirements

A bachelor degree or equivalent is required. Applicants entering this course from non-design qualifications gain basic skills in design/perception theory, and planning graphics. A two-module Summer unit is available for this purpose. Computer literacy skills are also provided for those requiring them.

Applicants without planning or related qualifications undertake a Foundation Course of six units within the course of 2 years or part time equivalent, including a Summer Semester. These requirements may be reduced by academic credit based on previous studies. A limited number of special entry places are available in the Foundation Course for suitably experienced non-graduates. Special entry includes written and oral examinations and references.

Course Structure

The course offers a variety of structures, including full-time (100% and 75% progression rates) and part-time programs (50% progression rate). Normal entry to the course is in Semester 1 or Summer Semester, though Foundation

Studies entrants may, in special circumstances, be admitted in Semester 2.

Professional recognition

This course is professionally accredited by the Planning Institute of Australia

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

Entry Requirements

To be eligible for admission, an applicant must have:

- a recognised tertiary degree in any discipline requiring at least three years' full time study or its equivalent, or
- other documented qualifications and experience considered to be equivalent by the Head of School of Urban Development. Applicants may be required to attend an interview, or sit an examination, as part of the selection process.

Overview

The Planning Certificate is intended to provide an introduction to planning method and practice for people engaged in planning activities in government and the community, as well as being a convenient refresher course for professional planners in the latest developments in community planning theory and practice.

Students wishing to use the Graduate Certificate as a refresher or introductory course, may select any four units offered in the Graduate Diploma in Urban and Regional Planning. Full-time is one semester (48cp); part-time is 2 semesters (48cp). Please see course structure for a recommended program.

Course Structure

An overview of current planning methods is presented in Planning Processes and applied in Urban Analysis and Design and Planning Implementation. These method and practice units are accompanied by opportunity for focused study within the Elective unit, chosen in discussion with the course coordinator.

Professional Recognition

This course is registered with the Planning Institute of Australia (formerly RAPI) as a recognised Continuing Professional Development Course rated at ten credit points.

International Student Entry

QUT advises that International Students may only enrol in full-time studies.

QUT Entry Bonus Scheme

The QUT Entry Bonus Scheme applies to students completing Year 12 or equivalent in 2008 and applying for entry in 2009.

QUT will award two bonus QTAC ranks for students who successfully complete Maths C or LOTE (Language Other Than English) in secondary school and apply to start a Bachelor of Urban Development at QUT in 2009.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Career Outcomes

Graduates employed in the construction process are involved in the coordinating of the construction and maintenance of large building projects, the development of government and corporate policies, the administration of regulations, and the development and research of building systems and products. They may be employed in private organisations such as large construction and development companies or consultancies, while some are employed by government departments.

Overview

The course is concerned with the management of the overall process of construction projects and provides detailed understanding of project development from conception, through planning and construction to commissioning and maintenance. It develops skills in how to manage people, materials, equipment and plant while focusing on issues such as cost, time, quality, safety and environment. It educates students to become effective construction managers with comprehensive technological knowledge, management principles and communication skills.

Special Course Requirements

All students are required to obtain a minimum of 100 days of approved industrial experience.

Professional Recognition

Recognition is being sought from the Australian Institute of Building and the Australian Institute of Building Surveyors.

Minors

For accreditation purposes you are required to undertake specified minors which will include employment practice.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

QUT Entry Bonus Scheme

The QUT Entry Bonus Scheme applies to students completing Year 12 or equivalent in 2008 and applying for entry in 2009.

QUT will award two bonus QTAC ranks for students who successfully complete Maths C or LOTE (Language Other Than English) in secondary school and apply to start a Bachelor of Urban Development at QUT in 2009.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Career Outcomes

Property Economics is the profession associated with the management, administration and use of land and property such as office buildings, shopping centres, factories, hotels etc. Graduates work in private practice or as employees of property development, valuation, property management, investment or property finance companies. They may also work in government departments and local authorities concerned with rating, compulsory acquisitions or property development.

Overview

This course is concerned with all aspects of property - investment, asset management, development, valuation and research - with a focus on finance and on the commercial property market sector.

Special Course Requirements

You are required to obtain a minimum of 30 days approved professional work experience.

Professional Recognition

The 4 year degree has professional recognition from the Australian Property Institute, the Valuers' Registration Board of Queensland, and from the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Majors/Minors

In your final two years you will have the opportunity to undertake a major (8 units) or 2 minors (4 units) from other areas of interest.

Career Outcomes

Quantity Surveyors prepare cost estimates and check actual expenditure for large construction projects. They usually work in offices but can also visit building sites, clients and members of teams. Graduates are employed by private quantity surveying firms, government departments and building companies.

Overview

The course prepares students to work as quantity surveyors or building economists. The course covers building management, cost planning and control, building development techniques, building research, computer software application, measurement of construction, and legal issues. Applicants will be initially enrolled in the Bachelor of Urban Development (Construction Management) but will be directed to take suitable units to graduate with a Quantity Surveying primary major.

Special Course Requirements

You are required to gain a minimum of 80 days of approved employment in the final year of the course.

Professional Recognition

This course is fully accredited by the Australian Institute of Quantity Surveyors, The Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors (Honours version only), and the Board of Quantity Surveyors Malaysia (with Property Economics second major).

Minors

You will have the opportunity to undertake a minor (4 Units from one discipline area) which can be used to extend your construction knowledge into more advanced and specialised construction issues. Alternately, the minor can be used to broaden students' education by undertaking units from other faculties within the university subject to accreditation requirements.

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Career Outcomes

Surveyors assess geographic and land information for implementing appropriate administration for the land, sea and related structures. Spatial information refers to information about the geographical relationship between places, people and other items within a particular area. There are employment opportunities in all levels of government, private practice and multi-national companies, statutory authorities or semi-government agencies employ them. You will have the opportunity to travel as the degree is readily accepted overseas. After some years of experience you may become a manager or specialise as one of the following: Cadastral/Land Surveyor; Engineering Surveyor; Geodetic Surveyor; Mine Surveyor; Remote Sensing Surveyor; Topographic Surveyor; Cartographer (mapping).

Overview

This degree is a broad-based course. The first year is a foundation year designed to prepare students to deliver practical solutions to problems involving spatial information and decision-making. Students study foundation units such as mathematics, professional studies, sustainability as well as surveying in their first year. In the following years the areas covered are geodetic and control surveying, topographic mapping, photogrammetry, mine surveying, hydrographic surveying, land development design and geographic information systems.

Professional Recognition

The course is recognised by the Spatial Science Institute and has preliminary recognition from the Queensland Surveyors Board; full accreditation is currently being sought.

Special Course Requirements

You will be required to attend compulsory field practicals off-campus in the Moreton Region and have access to an advanced scientific calculator for use during the course. To graduate you are required to have at least 90 days of approved industrial experience/practice in a surveying/mapping environment.

Minors

For professional recognition you will undertake two minors (a minor is four units or 48 credit points in the same discipline) the first is a Science minor which includes Maths and the second an Applications minor which consists of a Work Place Integrated Learning unit, a project unit and two specialised spatial science units.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Deferment

QUT will also award one bonus rank to students who, while at school, successfully complete one or more university-level subjects at any Australian university.

Career Outcomes

Urban and Regional Planners develop plans and policies for the use of land and resources. They aim to fulfil the social, cultural economic and environmental needs of the community. There are numerous employment opportunities can found in state and local government departments, with private sector planning consultants and land development enterprises. Graduates can build careers in urban design, community health and welfare, housing, transport, and strategic land-use planning, and land and resource development.

Overview

This course aims to educate students to become innovative leaders in professional planning, with the capacity and will to create a better world. Graduates will apply perceptive sensibilities and skills to create sustainable natural and human environments. The QUT course emphasises creative design and inclusive community planning. You will have the opportunity to work on live projects with local councils and community groups.

Professional Recognition

This course has received accreditation from the Planning Institute of Australia.

Minors/Majors

You will be able to select two four unit minors or one eight-unit major to enhance your broader appreciation of fields related to urban and regional planning for example: landscape architecture, urban design, surveying, property economics, law and business management.

Overview

This course aims to enhance and advance the range of knowledge, skills and social understanding required to operate professionally within the urban development context. The course sets practice within the broader socioeconomic and political contexts that influence the development of policy and infrastructure in the built environment. The course is designed to offer graduates the full range of knowledge, skills and social understanding required to become a successful urban and regional planner. Early exit with a Graduate Diploma is available upon completion of four units in the course.

Entry Requirements

A four-year full-time bachelor degree in a relevant urban development discipline area and a grade point average of 5.0 or more (on a 7-point scale) in that study, or an equivalent qualification determined by the Faculty. English language requirements for the course are an English Language Proficiency level in accordance with QUT requirements (IELTS score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 6.0) if English is not your first language. Applicants from a non-relevant background may gain entry through successful completion of BN85, the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering.

If requested, supply documentation of professional work experience as detailed in Completing the PG Form.

Professional Recognition

Students completing the Graduate Certificate in Built Environment and Engineering, with appropriate unit selection, and the Master of Urban Development (Urban and Regional Planning), will be eligible for graduate membership of the Planning Institute of Australia.

Career Outcomes

Graduates can expect to be in demand in local, state and commonwealth government departments, planning and development enterprises and consultancies, and in the voluntary sector, both in Australia and overseas. Opportunities include development planning and assessment, consultancy within the urban design field, regional planning, plan and policy preparation for land use, environment, housing, transport, recreation, education, community engagement and development, and corporate planning.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Advanced Standing

Students completing two Masters courses in the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering will be eligible to apply for a maximum of 24 credit points advanced standing in the second course on the basis of common units already completed. Such students will be required to complete a minimum of 72cp to be determined in consultation with the nominated Course Leader, to achieve the second Masters.

OVERVIEW

QUT's Faculty of Business develops global business professionals by offering real-world business courses designed in conjunction with industry and the business community.

With more than 8800 students enrolled each semester, including 1500 international students from over 70 countries, and more than 1000 academic and support staff, Business is not only QUT's largest faculty, but also one of the largest and most respected business faculties in the country.

Through various collaborations with industry and professional bodies, we are a key player in the business community with extensive local and international links.

Accreditations – your guarantee of quality

We are the first business school in Australia to have attained all three leading symbols of excellence: the prestigious 'triple crown' of international accreditation, from leading accrediting bodies AACSB International (Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business), EFMD (European Foundation for Management Development), via its EQUIS System, and AMBA (the Association of MBAs). These accreditations mean your QUT business degree is even better recognised by employers globally.

The Faculty of Business is now in a select group of less than one per cent of business schools worldwide which hold all three accreditations.

International relevance

In today's global business environment, the Faculty's international focus remains a high priority. Our international accreditations are testament to our commitment to forging quality global relationships, and gaining recognition internationally.

We strive to enhance all our programs with an international perspective, through attracting teaching professionals with international experience, fostering teaching, research, and executive education partnerships with institutions from across the globe, and integrating international content and perspectives into our curriculum. Our student diversity, exchange programs and study tours provide international opportunities for students to enhance their studies.

Real-world focus

Our innovative programs recognise that in the ever-changing world of business, students need to be up to date with the professional world. QUT's real world focus is further reinforced by the diversity of experience and expertise of our local and international teaching staff, many of whom also work in industry, bringing current real-world examples to the classroom. This diversity creates a rich learning and research environment in which to study.

In the international business environment, a solid foundation in business principles is mandatory – along with the flexibility to pursue studies in multiple areas. With this in mind, the Faculty has developed a range of innovative and collaborative programs that allow students to graduate with the business acumen and entrepreneurial skills that they need to anticipate future business opportunities and challenges.

Students are encouraged to undertake real-world projects and are provided with opportunities to help develop strong links with the business community. And you can take advantage of our extensive exchange program and our international study tour options.

Business Advantage program

Our award-winning Business Advantage program offers undergraduate students a wide range of co-curricular personal and professional development programs to enhance their learning experience. Students develop skills that enable them to contribute effectively as citizens, as leaders in the wider community, and as competent professionals within their chosen disciplines. Short programs are available in areas such as leadership, teamwork, public speaking and entrepreneurship. Business Advantage also provides the opportunity for students to work together on community projects, development programs, and participate in conferences and seminars.

Career outcomes

We know what employers want in today's business graduates - because we ask them. We regularly involve representatives from the business community in the development and review of our courses, and undertake employer research to rate our graduates' job readiness. In fact employers tell us our graduates are productive from day one, with the winning combination of theoretical and practical skills, which puts them in demand by some of the best companies and organisations in Australia and internationally.

As a QUT business graduate you will enter the business community with the acumen and entrepreneurial skills needed to turn any good idea into a successful enterprise within today's competitive international environment. And you will be able to anticipate the business challenges and opportunities of the future.

CBD location

The Faculty of Business, incorporating its four discipline-based schools, the Brisbane Graduate School of Business (BGSB), and Research centres, is based at QUT's Gardens Point campus in the heart of Brisbane, adjoining the beautiful City Botanic Gardens. Centrally located, the campus is easily accessible and convenient to Brisbane's central business district. Some of the Faculty's programs are also offered at the Caboolture campus in Brisbane's north.

Undergraduate courses

We recognise that in the ever-changing world of business you need a solid foundation in business principles along with the flexibility to pursue studies in multiple areas. Our Bachelor of Business includes eight core units which will equip you with generic skills and competencies for today's business environment. You will also develop discipline-based expertise through your primary major, and have the flexibility to tailor your studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations, through a wide range of complementary or diverse study options.

The 24-unit degree comprises three distinct components:

- eight Business Faculty core units that all students undertake as a broad-based introduction to business principles

- eight units in your chosen primary area of study, also known as your primary major. Students enrolling at our Gardens Point campus choose one of the following majors:
  - Accountancy
  - Advertising
  - Finance
  - Economics
  - Human Resource Management
  - International Business
  - Management
  - Marketing
  - Public Relations.
- eight units in complementary study areas - choose a second major (six units), one or two minors (four units each), an extension in your primary area of study (four units), or select up to eight optional units across multiple areas of interest within Business, or across the university.

Double degrees are also a popular option. A number of combinations are available, giving you expanded career options and a competitive edge on graduation.

The Bachelor of Business Marketing and Management majors are also available at the Caboolture campus. Student enrolled at Gardens Point may also enrol in individual units at Caboolture for convenience.

Undergraduate degree options

BACHELOR OF BUSINESS

QUT's Bachelor of Business provides students with a solid foundation in business principles as well as the flexibility to pursue studies in multiple areas – to suit their own career aspirations.

Students can complete their business major along with their selection of study areas from a comprehensive range of second majors, minors and a choice of up to eight units from Business or across the University—all within their three-year degree program.

We offer a range of innovative accelerated and expanded study options and scholarships for the Bachelor of Business which are designed to enhance high achieving students' study experiences and expand their career opportunities.

Academic Excellence Scholarships (OP1-2)

From 2009, domestic OP1-2 students will receive a generous scholarship upon entry to the Bachelor of Business.

Accelerated 2 year option (OP1-5)

High-achieving students can complete their degree in just two years and enter the workforce ahead of their peers.

Dean's Honours Program 3 year option (OP1-2)

Gain research and analytical skills valued by employers in this prestigious program which adds an Honours research degree to the Bachelor of Business in just three years. Scholarships of up to $20,000 are available to selected students.

Traditional 3-year option

Complete your Bachelor of Business in three years. Students can benefit from free personal development modules available through our award-winning Business Advantage program.

Corporate Partners in Excellence (CPIE) 3 year scholarship program

CPIE provides two semesters of valuable work experience with our corporate partners while completing the Bachelor of Business. CPIE recipients receive a scholarship of $28,500 and can graduate in just three years.

Degree plus Honours or Masters 4 year options
For students seeking further depth of expertise in their chosen field, or to broaden their studies into another business area, you can add an honours or masters degree to your Bachelor of Business in just one extra year.

Double Degrees

To meet the growing demands of industry and students, the Faculty also offers a range of Double Degrees which add a second degree from another QUT faculty to the Bachelor of Business. Students can complete both degrees in just four to five years. Double degrees are available in creative industries, engineering, health, IT, journalism, law, mathematics, psychology or science.

Postgraduate coursework degrees

There are many reasons for considering postgraduate study. Whether you are looking for career advancement, a change in career direction, personal development, or research opportunities we can help you with postgraduate studies to suit your needs. For non-degree holders, we offer alternative pathways that build on your work experience.

The Faculty's Brisbane Graduate School of Business (BGSB) administers the QUT MBA and Master of Business programs. Our MBA is consistently ranked among the top tier MBAs in Australia. The School offers 19 areas of specialisation including the latest topics in management such as Entrepreneurship, Leadership, Project Management, Philanthropy and Nonprofit Studies, and Corporate Governance.

Extensive Research Opportunities

The Faculty of Business is a hub of leading business research in Australia, delivering real-world outcomes to inform business, industry, government and the community both locally and internationally. Research activity undertaken by the Faculty's academic staff flows through to our course content to ensure students benefit from current business thinking.

Our mission is to combine a 'real-world' focus on research that is relevant to business and policy practice with an unrelenting pursuit of the highest scholarly standards. The Faculty's research effort is coordinated through two national centres and three specialised research programs, which also support external collaboration and interdisciplinary research to strengthen the Faculty's research portfolio. The Faculty's schools also conduct research within their specialist areas.

Key achievements:

- Ranked number one in Australia by the 2007 Thomson Scientific report for citations per publication for the years 2002–2006 in Business and Economics
- Successfully secured ARC Linkage Grants of more than A$1million in 2007
- Ranked number one in the country in research income by the Australian Research Council in the areas of Business and Management (2007).

Postgraduate research degrees

BACHELOR OF BUSINESS (HONOURS)

The Honours program allows high achieving students from the Bachelor of Business to advance their studies in their field. Students develop the ability to conduct rigorous independent research and integrate conceptual and practical knowledge.

MASTER OF BUSINESS (RESEARCH)

Students pursue advanced studies within their discipline and develop their capacity to conduct rigorous independent research. Students undertake advanced coursework that integrates conceptual and practical issues.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY (PhD)

The PhD offers students the opportunity to demonstrate academic rigor in a broad field of learning and to make an original and substantial contribution to knowledge in that field.

DOCTOR OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION (DBA) **

Designed for working professionals, the DBA will offer business graduates with an MBA or equivalent the chance to extend their knowledge and research capacity through a combination of coursework and research.

** Available from Semester 2 2009, subject to University approval.

RESEARCH CENTRES

The Australian Centre for Philanthropy and Nonprofit Studies (CPNS) is a leader in the advancement and application of knowledge related to the philanthropic and nonprofit sector in Australia. It assists in the creation of social capital and enhanced civil society. CPNS also contributes to the professionalism, effectiveness and international reputation of the sector in Australia by providing professional service and commentary, while producing graduates that enhance the capacity of the sector.

The National Centre for Econometric Research (NCER) is a joint research initiative between QUT and the University of Technology Sydney. It is dedicated to enhancing, undertaking and disseminating information and knowledge about econometric research methods among public policy makers, business professionals, and the academic community. This research embraces all forms of econometrics development of new methodologies, estimating quantitative models of economic and financial behaviour, assessing the effects of public policy and projecting the effects of alternative policy proposals.

Specialised research programs Entrepreneurship and Innovation is a multidisciplinary research program which focuses on business start-ups, characteristics of entrepreneurship, and business innovation. Unique in Australia, it seeks to generate cutting-edge research which fosters the development of knowledge and resources for business development and growth.

Infrastructure Management is a research program which examines how people and processes in specific organisational cultures can best be managed to achieve strategic organisational goals and quality work life. The focus is on understanding factors which assist organisational performance, as well as individual well-being.

Services Innovation Research Program provides a focal point for research on technological and non-technical innovation in the services sector across marketing, management, economics and accounting. Recognising the importance of services in national economies, the program examines customer service, service quality and innovation, online and offline services, human resources in the services sector and services management.

OTHER KEY RESEARCH PROJECTS

The Airport Metropolis Research Project is a world-first initiative exploring the emergence of the 'Airport Metropolis' phenomenon. QUT is taking the lead in the study, researching the relationship between airports and their urban surroundings, across Australia and internationally. After years of planning by Brisbane Airport Corporation (BAC) and QUT, the A$3.8 million project is a unique international collaboration between the community, industry, universities and three levels of government.

The Comprehensive Australian Study of Entrepreneurial Emergence (CAUSEE) research project is providing large-scale insight into our understanding of independent entrepreneurship in Australia. It is the largest research study of business start-ups ever undertaken in Australia, and the only large-scale study to track particular ventures over time. For more information and the latest findings, visit www.causee.bus.qut.edu.au/

School-based research

The Faculty recognises the importance of strong discipline-focused research undertaken by its Schools, and actively encourages interdisciplinary research.

Accountancy major overview

The Accountancy major within the QUT Bachelor of Business prepares students for professional accreditation in one of the most respected business professions. Professional accountants are in increasing demand nationally and internationally by organisations throughout the commercial, public and not-for-profit sectors. Accountants can work in commerce and industry, in public or chartered accounting firms, in government organisations or as individual practitioners.

Discipline units focus on financial and management accounting requirements, specialised applications in company accounting, audit and assurance, tax and company regulation. Core concepts and knowledge, problem solving skills, and critical and analytical thinking are developed throughout the entire major.

Contemporary issues facing modern businesses, such as superannuation and wealth management and forensics can be covered in further studies within the school.

The Capstone Accountancy unit simulates real-world situations faced by professional accountants, and requires students to work in teams to research issues and develop practical solutions.

Advertising major overview

The positioning of QUT's Advertising major within the Bachelor of Business gives students an opportunity to develop creative skills, as well as understand how advertising works in a business context.

Graduates find work in advertising and integrated communication agencies, and as in-house specialists in larger organisations. Foundation units in the major introduce the theory and practice of advertising, and develop skills and knowledge in marketing and audience research and consumer behaviour. Two units then focus on tactical skills in the key professional areas of advertising copywriting and media planning. The major is completed by units that focus on understanding advertising at a more strategic level, including the application of strategic planning and management to advertising practice.

The capstone Advertising Campaigns unit gives students the opportunity to create a complete advertising campaign for a real-world client.

BS05 Course Notes

See BS05 Course Notes entry for information about the course design and definitions.

Other Majors

See also separate entries for the following majors in this course: Accountancy, Economics, Finance, Human Resource Management, International Business, Management, Marketing, and Public Relations.

Professional Recognition

Students may be eligible for a membership to a number of professional bodies depending on choice of major and unit selection. Click here for more information www.bus.qut.edu.au/study/currentstude/profrecognition.jsp

Course Structure

The new Bachelor of Business degree allows you to be flexible in your chosen field of studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The three distinct components within the degree will give you many combinations of majors and specialisations.

Students commencing the Bachelor of Business must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points, comprised of:

(a) eight Faculty Core units

(b) one block of eight Major Core units

(c) choice of one block of:

6 Second Major core units and 2 electives or

8 Electives or

2 Minors (university or faculty or extension) or

1 Minor (university or faculty or extension) and 4 electives

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Economics major overview

The Economics major in the Bachelor of Business develops knowledge about economic behaviour, the workings of economic systems, and the skills used in analysing economic issues in a wide range of contexts. Graduates find work as analysts and advisers in commercial and public sector organisations. They are also prepared for further study in economics leading to work as professional or academic economists.

The major begins with units on quantitative analysis and on economics that build on the Faculty core program. Core economic principles are then further developed through units devoted to microeconomics (focussed on the individual, firm or industry) and macroeconomics (focussed on whole economies). Students then choose three of five units devoted to applications of economic theory in areas such as environmental, behavioural and international economics, and development of research skills.

The capstone unit, Contemporary Applications of Economic Theory, integrates earlier learning by giving students the opportunity to analyse specific commercial, social and environmental issues.

Languages Course structure

Important Information:

A wide range of 6 unit second major and 4 unit minors are available in the following languages:

- French (UQ)
- German (UQ)
- Indonesian (UQ)
- Italian (Griffith University)
- Japanese (UQ)
- Korean (UQ)
- Mandarin (QUT)
- Russian (UQ)
- Spanish (UQ and Griffith University)

The Language programs are delivered through an alliance between QUT, the University of Queensland and Griffith University.

QUT administers the Mandarin program. All other languages are available to QUT students through cross-institutional enrolments at either the University of Queensland or Griffith University. Classes may be offered on more than one campus where there are sufficient enrolments.

In order to satisfy requirements for a second major or minor, the same language must be studied.

Students wishing to study a language as a 6 unit major should enrol in the first language unit in their first semester.

For further information regarding Languages, check the website at <http://www.bus.qut.edu.au/study/languages/index.jsp>.

LANGUAGES AS OPTION UNITS (ELECTIVES)

Finance major overview

The Finance major in the QUT Bachelor of Business prepares students to plan, manage and analyse the financial, monetary and performance aspects of businesses, including specialist financial businesses such as banks. Financial management skills are increasingly in demand among businesses of all kinds, but graduates are particularly likely to find work in areas such as banking, funds management, financial analysis, stock broking and financial planning.

The major begins with units on quantitative analysis and economics that extend learning in these areas in the Faculty core program. Students are then exposed to core concepts and skills in finance, including financial instruments, capital planning, funds acquisition, asset and debt management, financial analysis, and investments management.

The Finance Capstone unit integrates learning across the major by giving students the opportunity to apply their skills to a variety of simulations of real-world situations in the finance industry.

Languages Course structure

Important Information:

A wide range of 6 unit second major and 4 unit minors are available in the following languages:

- â€¢ French (UQ)
- â€¢ German (UQ)
- â€¢ Indonesian (UQ)
- â€¢ Italian (Griffith University)
- â€¢ Japanese (UQ)
- â€¢ Korean (UQ)
- â€¢ Mandarin (QUT)
- â€¢ Russian (UQ)
- â€¢ Spanish (UQ and Griffith University)

The Language programs are delivered through an alliance between QUT, the University of Queensland and Griffith University.

QUT administers the Mandarin program. All other languages are available to QUT students through cross-institutional enrolments at either the University of Queensland or Griffith University. Classes may be offered on more than one campus where there are sufficient enrolments.

In order to satisfy requirements for a second major or minor, the same language must be studied.

Students wishing to study a language as a 6 unit major should enrol in the first language unit in their first semester.

For further information regarding Languages, check the website at <http://www.bus.qut.edu.au/study/languages/index.jsp>.

LANGUAGES AS OPTION UNITS (ELECTIVES)

Individual units can be taken as option units (electives), if available.

Human Resource Management major overview

Human Resource Management is concerned with all aspects of managing people in organisations, including recruitment, performance and reward systems, employee relations and staff development. Graduates find work as specialists in the rapidly growing human resource management field. The major will also broaden the knowledge base and enhance the career prospects of general managers and other business professionals.

The major begins with three units introducing the human resource management discipline, including individual and organisational behaviour, and the legal context for employment relationships. Third-level units in the major cover specialised knowledge and skills required by practitioners, including recruitment and selection, performance and reward, and learning and development in organisations.

The capstone Personal and Professional Development unit develops personal, interpersonal and group skills as a way of equipping students to apply the knowledge base gained throughout the major in professional settings.

BS05 Course Notes

See BS05 Course Notes entry for information about the course design and definitions.

Other Majors

See also separate entries for the following majors in this course, Accountancy, Advertising, Economics, Finance, International Business, Management, Marketing, and Public Relations.

Professional Recognition

Students may be eligible for a membership to a number of professional bodies depending on choice of major and unit selection. Click here for more information

Course Structure

The new Bachelor of Business degree allows you to be flexible in your chosen field of studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The three distinct components within the degree will give you many combinations of majors and specialisations.

Students commencing the Bachelor of Business must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points, comprised of:

- (a) eight Faculty Core units
- (b) one block of eight Major Core units
- (c) choice of one block of:
  - 6 Second Major core units and 2 electives or
  - 8 Electives or
  - 2 Minors (university or faculty or extension) or
  - 1 Minor (university or faculty or extension) and 4 electives

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

International Business major overview

QUT's International Business major within the Bachelor of Business gives students skills and knowledge customised to the international business environment across a range of business disciplines, including finance, accounting, management and marketing.

Graduates find work as international business professionals in Australia or overseas, or may combine the major with study in another professional area to promote their global professional mobility.

The major progresses from the Importing and Exporting unit, introducing students to the fundamentals of international trade, to units focussed on international finance, communication and negotiation, accounting, logistics and marketing. The International Business in the Asia-Pacific unit provides an overview of the contemporary business environment in Australia's region, while the capstone International Business Strategy unit integrates learning throughout the major by focussing on the strategic decisions required by an individual firm to succeed in the international environment.

See BS05 Course Notes entry for information about the course design and definitions.

Other Majors

See also separate entries for the following majors in this course: Accountancy, Advertising, Economics, Finance, Human Resource Management, Management, Marketing, and Public Relations.

Professional Recognition

Students may be eligible for a membership to a number of professional bodies depending on choice of major and unit selection. Click here for more information www.bus.qut.edu.au/study/currentstude/profrecognition.jsp

Course Structure

The new Bachelor of Business degree allows you to be flexible in your chosen field of studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The three distinct components within the degree will give you many combinations of majors and specialisations.

Students commencing the Bachelor of Business must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points, comprised of:

(a) eight Faculty Core units

(b) one block of eight Major Core units

(c) choice of one block of:

6 Second Major core units and 2 electives or

8 Electives or

2 Minors (university or faculty or extension) or

1 Minor (university or faculty or extension) and 4 electives

Languages Option

The course structure for both full-time and part-time International Business students varies depending on whether languages are selected as an option. Alternative course structures are included: one outlines the course structure if no languages are taken, the other outlines the structure for those who wish to undertake a language specialisation. If languages are taken as a specialisation, language units should commence in the first semester of the first year to maintain continuity from earlier pre-QUT language studies. All language units must normally be taken in the same language. International students must take a language that is not their native tongue.

Deferment

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Management major overview

Management is a pervasive activity in organisations of all kinds and is fundamental to success in business. QUT's Management major within the Bachelor of Business gives students the analytical, strategic and operational skills and detailed knowledge of the contemporary business environment required to take on a professional position with management responsibilities or a leadership position within an organisation. Graduates find work in a variety of organisations from small business start-ups to large companies and the public sector.

The major begins with units introducing key management concepts and their application to manufacturing and service organisations before progressing to units focussed on entrepreneurship and innovation, and intercultural communication and negotiation. Third-level units develop skills in strategic management and managing in a dynamic business environment. The capstone Project Management unit develops the technical and the people skills required to manage individual projects.

Students commencing the Bachelor of Business must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points, comprised of:

- (a) eight Faculty Core units
- (b) one block of eight Major Core units
- (c) choice of one block of:
  - 6 Second Major core units and 2 electives or
  - 8 Electives or
  - 2 Minors (university or faculty or extension) or
  - 1 Minor (university or faculty or extension) and 4 electives

If you would like to review a course structure via checklist please click here .

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Marketing major overview

Marketing encompasses the business skills and functions that allow organisations to sell their products and services in competitive markets. Tools such as market and consumer research, product design, promotional, pricing and distribution strategies will be studied to give a depth of understanding of marketing. Business graduates with a marketing major work in a very wide range of roles and industries from the marketing departments of large firms to small businesses, consultancies and not-for-profit organisations.

The QUT Marketing major builds from a first-year unit introducing basic elements of the discipline to units developing knowledge in marketing research, management and communication, to units focussed on special applications such as e-marketing, services marketing and international marketing.

The capstone Strategic Marketing unit develops skills in implementing strategic marketing decisions in specific business situations. Over the course students also develop the ability to integrate marketing and other business functions.

Public Relations major overview

At QUT, the Public Relations major takes publicity, promotion, events, and relationship-building to new levels. Public relations students learn and practise skills to help organisations manage reputations and relationships with employees, customers, community, government and other stakeholders. The positioning of the public relations major within the Bachelor of Business gives students the opportunity to combine a thorough training in relevant communication skills with a broad knowledge of the contemporary business environment.

Public relations graduates find work as communication specialists in organisations ranging from dedicated public relations consultancies to specialised units within small, medium, and large firms, government departments and not-for-profits.

Following the introductory unit, which provides an overview of public relations theory and practice, two units build the writing and planning skills necessary for practice. Three third-level units provide a broad view of the strategic application of public relations, including public relations within organisations, global examples of public relations, and public relations management. The capstone Public Relations Campaigns unit gives students the chance to integrate earlier learning by designing a campaign for a real world client.

Course Structure

The new Bachelor of Business degree allows you to be flexible in your chosen field of studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The three distinct components within the degree will give you many combinations of majors and specialisations.

Students commencing the Bachelor of Business must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points, comprised of:

(a) eight Faculty Core units

(b) one block of eight Major Core units

(c) choice of one block of:

6 Second Major core units and 2 electives or

8 Electives or

2 Minors (university or faculty or extension) or

1 Minor (university or faculty or extension) and 4 electives

Deferral

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferralment.

Course Structure

The new Bachelor of Business (Accelerated Program) allows you to be flexible in your chosen field of studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The three distinct components within the program will give you many combinations of study areas and minors as well as opportunities to participate in internships, work placements, special topics and projects during summer.

Students commencing the Bachelor of Business must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points, comprised of:

- (a) eight Faculty Core units
- (b) one block of eight Major Core units
- (c) choice of one block of Study Area A):
4 Option units (electives) or
1 Minor (4 units each) (university or faculty or extension) or
(c) summer program

Due to the accelerated structure of the course, not all second study areas will be available.

Advanced Standing/Credit

Due to the accelerated nature of this program, advanced standing or credit for previous study is not permitted.

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

These courses provide advanced-level studies for those students with an appropriate accountancy degree.

The discipline studies are designed to extend your real-world accountancy knowledge and skills. You will be introduced to contemporary issues facing modern businesses such as the impact of international differences in accounting policies and practices, forensics and, from an accounting perspective, the factors that contribute to an effective governance and accountability framework.

Studies will extend your ability to gather and interpret financial information for business decision making and forensic investigation.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree with an appropriate major in Accountancy with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

Overview

This course is designed for people with no or limited prior knowledge in finance who wish to change career direction or enhance their career options.

You will be introduced to managerial finance and economics, and move on to more advanced, practical studies in corporate finance, security analysis, portfolio management, trading and risk management. You will graduate with an understanding of the principles and practice of finance, and have substantial conceptual and applied finance knowledge, and be prepared for careers such as a financial adviser, investment banker, or financial or equity analyst.

You will have access to a fully equipped Securities Dealing Room on campus, the first of its kind in Queensland. Live financial data, via the Bloomberg and Datastream networks, will allow you to experience the financial markets in real time, without the risks involved in real transactions.

The course also extends your knowledge if you are a graduate from a professional association such as FINSIA and may assist with preparation for the Chartered Financial Analysts (CFA) program.

The Master of Business (Applied Finance) is fully compliant under ASIC's RG146 training standard, which allows graduates to give financial product advice to retail clients. For specific information, please refer to ASIC's RG146 document and RG146 register.

Professional Recognition

Students will meet the educational requirements for Senior Associate membership of the Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA). Graduates may also meet the educational requirements for professional level membership of the FTA â CFTP (the Finance and Treasury Association Limited â Certified Finance and Treasury Professional). Graduates require a minimum of four finance, treasury, risk management or investment management units at a graduate level. (This can include one accounting & taxation and one finance law unit.) The Master of Business (Applied Finance) is fully compliant under ASIC's RG146 training standard, which allows graduates to give financial product advice to retail clients.

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent in any field other than Finance, with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale). Applicants interested in the Applied Finance specialisation who have an undergraduate degree in Finance should contact the Graduate School of Business to determine whether an advanced Applied Finance program can be devised.

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or
- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

International students who do not meet the above English proficiency entry level may be offered a Pathway entry option if they demonstrate an English language proficiency level not lower than the following:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 5.0; or
- TOEFL: 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

Course Design

Students are required to complete 144 credit points of units. Students should follow the standard course progressions as outlined in the below course structures. Non-standardised course progression may result in unit selection difficulties. Students should contact the Faculty for course progression advice.

Cohort Rule

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

In today's rapidly changing business environment, Human Resource Management (HRM) professionals are confronted with the challenges of developing organisational and workforce capability. HRM expertise is also increasingly required by line managers, who now take a more active role in the development and management of their team members.

The Human Resource Management major is designed to increase the skills of both specialists and line managers. HRM professionals will develop a broader view of the nature of business, and the relationship between how people are managed and the organisation's performance in the global context of business.

Those who are undertaking HRM activities but have a background in other professional fields will gain the enhanced people management skills they require. The major also suits the needs of graduates who wish to move into the HRM profession.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent with a minimum GPA of 4 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

Course Design

Students are required to complete 144 credit points of units. Important note: to ensure that the program builds on your prior academic and work experience and is consistent with your planned professional development, each participant in the HRM major should have a program plan. To obtain or renegotiate your plan, please consult with the subject area coordinator.

Students enrolled in the BS16 Master of Business who wish to exit early from this course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma in Business, may do so after they have successfully completed eight (8), 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, approved by the Course Coordinator.

Cohort Rule

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

If you are interested in advertising, promotions or communications, you should consider an Integrated marketing Communication (IMC) major. Studies in IMC will provide you with a systematic and comprehensive understanding of the theory and research integration of marketing communication.

The course focuses on refinement of analytical skills and knowledge required for decision making in the areas of advertising, marketing and public relations. IMC focuses on the strategic integration of the functions of public relations, advertising, promotion, direct marketing, and personal selling to achieve brand equity and increase the effectiveness of promotional communications with target audiences.

You will be equipped to confront the fragmentation of mass markets, the explosion of new technologies that give consumers more control over the communication process, the emergence of global markets, and rapid changes in economic conditions within which organisations operate.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent in any field with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

International students who do not meet the above English proficiency entry level may be offered an alternate entry option if they demonstrate an English language proficiency level not lower than the following:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 5.0; or

- TOEFL: 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

This entry option requires students to successfully complete two Business English units (totalling 24 credit points) in their first semester, as well as 24 credit points in the Faculty of Business Masters course. Successful completion of the Business English units (minimum grade of 4.0 of a 7-point scale) will count as electives (totalling 24 credit points) in the relevant course.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 144 credit points of units. Please refer to the course structures for information on specific unit requirements.

Students enrolled in the BS16 Master of Business who wish to exit early from this course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma in Business, may do so after they have successfully completed eight (8), 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, approved by the Course Coordinator.

Pathways Units – International Students Only

Pathways units are designed for academically qualified students who do not meet the language requirements. For further information and entry requirements for Pathways, visit the webpage.

International students may choose to study two pathways units in:

• Applied Finance

• Integrated Marketing Communication

• International Business

• Marketing

• Public Relations

• Strategic Advertising

These Pathways units will replace two elective units in your course program (with the exception of Integrated Marketing Communication where the Pathways units will replace the two foundation studies units).

Overview

Postgraduate studying international business is designed for those seeking to understand the additional complexity of international business compared to domestic business activities. The programs build specific knowledge and skills in international business relevant to global business needs, and also provide the opportunity to include studies in allied business disciplines and languages.

The courses included studies of global business operations, cross-cultural communication and negotiation, applied risk management, regional specialisations-topics which are highly relevant to international business in today's complex and competitive environment.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent in any field with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

International students who do not meet the above English proficiency entry level may be offered an alternate entry option if they demonstrate an English language proficiency level not lower than the following:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 5.0; or

- TOEFL: 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

This entry option requires students to successfully complete two Business English units (totalling 24 credit points) in their first semester, as well as 24 credit points in the Faculty of Business Masters course. Successful completion of the Business English units (minimum grade of 4.0 of a 7-point scale) will count as electives (totalling 24 credit points) in the relevant course.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 144 credit points of units. Please refer to the course structures for information on specific unit requirements.

Students enrolled in the BS16 Master of Business who wish to exit early from this course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma in Business, may do so after they have successfully completed eight (8), 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, approved by the Course Coordinator.

Articulation

Students who have articulated from the Graduate Certificate in Business may receive block credit for 48 credit points.

Pathways Units – International Students Only

Pathways units are designed for academically qualified students who do not meet the language requirements. For further information and entry requirements for Pathways, visit the webpage.

International students may choose to study two pathways units in:

- Applied Finance
- Integrated Marketing Communication
- International Business
- Marketing
- Public Relations
- Strategic Advertising

These Pathways units will replace two elective units in your course program (with the exception of Integrated Marketing Communication where the Pathways units will replace the two foundation studies units).

A cohort rule applies to this course.

More details...

Overview

This course is designed to equip you with knowledge and skills for a career in the management of philanthropic and nonprofit organisations. Whether you work in a nonprofit organisation, are a public sector manager whose service delivery is through or partnered with nonprofit organisations, or are a private sector manager who engages in business with the nonprofit sector, this major can help build professional knowledge and skills relevant to the sector. Skills critical to nonprofit management, such as problem solving, creative thinking, negotiation, ethical practices, teamwork, leadership, networking and information management are incorporated into the teaching, learning and assessment.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent in any field with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale).

Cohort Rule

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

This course is designed for graduates who do not have an undergraduate degree in accountancy and wish to obtain a professional accountancy qualification.

If you are looking to change your career direction or enhance your career options, accountancy is a dynamic profession that will provide you with a sustainable, challenging and diverse range of career paths. Professional accountants are in increasing demand nationally and internationally by organisations throughout the commercial, public and not-for-profit sectors. Accountants can work in commerce and industry, in public or chartered accounting firms, in government organisations or as individual practitioners. Discipline units focus on financial and management accounting requirements, specialised applications in company accounting, audit and assurance, tax and company regulation. Core concepts and knowledge, problem-solving skills and critical and analytical thinking are developed throughout the entire course.

Professional Recognition

Students completing the Master of Business (Professional Accounting) degree meet the academic requirements for Associate membership of CPA Australia and enrolment in the CPA program, the academic requirements for enrolment in the CA program of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA) and the academic requirements for Associate Membership of the National Institute of Accountants (ANIA) and enrolment in the NIA program.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree in an area other than Accounting with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

Course Design

Students are required to complete 144 credit points of units. Students should follow the standard course progressions as outlined in the below course structures. Non-standardised course progression may result in unit selection difficulties. Students should contact the Faculty for course progression advice.

Students seeking to exit early from the Master of Business course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma should lodge an application during the teaching period in which they expect to complete their studies. Completion of 8, 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, and as approved by the Subject Area Coordinator, is required for completion of the Graduate Diploma course.

Students who have completed an undergraduate degree in a Business related or other cognate degree directly related to the discipline area within the last 5 years, may be eligible for exemptions up to a maximum of 48 credit points. For further information on exemptions, please refer to the following link : bus.qut.edu.au/study/newstudentsf/PostgraduateBlockExemption

Some applicants may require unit substitution where they have studied the equivalent of some introductory units in their undergraduate qualification. Choice of unit substitution is subject to approval by the Subject Area Coordinator.

Cohort Rule

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

Postgraduate study in public relations is designed for practitioners to sharpen or further their skills, or those seeking a career change to this field. The major is designed as a systematic and comprehensive survey of the discipline of public relations. It provides an overview of the foundations of public relations theory and practice, problems and opportunities in communicating with the corporate audience, theories underpinning public opinion and mass media effects, mass media strategy and tactics, and a systematic exploration of the planning, management and evaluation of public relations campaigns.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent in any field with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

International students who do not meet the above English proficiency entry level may be offered an alternate entry option if they demonstrate an English language proficiency level not lower than the following:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 5.0; or

- TOEFL: 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

This entry option requires students to successfully complete two Business English units (totalling 24 credit points) in their first semester, as well as 24 credit points in the Faculty of Business Masters course. Successful completion of the Business English units (minimum grade of 4.0 of a 7-point scale) will count as electives (totalling 24 credit points) in the relevant course.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 144 credit points of units. Please refer to the course structures for information on specific unit requirements.

Students enrolled in the BS16 Master of Business who wish to exit early from this course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma in Business, may do so after they have successfully completed eight (8), 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, approved by the Course Coordinator.

Articulation

Students who have articulated from the Graduate Certificate in Business may receive block credit for 48 credit points.

Pathways Units – International Students Only

Overview

This course is designed for people with no or limited prior knowledge in finance who wish to change career direction or enhance their career options. The Master of Business - Advanced allows you to further your knowledge with the selection of four approved postgraduate elective units.

You will be introduced to managerial finance and economics, and move on to more advanced, practical studies in corporate finance, security analysis, portfolio management, trading and risk management. You will graduate with an understanding of the principles and practice of finance, and have substantial conceptual and applied finance knowledge, and be prepared for careers such as a financial adviser, investment banker, or financial or equity analyst.

You will have access to a fully equipped Securities Dealing Room on campus, the first of its kind in Queensland. Live financial data, via the Bloomberg and Datastream networks, will allow you to experience the financial markets in real time, without the risks involved in real transactions.

The course also extends your knowledge if you are a graduate from a professional association such as FINSIA and may assist with preparation for the Chartered Financial Analysts (CFA) program.

The Master of Business (Applied Finance) is fully compliant under ASIC's RG146 training standard, which allows graduates to give financial product advice to retail clients. For specific information, please refer to ASIC's RG146 document and RG146 register.

Professional Recognition

Students will meet the educational requirements for Senior Associate membership of the Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA). Graduates may also meet the educational requirements for professional level membership of the FTA â CFTP (the Finance and Treasury Association Limited â Certified Finance and Treasury Professional). Graduates require a minimum of four finance, treasury, risk management or investment management units at a graduate level. (This can include one accounting & taxation and one finance law unit.) The Master of Business (Applied Finance) is fully compliant under ASIC's RG146 training standard, which allows graduates to give financial product advice to retail clients.

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent in any field other than Finance, with an overall minimum grade point average (GPA) of 4.0 (on a 7 point scale). Applicants interested in the Applied Finance specialisation who have an undergraduate degree in Finance should contact the Graduate School of Business to determine whether an advanced Applied Finance program can be devised.

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or
- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

International students who do not meet the above English proficiency entry level may be offered a Pathway entry option if they demonstrate an English language proficiency level not lower than the following:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.0 with no sub-band below 5.0; or
- TOEFL: 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

Course Design

Students are required to complete 192 credit points of units. Students should follow the standard course progressions as outlined in the below course structures. Non-standardised course progression may result in unit selection difficulties. Students should contact the Faculty for course progression advice.

Students seeking to exit early from the Master of Business course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma should lodge an application during the teaching period in which they expect to complete their studies. Completion of 8, 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, and as approved by the Subject Area Coordinator, is required for completion of the Graduate Diploma course.

Students who have completed an undergraduate degree in a Business related or other cognate degree directly related to the discipline area within the last 5 years, may be eligible for exemptions up to a maximum of 48 credit points. For further information on exemptions, please refer to the following link :

bus.qut.edu.au/study/newstudentsf/PostgraduateBlockExemption

Some applicants may require unit substitution where they have studied the equivalent of some introductory units in their undergraduate qualification. Choice of unit substitution is subject to approval by the Subject Area Coordinator.

Articulation

Students who have articulated from the Graduate Certificate in Business Applied Finance may receive credit for 48 credit points.

Pathways Units – International Students Only

Pathways units are designed for academically qualified students who do not meet the language requirements. For information and entry requirements for Pathways, please visit the following link: <http://www.qutic.qut.edu.au/courses/pathways/businesspost.jsp>

The pathway entry option requires students to undertake 2 X Business communication units (totalling 24 credit points) as well as 2 X core course units (totalling 24 credit points) in the first semester of study in the Masters course. Students must successfully complete the 2 X Business communication units before progression to the next stage of the Business program. The 2X Business communication units will replace 2 X elective units in the course program.

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

The Master of Business - Advanced allows you to further your knowledge with the selection of four approved postgraduate elective units.

This course is designed to equip you with knowledge and skills for a career in the management of philanthropic and nonprofit organisations. Whether you work in a nonprofit organisation, are a public sector manager whose service delivery is through or partnered with nonprofit organisations, or are a private sector manager who engages in business with the nonprofit sector, this major can help build professional knowledge and skills relevant to the sector. Skills critical to nonprofit management, such as problem solving, creative thinking, negotiation, ethical practices, teamwork, leadership, networking and information management are incorporated into the teaching, learning and assessment.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

An undergraduate degree or equivalent with a minimum GPA of 4 (on a 7 point scale).

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

Course Design

Students must undertake 192 credit points consisting of 144 credit points of prescribed units and 48 credit points of approved elective units. Students should follow the standard course progressions as outlined in the below course structures. Non-standardised course progression may result in unit selection difficulties. Students should contact the Faculty for course progression advice.

Students seeking to exit early from the Master of Business course and graduate with a Graduate Diploma should lodge an application during the teaching period in which they expect to complete their studies. Completion of 8, 12 credit point units, where a minimum of six (6) units are within the same discipline area, and as approved by the Subject Area Coordinator, is required for completion of the Graduate Diploma course.

Students who have completed an undergraduate degree in a Business related or other cognate degree directly related to the discipline area within the last 5 years, may be eligible for exemptions up to a maximum of 48 credit points. For further information on exemptions, please refer to the following link : bus.qut.edu.au/study/newstudentsf/PostgraduateBlockExemption

Some applicants may require unit substitution where they have studied the equivalent of some introductory units in their undergraduate qualification. Choice of unit substitution is subject to approval by the Subject Area Coordinator.

Overview

Master of Business - Advanced allows you to further your knowledge with the selection of four approved postgraduate elective units.

This course is designed for graduates who do not have an undergraduate degree in accountancy and wish to obtain a professional accountancy qualification.

If you are looking to change your career direction or enhance your career options, accountancy is a dynamic profession that will provide you with a sustainable, challenging and diverse range of career paths. Professional accountants are in increasing demand nationally and internationally by organisations throughout the commercial, public and not-for-profit sectors. Accountants can work in commerce and industry, in public or chartered accounting firms, in government organisations or as individual practitioners. Discipline units focus on financial and management accounting requirements, specialised applications in company accounting, audit and assurance, tax and company regulation. Core concepts and knowledge, problem-solving skills and critical and analytical thinking are developed throughout the entire course.

Professional Recognition

Students completing the Master of Business (Professional Accounting) degree meet the academic requirements for Associate membership of CPA Australia and enrolment in the CPA program, the academic requirements for enrolment in the CA program of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA) and the academic requirements for Associate Membership of the National Institute of Accountants (ANIA) and enrolment in the NIA program.

Entry Requirements

Abbreviation

DBA

Overview

The DBA is research-based qualification, designed to enable business professionals to make a substantial contribution to business practice through the novel application of theoretical frameworks, methods, and techniques towards solving contemporary business problems. As such, the program will suit business professionals who wish to locate their research within their current business practice.

By undertaking the DBA candidates will enhance and further develop their professional knowledge, skills and attributes while working to solve real world problems using an empirical research framework.

The focus of the DBA is on the professional development of business practitioners. Therefore candidates will develop their research and discipline based knowledge and skill through the coursework units, an independent research project, and through their regular participation in professional development workshops with other cohort candidates.

Entry Requirements

Admission to the DBA course will be based on candidates having completed a minimum of five years senior level business or professional practice experience, and either:

- a Masters degree in Business Administration (MBA) with a GPA of 5.5 (on a scale of 7) or greater from QUT or another recognised institution; or
- a Masters degree in a business discipline area (e.g. Master of Business) with a GPA of 5.5 or greater from QUT or another recognised institution; or
- a Bachelor's degree in a business discipline with first or second class Honours Division A, or equivalent, from QUT or another recognised institution.

Admission is subject to these requirements, plus an interview with the Director Graduate Studies or the Assistant Dean (Research) and mutual acceptance of a study plan on a case-by-case basis, and subject to availability of a suitable supervisor.

Assumed Knowledge

Applicants are assumed to have postgraduate-level knowledge of their proposed research area, or to develop such knowledge through appropriate discipline based study in the coursework component of the degree.

Course Design

Students will complete 288 credit points consisting of:

• Discipline based coursework (48 credit points)

• Research skills training (48 credit points)

• Research project (192 credit points)

Further Information

If you have any further questions regarding this course please contact the Faculty of Business Student Services Office by phone on (07) 3138 2050, via email on bus@qut.com or in person at Level 1, B Block, Gardens Point campus

Cohort Rule

A cohort rule applies to this course. More details...

Overview

The Graduate Certificate in Business is effectively one-third of the Master of Business program.

Your options in the Graduate Certificate include 48 specified credit points of units in your chosen discipline, or interdisciplinary business study.

The specialisations offer a targeted group of units to broaden your knowledge in your chosen business discipline. The Graduate Certificate in Business offers specialisations in the fields of:

Accounting, Applied Finance, Human Resource Management, Integrated Marketing Communication, Interdisciplinary, International Business, Marketing, Philanthropy and Nonprofit Studies and Public Relations.

Entry Requirements

FOR DOMESTIC STUDENTS:

For all specialisations except Applied Finance the entry requirements are an undergraduate degree in any field or equivalent with an overall minimum GPA of 4 (on a 7-point scale). However, students entering the Accounting specialisation an undergraduate degree in Accountancy must be referred to the Graduate School of Business for enrolment advice.

The Applied Finance specialisation normally requires an undergraduate degree (with minimum GPA of 4) or equivalent in an area other than Finance. Applicants interested in the Applied Finance specialisation who have an undergraduate degree in Finance should be referred to the Graduate School of Business.

FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS:

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

Special Entry

Applicants who have an undergraduate degree with a GPA below 4, or who do not have an undergraduate degree but have appropriate professional and employment experience, may be considered for special entry following the approval of the Subject Area Coordinator. Such applicants may be required to attend a selection interview and present a portfolio of work. Special entry without an undergraduate degree is not available for the Accounting major.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 48 credit points.

Articulation

BS56 Course Notes

See BS56 Course Notes entry for information about the course design and definitions.

Other Majors

See also separate entries for the following majors in this course: Advertising, Banking and Finance, Economics, Human Resource Management, International Business, Management, Marketing, and Public Relations.

Professional Recognition

Professional recognition by either of the industry bodies, CPA Australia or the ICAA, is considered essential for many careers in accounting. Our close relationships with CPA Australia and ICAA ensure our courses are developed in conjunction with industry needs and meet guidelines for associate membership and enrolment in their professional programs. You will also meet the academic component of the requirements for enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance at the Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA).

Course Structure

With its flexible course structure, our Bachelor of Business allows you to tailor your studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The four distinct components within the degree give over 140 combinations of majors and specialisations.

1. Eight Faculty core units give you a broad-based introduction to business principles.

2. Your primary major of six units will provide the overall direction for your future career path.

3. Your second area of study of six units will hone your career decision.

- Maximise your career options with an added breadth of knowledge by completing another of the business majors

- Add a depth of knowledge in your area of interest with further study within your primary business major

- Or add a flavour or emphasis to your business degree with study in another of our business areas, or a foreign language.

4. Four elective units can be chosen from any degree course at QUT. You can consider taking an approved university Minor from business or another faculty.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Potential Careers:

Account Executive, Accountant, Actuary, Administrator, Adult/Workplace Educator, Banker, Business Analyst, Certified Practising Accountant, Corporate Secretary, Exchange Student, Financial Advisor/Analyst, Financial Project Manager, Funds Manager, Government Officer, Home Economist, Investment Manager, Property Development, Public Servant, Risk Manager, Stockbroker.

Languages Option

The course structure for both full-time and part-time International Business students varies depending on whether languages are selected as an option. Alternative course structures are included: one outlines the course structure if no languages are taken, the other outlines the structure for those who wish to undertake a language specialisation. If languages are taken as a specialisation, language units should commence in the first semester of the first year to maintain continuity from earlier pre-QUT language studies. All language units must normally be taken in the same language. International students must take a language that is not their native tongue.

With its flexible course structure, our Bachelor of Business allows you to tailor your studies to suit your own needs and career aspirations. The four distinct components within the degree give over 140 combinations of majors and specialisations.

1. Eight Faculty core units give you a broad-based introduction to business principles.

2. Your primary major of six units will provide the overall direction for your future career path.

3. Your second area of study of six units will hone your career decision.

- Maximise your career options with an added breadth of knowledge by completing another of the business majors

- Add a depth of knowledge in your area of interest with further study within your primary business major

- Or add a flavour or emphasis to your business degree with study in another of our business areas, or a foreign language.

4. Four elective units can be chosen from any degree course at QUT. You can consider taking an approved university Minor from business or another faculty.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Management major overview

Management is a pervasive activity in organisations of all kinds and is fundamental to success in business. QUT's Management major within the Bachelor of Business gives students the analytical, strategic and operational skills and detailed knowledge of the contemporary business environment required to take on a professional position with management responsibilities or a leadership position within an organisation. Graduates find work in a variety of organisations from small business start-ups to large companies and the public sector.

The major begins with units introducing key management concepts and their application to manufacturing and service organisations before progressing to units focussed on entrepreneurship and innovation, and intercultural communication and negotiation. Third-level units develop skills in strategic management and managing in a dynamic business environment. The capstone Project Management unit develops the technical and the people skills required to manage individual projects.

Marketing major overview

Marketing encompasses the business skills and functions that allow organisations to sell their products and services in competitive markets. Tools such as market and consumer research, product design, promotional, pricing and distribution strategies will be studied to give a depth of understanding of marketing. Business graduates with a marketing major work in a very wide range of roles and industries from the marketing departments of large firms to small businesses, consultancies and not-for-profit organisations.

The QUT Marketing major builds from a first-year unit introducing basic elements of the discipline to units developing knowledge in marketing research, management and communication, to units focussed on special applications such as e-marketing, services marketing and international marketing.

The capstone Strategic Marketing unit develops skills in implementing strategic marketing decisions in specific business situations. Over the course students also develop the ability to integrate marketing and other business functions.

Entry Requirements

If applicants have an Honours degree, (at level 2B or better) it must be relevant to the chosen discipline for the Master of Business (Research); or if applicants are entering from a pass degree, their undergraduate degree must include a major in an approved area, plus a grade point average of 5.5 or more on a 7 point scale; or applicants can present a case based on evidence of qualifications that demonstrates the applicants capacity to pursue the course of study.

In addition to assessing qualifications, the Faculty must also be satisfied that adequate supervision and resources are available to support the applicants proposed research.

Research Proposal - the application for admission to the Master of Business (Research) must include details of the proposed research project.

In addition to the above academic entry requirement, international students must meet the following English language proficiency levels for entry into the Faculty's postgraduate coursework courses:

- IELTS: overall band score of 6.5 with no sub-band below 6.0; or

- TOEFL: 575 (paper-based) or 230 (computerised) (if TOEFL permitted by visa requirements).

Overview

Students can pursue advanced studies within their discipline. Students will develop their capacity to conduct rigorous independent research, as well as undertaking advanced coursework that integrates conceptual and practical issues within their discipline.

Students can study within the following school areas: accountancy, advertising, banking and finance, economics, entrepreneurship and innovation, human resource management, international business, management, marketing and public relations.

The Faculty will provide students with up to $1000 under the Faculties Postgraduate Research Student Support Scheme for approved research-related expenses associated with the preparation of the thesis (including up to $750 for fieldwork activities and conference attendance). Schools may also provide additional funding assistance and /or opportunities for paid research assistant or tutoring work.

Course Design

For entry without an Honours degree, students must complete four approved coursework units (48 credit points) and a dissertation (96 credit points) as per the programs of study prescribed below.

For entry with an Honours degree students must complete a dissertation (96 credit points).

Abbreviations

MBA

Overview

The innovative structure and content of QUT's MBA is unique in Australia, and gives students a distinct career advantage by offering a broader range of core and elective units. QUT offers six credit point units delivered in seven week modules, giving students the flexibility to commence study at any one of six different entry points each year.

Entry Requirements

To be considered for admission, applicants must:

1. Demonstrate competency in the English language;
2. Hold a bachelor degree in any field from a recognised university with a minimum GPA of 4.5 on a 7 point scale;
3. Have a GMAT score of at least 550;
4. Have at minimum of three years full-time equivalent relevant work experience post degree; and
5. Provide two referee reports (on BGSB template provided)

Visit the following link for further information on our entry requirements.

Admission Intakes

There are six intakes per year for the MBA program. The November and January intakes are approved in special circumstances only.

How to Apply

You may access this link for information on how to apply.

Special Entry

Applicants with no undergraduate degree may be admitted into the Graduate Certificate of Business Administration. Normal articulation rules apply for entry into the Master of Business Administration.

Articulation

Students may articulate from the Graduate Certificate in Business Administration (GCBA) into the MBA provided they have a minimum GPA of 4.5.

GMAT

The Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) is widely used across the globe to help assess the qualifications of applicants in business management. The test consists of an analytical, quantitative and verbal section. Visit www.mba.com for information on how to prepare for the test. Feel free to contact BGSB for further information.

Scholarships

BGSB offers scholarships to exceptional applicants to the MBA program. Further details on how to apply can be found at this website.

Course Design

Students must complete 14 core units and 2 integrative core units of 6 credit points each and a further 48 credit points of electives, which may be either 6pc or 12cp units.

BGSB offers six credit point units, delivered in seven-week modules giving students the flexibility to organise their study around work and social commitments.

See Course Structure below.

Further Information

If you have any further questions regarding this course please contact the Faculty of Business Student Services Office by phone on (07) 3138 2050, via email on bus@qut.com or in person at Level 1, B Block, Gardens Point campus.

Discontinuation

Students should note that from Semester 1, 2007 this course has been renamed and recoded to IX36 Bachelor of Business/Bachelor of Journalism. Therefore, there will be no further intake into this course, however, students who are currently enrolled, or have already been made an offer into this current course for 2007, are able to remain enrolled in it.

For course structure information on the new course, please refer to the new course.

Overview

This four-and-a-half year professional course links Journalism with business studies in Advertising, International Business or Public Relations and is the choice of about one-third of commencing journalism students. In addition to the all-media journalism subjects, students cover a broad range of business subjects and specialise in advertising, public relations, globalisation, international business development or global economics.

Career Outcomes

Advertising graduates enter the marketplace as copywriters, media planners, account executives, media representatives, product managers and researchers. The International Business major equips graduates for careers in companies engaged in international trade, multinational companies and financial institutions dealing with international marketing and investments. Public Relations graduates enter the marketplace as public relations managers and consultants, editors of trade and specialist publications, speechwriters, information officers, corporate communication officers and professionals, and special events managers. Journalism graduates are prepared for careers in both print and broadcast journalism, and opportunities also exist to become press secretaries and media officers.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, extended major, or specialisation, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association and the Queensland Commercial Radio Association;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export;

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

The Journalism degree is recognised by the Australian Journalists Association section of the Media Entertainment and Arts Alliance.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 432 credit points, comprised of 240 credit points from the Bachelor of Business program and 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Journalism program.

For the Business component, students must complete the 96 credit point Faculty Core Units together with a 72 credit point Major and a further 72 credit points in which the student must complete one of the following: Double Major, Extended Major or Specialisation.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Overview

This course is a joint offering by the faculties of Creative Industries and Business, designed to capitalise on the dynamic area of mass communication and the challenges faced by organisations in the digital age.

The flexible program design includes areas of study from both faculties, providing professional skills in areas such as international journalism, television, media and communication, advertising and public relations.

Career Outcomes

Graduates obtain employment in a wide variety of public and private sector organisations. Potential employment opportunities include careers as a public relations consultant, media planner, copywriter, corporate communication manager, specialist journalist, media production specialist, media adviser or event manager.

Professional Recognition

Depending on the choice of majors, graduates of the Bachelor of Mass Communication may satisfy the academic requirements for membership of the Advertising Institute of Australia (AIA) and the Society of Business Communicators (SBC).

Course Design

Students commencing the Bachelor of Mass Communication must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points comprised of

- a. Faculty Core (six faculty core units)
- b. Major Core (two majors of six units each) and

- c. Electives (six units).

Although studies can be tailored to meet a specific career goal or create a wide variety of career choices, there is a set of recommended combinations of majors. Students are not required to take these combinations, however they do represent the more common and logical choices within a mass communication qualification.

The recommended combinations are:

- Public Relations and International Journalism
- Public Relations and Media and Communication
- Advertising and Television
- International Journalism and Media and Communication.

Why choose this course?

The combined expertise of these faculties gives you a unique opportunity to foster your skills in creative, technical and business communication. You can tailor your studies to meet a specific career goal or to create a wide variety of career choices.

You will complete two majors â some recommended combinations are: â public relations and international journalism â advertising and media and communication â advertising and television â international journalism and media and communication.

Other Majors

See also the separate entry for the following majors in this course: Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Business (Advertising, Electronic Business, Human Resource Management, International Business, Management, or Public Relations).

Career Outcomes

- Humanities graduates find employment in areas such as government, diplomacy, higher education and public service.

- Graduates of the Bachelor of Business (Accountancy) can expect to find employment in public practice, industry and commerce or government. In public practice the main areas of specialisation are auditing, financial analysis, corporate secretarial functions, costing, taxation, receivership, bankruptcy, trusteeship or management services. In industry and commerce, accountancy graduates are employed in management positions.

- Graduates of the Banking and Finance major find employment in the banking area of finance which can involve retail, wholesale or international projects, the funding of operations and investment of funds in loans or liquidity.

- Graduates with Economics training are highly sought after. They are employed as economists and in a wide variety of related professional areas.

- Graduates of the Marketing major find employment in industry and government in roles including marketing and research, sales management and product development and management. They are also employed as marketing managers and consultants in the national and international business environments.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, extended major, or specialisation, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program).

*Banking and Finance: Australasian Institute of Banking and Finance (AIBF).

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division).

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 432 credit points comprised of 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Arts program and 240 credit points from the Bachelor of Business program.

BA Course Requirements - Commencing Students

BA Course Requirements (Years 1-4)

Students are required to complete:

* One Multidisciplinary Professional Major (1 core unit + 6 units in the major)

It is suggested that they complete the Core Units Program consisting of the following:

* Two core units in first semester (from a selection of core introductory and core skills units)

(Note: one of the core introductory units will sit within the chosen Interdisciplinary Professional Major.

* Year 2: research methods unit. Students are advised to take at least two of these units.

Students must maintain a minimum of 50% enrolment in units from the BA program until they have completed eight of these units (96 credit points).

Students may wish to:

- develop a Minor (48 credit points) in one of the interdisciplinary professional areas
- develop a Minor (48 credit points) in a disciplinary study sequence or in another QUT course
- take a series of elective units.

Students wishing to complete a full discipline studies sequence (6 units) will need to amend their core units program.

Students planning to complete a full Language sequence (6 units) will need to discuss their program with the relevant Course Coordinator in order to ensure that they begin their Language studies in first semester and that their language units can be continued into their third year.

NB: Students are required to complete 16 units in the BA component of the double degree. Of these 12 must be BA units i.e. HHB coded units.

Multidisciplinary Professional Majors

For details, refer to the Bachelor of Arts Degree (HH01).

Discipline Majors

For details, refer to the Bachelor of Arts Degree (HH01).

Minor Sequences

For details, refer to the Co-Majors entry in the Bachelor of Arts (HH01) entry as any of these are available to be taken as Minors.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience. Further information is available at www.deferment.qut.edu.au.

Course is under review

QUT is currently reviewing the Arts and Social Science programs to ensure they continue to meet the needs of students and employers. As a result these programs may change in 2008 or may not be offered. You can register for updates on the status of these courses by visiting the Humanities website.

Key Terms - BA

*Multidisciplinary Professional Major - one of five interdisciplinary study sequences in the BA degree (International and Global Studies, Society and Change, Ethics and Human Rights, Community Studies, Australian Studies), consisting of one core unit plus six further units from the appropriate list (making a total of 84 credit points).

Students must complete at least one of these to fulfil the requirements of the degree. NB - a unit may not be counted in more than one multidisciplinary professional major, discipline major or minor.

* Discipline Major - a set of six units (72 credit points) in a given discipline (Geography, History, Languages, Social Science). In Languages, this consists of six sequenced units in one Language. In other disciplines the six units must include one introductory unit to the discipline.

*Minor Study Sequence - a study sequence of any four units (48 credit points) in a given subject area. NB - a unit may not be counted in more than one minor.

* Elective Units - units selected by students to fit into their study program.

Campus: Gardens Point

Recommended Study

Chemistry, Maths C and Physics are recommended.

Career Outcomes

Electrical and computer engineers design, install and maintain electrical, electronic, telecommunications and computing systems on behalf of governments and private companies. Graduates of the Bachelor of Business are skilled in many aspects of business including: accountancy, advertising, banking and finance, economics, electronic business, human resource management, international business, management, marketing and public relations.

Overview

Students combine engineering knowledge in electronics, computer systems, telecommunications and electric power with a business course majoring in one or more of accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations.

Professional Recognition

This degree meets the requirements for membership of Engineers Australia and the Institution of Radio and Electronics Engineers Australia.

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program).

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division).

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA).

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

*Management - Australian Institute of Management;

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association.

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

Special Course Requirements

A candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering must obtain at least 60 days of industrial employment/practice in an engineering environment approved by the course coordinator, before graduating.

International Student Entry

International students must maintain an enrolment program that will allow them to complete their course within the specified timeframe of their eCoE (electronic Confirmation of Enrolment).

Course Design

Students are required to complete 480 credit points comprised of 252 credit points from the Bachelor of Engineering (Electrical & Computer Engineering) program and 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Business program. Students supplement the engineering component of this program with the 84* credit point Faculty Core units in the Bachelor of Business program together with a 72 credit point Major in one of the following: Accountancy, Advertising, Economics, Finance, Human Resource Management, International Business, Management, Marketing or Public Relations, as well as a further 72 credit points in which the student must complete one of the following: Double Major, Extended Major or Specialisation.

Career Opportunities

By combining your science studies with the Bachelor of Business you will develop the entrepreneurial skills necessary to sell your abilities to a range of employers. As a graduate of the Bachelor of Applied Science/Bachelor of Business, you will be able to work at the cutting edge of scientific innovation within a range of public, private and non-profit industries. As well as the range of science-based careers available, you could expect to gain employment as a consultant, marketer, or project manager within firms developing and taking scientific research to the marketplace.

Course Design

The Bachelor of Applied Science allows multi-disciplinary programs of study to help position you within the broad range of science disciplines and qualify you as a competent professional within your chosen field. You can specialise in one of the major areas of study available in the Bachelor of Applied Science course (Biochemistry, Biotechnology, Chemistry, Ecology, Environmental Science, Forensic Science, Geoscience, Microbiology or Physics). See the Bachelor of Applied Science (SC01) course for more details.

To allow you to complete the double degree in a shorter period of time, your co-major will be taken from the business program therefore it is not possible to choose any of the co-majors listed under the Bachelor of Applied Science course.

You can specialise in one or more of the following business majors: Accountancy, Advertising, Finance, Economics, Human Resource Management, International Business, Management, Marketing or Public Relations.

Professional Recognition

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

Overview

This double degree combines the strength of general business theory and skills as well as units specifically related to managing health services.

Why choose this course?

The degree will provide you with the theory and skills to manage change effectively in the health care system. You will gain a strong background of theory and practice to enable you to work effectively in the complex environment of health care and be influential in terms of decision making.

Career Options

Health Service Management graduates are employed in administrative and management capacities in private and public health services. Such services include public and private hospitals, Queensland Health, community health centres, group medical practices, nursing and dental services, universities and consulting firms.

Your business degree will give you a broader base of commercial knowledge, making you more attractive to employers in these environments. You also have the opportunity to major in a specific business area to strengthen your career choices. For more information on careers in business, please refer to studyfinder.qut.com

Professional recognition

Both degrees allow you to satisfy the requirements of membership for the relevant professional bodies. The Bachelor of Health Science (Health Services Management) degree may allow graduates, subject to unit selection, to satisfy the academic requirements for membership of the Australian College of Health Service Executives (ACHSE) and other professional associations.

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance;

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program);

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division);

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA);

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

*Management - Australian Institute of Management;

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association;

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 384 credit points comprised of 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Health Science program and 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Business program.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Course Update

From semester one, 2009 this course will not be available for commencing students. IX33 will only be available for continuing students. New students - please refer to IX58. Please contact enquiry.scitech@qut.edu.au for any enquiries.

Overview

This double degree will give you a broad base of commercial knowledge in business and information technology, making you more attractive to employers, even if you wish to work predominantly in an information technology position. You will have the opportunity to complement your information technology studies with a business major in accountancy, advertising, finance, economics, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations.

You will combine your business studies with an information technology major of your choice. Possible combinations include finance with security, management with business systems engineering, or marketing with information and knowledge management.

Cooperative Education Program

The Coop Ed Program is a joint venture between employers and the Faculty of IT giving you the opportunity of 10-12 months paid industry placement to better prepare you for employment after you graduate. The Coop Ed Program integrates formal study and professional experience, so you can apply what you're learning in an area relevant to your chosen path.

Some of the organisations our Coop Ed students have worked with are the Australian Tax Office, Boeing Australia, CITEC, Department of Natural Resources and Water, Dialog, EPA, Queensland Police, RACQ and UNITAB Limited.

For more information about the IT's Cooperative Education Program, please visit <http://coop.fit.qut.edu.au/>

Career Outcomes

Career Outcomes

Through the combination of creative industries with business, you will equip yourself for an exciting career in the growth area of creative industries.

If you wish to use your business knowledge more in your career, you could gain employment in arts administration, marketing, managing or balancing the books for creative projects and businesses.

Some combinations are particularly complementary in building related skill sets, for example digital media with advertising, television producing with marketing, or creative and professional writing with public relations. Alternatively, you may be interested in pursuing a professional business career, such as accounting, finance or human resource management within a creative environment.

You will also develop the entrepreneurial and business skills necessary to sell your abilities to a range of employers, or start your own creative enterprise in the performance, visual or production arts. Please refer to the Faculty of Business prospectus to find out more about the business majors.

Overview

This program consists of 16 creative industries units and 16 business units which are integrated so that you will study units from both areas each semester. You will undertake the Bachelor of Creative Industries major units as well as one creative industries second major from art and design history; creative and professional writing; dance; digital media; drama; fashion; film; television and screen; interactive and visual design; journalism; media and communication; or literary and cultural studies.

Your business degree provides you with a broad base of business knowledge, and you will choose a major from accounting, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations.

Course Design

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Creative Industries) comprises 192 credit points.

The Business component is made up of 96 credit points of Faculty core units and 96 credit points of units from a Business major.

The Business majors are accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing, public relations.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units and 168 credit points from a the Creative Industries major.

Professional Recognition

Applicants are selected on the basis of their portfolio, interview and previous academic achievement. The due date to lodge a portfolio and additional materials to QUT was 17 October 2008. Late submissions will not be accepted.

Prospective international students should refer to the additional entry requirement information in the International Students section in the Creative Industries web site.

Overview

If you are interested in a career in the fashion industry, maximise your options by adding studies in business. This course consists of 16 creative industries units, where you will major in fashion, and 16 business units. The program is integrated so that you will study both creative industries and business units in each semester.

Your business degree will give you a broad base of commercial knowledge, and you will choose a business major from accounting, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations. This understanding of business makes you more attractive to employers, even if you wish to work predominantly as a fashion designer. You will also develop the entrepreneurial skills necessary to sell your abilities within your chosen industry, and perhaps start your own business.

Career Outcomes

Opportunities in the fashion industry include fashion design, merchandising and marketing, fashion event management, or becoming a stylist. Options that use your business knowledge more include working behind the scenes in large fashion houses. Depending on your business major, you could help promote, control the finances or manage the strategic direction for your employer.

Overview

This four year professional course links Journalism with business studies and is the choice of about one-third of commencing journalism students. In addition to the all-media journalism subjects, students cover a broad range of business subjects.

Career Outcomes

Journalism graduates are prepared for careers in both print and broadcast journalism. Opportunities also exist to become press secretaries and media officers. The combination of journalism with business majors can equip you for specialist journalism careers in finance, international affairs or political and social commentary. Your journalism degree will be of benefit even if you choose to pursue a career in business, as you will graduate with highly developed writing skills. Public relations students will find this particularly relevant in tasks such as editing trade and specialist publications, speech writing or in corporate communication roles.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance;

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program);

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division);

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA);

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

*Management - Australian Institute of Management;

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association;

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

* Some may depend on units completed.

The Journalism degree is recognised by the Australian Journalists Association section of the Media Entertainment and Arts Alliance.

Course Design

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Journalism) comprises 192 credit points.

The Business component is made up of 96 credit points of Faculty core units and 96 credit points of units from a Business major.

The Business majors are accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing, public relations.

Deferral

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Find out more on deferral.

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are available in this course.

Career Opportunities

Graduates are equipped to undertake sophisticated economic and financial modelling which is important in business and government decision making. Quantitative analysts are employed by the financial sector in order to optimise returns both in the short and long-term. Graduates may also become actuarial trainees in the insurance and superannuation area although further study is required in order to qualify as an actuary.

Graduates may find employment as Accountants, Advertising Professionals, Banking and Finance Consultants, Economists, Human Resource Managers, International Business Specialists, Managers, Marketing Officers, Public Relations Officers.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program).

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division).

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA).

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

*Management - Australian Institute of Management;

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association.

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

Graduates of the Bachelor of Mathematics degree will be eligible for membership of the Mathematical Society of Australia, the Statistical Society of Australia, and depending on unit selection, the Australian Society of Operations Research.

Course Design

The course offers the opportunity to combine Mathematics with a business course.

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Mathematics) comprises 192 credit points.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Mathematics Bursaries

Students enrolled in this course can apply for industry-sponsored bursaries. These bursaries are awarded to Australian citizens or permanent residents on a competitive basis. Applications should be submitted by 1 December of the year preceding entry to the course. For further information see www.maths.qut.edu.au

BA Course Requirements - Commencing Students

Students are required to completed at least one of the five multidisciplinary majors (1 core introductory unit plus 6 units in the major). You will choose from International and Global Studies, Society and Change, Ethics and Human Rights, Community Studies and Australian Studies.

As well as the multidisciplinary major, students may also wish to undertake a Discipline Major in one of the following: History, Geography and Environmental Studies, Languages (French, Indonesian, German, Japanese, or Mandarin), Sociology or Political Studies.

Students must maintain a minimum of 50% enrolment in units from the BA program until they have completed eight of these units (96 credit points).

Students may also wish to include:

- an Arts minor/s in any of the multidisciplinary or discipline majors (4 units)

- an approved university minor, or individual electives in another QUT course (up to 4 units)

Students planning to complete a full Language sequence (6 units) will need to discuss their program with the relevant Course Coordinator in order to ensure that they begin their Language studies in first semester and that their language units can be continued into their third year.

NB: Students are required to complete 16 units in the BA component of the double degree. Of these 12 must be BA units i.e. HHB coded units.

Discontinuation

This course has been discontinued.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, portfolios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Course is under review

QUT is currently reviewing the Arts and Social Science programs to ensure they continue to meet the needs of students and employers. As a result these programs may change in 2008 or may not be offered. You can register for updates on the status of these courses by visiting the Humanities website.

Overview

This double degree combines training for careers in a range of exercise and sports science settings with the strength of general business theory and skills.

Why choose this course?

This double degree will prepare you for a career in the exercise, health, rehabilitation and sports science industries, where you will work with people from a variety of professions.

This course will provide you with the necessary theoretical background and practical skills obtained from a variety of practicum placements. Practicum locations can include rehabilitation and hospital clinics, family and community services, corporate health and fitness, local and state government agencies, universities and colleges, institutes of sport, and the health and fitness industry.

Career Options

The Bachelor of Applied Science (in Human Movement Studies) course provides skills for careers in a range of exercise and sports science settings such as corporate health and fitness, family and community services, the health and fitness industry, local and state government agencies, state sporting associations, rehabilitation clinics, institutes of sport, universities and colleges and personal training.

Your business degree will give you a broad base of commercial knowledge making you more attractive to employers, even if you wish to work predominantly in the health science area. You also have the opportunity to major in a specific business area. For more information on careers in business, please refer to the Faculty of Business prospectus or visit studyfinder.qut.com.

Professional Recognition

Graduates of the Bachelor of Applied Science (in Human Movement Studies) degree are eligible for membership of the Australian Association for Exercise and Sports Science (AAESS).

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

- *All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance;

Overview

A double degree in business and psychology will prepare you to understand both the business and psychological forces that impact on organisations, both nationally and internationally. You will graduate with a solid understanding of human behaviour and how to apply this to organisational settings. You will also gain research and business skills that you can apply across a range of organisational and industrial situations.

Why choose this course

The course provides a thorough grounding in the scientific bases of psychology, and deals with the research and statistical methods used in the discipline. You will complete core subjects in development, personality, social psychology, psychological disorders, learning, memory and perception. There is also the opportunity to explore subjects in contemporary areas such as counselling and family therapy, forensic psychology, addictive behaviours and traffic psychology.

The course offers you the flexibility to choose a business major in the discipline that most interests you, for example, accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations.

Your studies in business are built around a core of values that focus on employability and incorporate professional, business, as well as industry links. During your studies, you will be encouraged to undertake real-world projects to help you develop your skills.

You will also develop an understanding of society and high-level communication and social research skills that are valuable in a wide range of professions. While studying, you are exposed to the range of job opportunities in external organisations and industry and will be encouraged to undertake real-world projects.

Career options

You can choose to work in various careers in industry and the corporate world such as human resources and management, banking and finance, as well as marketing and accounting. With further psychology training, you would be eligible to work as an organisational or industrial psychologist. Graduates may also work in areas such as management, counselling, training and development.

Professional membership

The Bachelor of Behavioural Science (Psychology) component of the degree is accredited by the Australian Psychology Accreditation Council (APAC).

To pursue a career in a professional area of psychology, you must be registered with your State Registration Board. This currently involves completing a fourth year of study in psychology, e.g. Bachelor of Behavioural Science (Honours Psychology) or Postgraduate Diploma in Psychology, followed by either two years of supervised work experience or the completion of an appropriate higher degree such as Doctor of Psychology (Clinical), Master of Clinical Psychology or Master of Psychology (Educational and Developmental).

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program).

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division).

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA).

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

 *Management - Australian Institute of Management;
 *Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association.
 *Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

Recommended Study

Maths A, B or C for other majors.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaire, portfolio, audition, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Study Areas

IX58 will not have nominated majors and minors and consequently there will not be a Study Area A shown on a graduate's parchment. Instead, IX58 will have specialisations. The specialisation areas that will be available for students will include:

• Business Process Management

• Data Warehousing

• Digital Societies

• Enterprise Systems

• Information Management

• Network Systems

• Software Engineering

• Web Technologies

Course Description

This degree equips you to build and apply creative, innovative IT solutions across diverse industries. A hands-on, real world based curriculum gives you the opportunity to explore a wide range of areas within the two strands of this degree, and gain deep understanding within your chosen area speciality, such as networking, software engineering, data warehousing, business process modelling, enterprise systems, information management, web technologies, or digital societies. You will experience an innovative, hands-on approach to learning through projects where you develop IT systems. You will be able to gain entrepreneurial skills if you wish to learn how to develop an idea into a commercial opportunity. You learn to harness your creativity and people skills to maximise the impact of your technical know-how in the booming IT marketplace. It positions you for a challenging and rewarding career within the global economy. Full-time students are eligible for the Cooperative Education Program; paid industry work experience with credit towards your degree. Students are also offered many other work-integrated learning opportunities where you receive first-hand industry experience.

Entry Requirements

Year 12 or equivalent

Prerequisites: Nil

Assumed Knowledge: English (4,SA), Maths A, B or C (4,SA)

Primary Fields: B or C

Secondary Fields: B or C

OP Guarantee: Yes

International Students

English language requirements

In addition to the above academic entry requirements, international students must meet the University's English language requirements of IELTS of 6.5 (with no lower than 6.0 for any one band).

Pathways to Further Studies

In 2001, an accelerated Honours program was introduced to increase the number of Bachelor of Information Technology students continuing their studies to complete the Honours year. The program allowed selected high achieving students the opportunity to undertake one postgraduate unit in the final semester of their a BIT degree (or double degree) which would be counted both for completion of the degree and towards the Honours program. The program also provided students with the opportunity to commence their Honours studies over the Summer Semester.

An alternative to the Honours program is the Master of Information Technology (Research). Students who complete a BIT degree (or double degree) with a grade point average equal to, or greater than 5 (7 point scale) and who have decided against enrolling in an Honours program, could undertake this course. In addition, students may wish to enrol in the re-designed postgraduate coursework Masters which has ten specialisations allowing students to either extend their area of interest or specialise in other areas at the Masters level.

Cooperative Education

The School of IT's Cooperative Education Program gives you the opportunity of 10-12 months paid industry placement during your course where you can integrate real experience with what you're learning in your degree. Companies that QUT's Coop Ed students have worked with include Energex, Boeing, CITEC, CSC Mining, Environmental Protection Agency, Dialog, UNiTAB, RACQ and many Queensland Government departments. The Coop Ed Program is available to Australian citizens and permanent residents only.

Find out more about the Cooperative Education Program.

Course overview

In this double degree students complete the requirements for two separate degrees in four years. The course consists of units in both corporate systems management and business. In the Business component students complete a set of core units to provide a broad-based introduction to business principles and a major from the list below. In the corporate systems management component students are taught the interrelationship between information, technology, business and people. This component develops the knowledge and skills needed to understand and communicate business needs, select the right systems and integrate these systems to improve business performance. Full time students can take part in the Cooperative Education Program, offering one year paid industry placement and credit towards their degree (subject to satisfying eligibility requirements).

Majors: Business: accountancy; advertising; economics; finance; human resource management; international business; management; marketing; and public relations.

Cooperative Education Program

The School of IT's Cooperative Education Program gives you the opportunity of 10-12 months paid industry placement during your course where you can integrate real experience with what you're learning in your degree. Companies that QUT's Coop Ed students have worked with include Energex, Boeing, CITEC, CSC Mining, Environmental Protection Agency, Dialog, UNiTAB, RACQ and many Queensland Government departments. The Coop Ed Program is available to Australian citizens and permanent residents only.

Find out more about the Cooperative Education Program.

Overview

This course offers you a range of options in combining business knowledge with practical skills and a contextual understanding of media and communication.

This combination of media and communication with a business major in advertising, marketing or public relations provides proven professional outcomes in media sales, media marketing and promotions, and in media planning/buying for advertising agencies.

An international business major will equip you with an understanding of the cultural, financial and regulatory issues involved in doing business across borders.

Alternatively you may choose to study another of the business professions to diversify your career options. You will undertake two creative industries foundation units and 14 specialist units in media and communication. Your business degree component comprises eight business core units, and eight business major units.

Career Outcomes

Through the combination of Media and Communication with business, you will equip yourself for an exciting career in the growth area of creative industries.

If you wish to use your business knowledge more in your career, you could gain employment in arts administration—marketing, managing or balancing the books for creative projects and businesses.

The combination of media and communication with advertising, marketing or public relations provides proven professional outcomes in media sales, media marketing and promotions, and in media planning/ buying for advertising agencies. You will also develop the entrepreneurial and business skills necessary to sell your abilities to a range of employers, or start your own creative enterprise. Please refer to the Faculty of Business prospectus to find out more about the business majors.

Course Structure

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Media and Communication) comprises 192 credit points.

The Business component is made up of 96 credit points of Faculty core units and 96 credit points of units from a Business major.

The Business majors are accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing, public relations.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units and 168 credit points from the Media and Communication major.

Career Outcomes

The defining nature of the QUT Bachelor of Laws is its real-world applied nature which will equip you with the high quality knowledge and skills and that meet the needs of the legal profession, government, business and industry. In developing the LLB the Faculty recognises that graduates are increasingly seeking a broad range of careers including, but not limited to, legal practice.

The flexible nature of the degree provides students with an opportunity to undertake a series of elective streams. These streams group legal content and legal skills units into alignment with the varied career destinations which a legal education opens to graduates and will allow you to study areas of the law that match your career aspirations.

Career opportunities include private practice as a barrister and/or solicitor; work in government departments; employment as an in-house lawyer; and a range of other occupations.

Advertising graduates enter the marketplace as copywriters, media planners, account executives, media representatives, product managers and researchers. Graduates of the Human Resource Management major can expect to find employment in the public and private sectors in all areas of human resource management including recruitment, training and development, international staffing, industrial relations, pay systems and strategic human resources planning. The International Business major equips graduates for careers in companies engaged in international trade, multinational companies and financial institutions dealing with international marketing and investments, and public sector careers in foreign economic relations. Management graduates may also find employment in commercial and industrial firms, banks, insurance companies, federal, state and local government agencies, small business and in management consultancies. Public Relations graduates enter the marketplace as public relations managers and consultants, editors of trade and specialist publications, speechwriters, information officers, corporate communication officers and professionals, and special events managers.

Professional Recognition

The QUT Bachelor of Laws course is an approved degree for the purposes of the Legal Practitioners Admission Rules. Accordingly, it enables graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for admission to practise as a solicitor and/or barrister in all Australian states and territories. The QUT LLB degree qualification is also recognised for admission purposes in West and East Malaysia, Fiji and Papua New Guinea.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

Creative Advertising

Creative Advertising is an interfaculty course related to a specific field of study that requires strong practical capabilities, and students need to gain technical skills in this field. To achieve this, students who do not hold a bachelor degree will be offered a choice of undergraduate and postgraduate options that are specifically designed to build the technical skills required in Creative Advertising.

Creative Advertising Study Area

The real world of advertising involves strategy, planning and creativity. If you are looking to freshen up your skills or to move into advertising, a unique suite of units offered by the Creative Industries and Business faculties provides you with an opportunity to do both.

You will develop your skills in copywriting, art direction, creative campaign production and production management within a theoretical perspective of advertising management. The program has a strong applied component, and you will develop your creative skills across print media, television, radio, direct mail and the digital domain.

You will graduate with a portfolio of creative material developed through project work for real-world clients and internships at masters level.

To graduate with a Master of Advertising (Creative Advertising), students are required to successfully complete 144 credit points, as specified in the course structure below. Advanced standing of up to 48 credit points towards the coursework component of Advertising (Creative Advertising) is available to students who have completed undergraduate studies in Advertising (Creative Advertising).

Course Structure

This course provides the opportunity for students to develop skills in copywriting, art direction, creative campaign production, and production management. These skills will be applied across print media, television, radio, direct mail and the Internet.

Entry Requirements

A bachelor degree with an overall grade point average of 5.0 or above (on a 7-point scale). Applicants without the requisite entry requirements may be considered for special entry. Please contact the Creative Industries Faculty for more information.

OVERVIEW

The Creative Industries Faculty at QUT is a global leader in the development and evolution of the creative industries. The Faculty provides opportunities for students to discover possibilities they may never have imagined, and position themselves for future careers they could never have predicted – across a dynamic range of industry sectors.

The Faculty nurtures unique links with government and industry, and has strong associations with the three Federal Government funded and industry-supported research centres co-located at the Creative Industries Precinct. Together, we are a hub for leading research which produces innovative, real-world outcomes, and contributes to the ongoing development of the creative industries and creative practice. Some of the leading thinkers in the creative industries are drawn here to teach, theorise, research and create bold works of the imagination.

Creative Industries study areas include:

- Acting
- Animation
- Communication Design
- Creative Writing
- Dance
- Drama
- Fashion
- Film and Television
- Journalism
- Media and Communication
- Music
- Sound Design
- Technical Production
- Visual Arts.

The faculty offers the following undergraduate degree programs:

- Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees are designed predominantly for the practitioner-artist, and characterised by intense studio and/or project-based practice
- The unique interdisciplinary nature of the Bachelor of Creative Industries degree provides diverse knowledge, creativity and practical skills with the flexibility to choose a combination of creative industries study areas
- Bachelor of Journalism
- Bachelor of Media and Communication
- Bachelor of Music
- Double degree programs with Business, Education, Health, Information Technology and Law.

The Faculty's new range of postgraduate coursework programs embed the latest in global thinking about the creative industries, allowing students to gain practical creative skills while developing entrepreneurial and project management abilities. Graduate certificates and masters programs are available in a range of postgraduate study areas. Our unique Doctor of Creative Industries offers a professional doctoral qualification for those who wish to locate their research in and around the workplace.

Postgraduate research is applied in nature and encourages collaborative and interdisciplinary approaches creating innovative partnerships between students, academics, industry experts and sponsors. Practice-led research allows artist-researchers to make original contributions to the store of knowledge about their discipline by placing creative practice at the centre of the design, conduct and reporting of their research projects.

RESEARCH CENTRES

QUT's Creative Industries Faculty is at the forefront of pioneering international research initiatives in creative industries policy, applied creative industries research, digital media design and the creative and performing arts. The Faculty partners with industry, government and the community through funded grants, research consultancy and joint ventures to interrogate real-world problems and provide solutions.

The Faculty's research themes are:

Fundamental research in Creative Industries and Innovation

This theme seeks to identify from first principles the nature of creative innovation, and show how the concept has evolved from an early focus on creative industries as a sector of the knowledge economy to more recent attention to creative innovation as an enabling component of the overall economic system; the place where economic and cultural values meet.

Research areas:

- Industry policy research in the Creative Industries in Australia, the UK and China
- Chinese media and the media of the Asian region
- Pure research in art and design focussed around modernity, the arts, design, fashion, architecture and design, and literature
- Digital social networks and social network markets
- Reconceptualising humanities based research in culture, creativity and innovation, leading to new interdisciplinary possibilities in law, business, education and the sciences.

Research methodologies for the Creative Industries

This theme develops and tests new ways of undertaking research, ways which are congenial to the demands of creative practice, participatory development, applied intervention and critical reflection.

Research areas:

- Practice-led research in visual and performing arts
- Ethnographic Action Research (EAR) in development projects
- Communicative ecologies as a conceptual framework for media and communication in context
- Evaluation strategies for arts-led research projects for social innovation

New modes of engagement and creative practices

This theme seeks to re-contextualise and hybridise traditional media and art-form practices for emerging technological, cultural and service contexts.

Research areas:

- Computational arts
- User-led content creation and 'vernacular' creativity
- Journalism including citizen journalism and new media
- Computer games research and design
- Digital storytelling
- Community Media
- Music Interactions Through Online Networks

New tools, technologies, and performance interfaces

This theme investigates the new methods, platforms and interfaces which constitute new media applications for the creative society.

Research areas:

- Performance innovation
- Game environments and mobile media for location based games and mobile media
- Creative writing and writing for performance
- Live coding a/v performance and generative content creation
- Sonification and visualisation strategies for interactive and museum-based works
- Creativity and the arts in health and wellbeing

New models of creative enterprise and management

This research theme connects creative entrepreneurship with innovation strategies and emerging legal and IP frameworks to create new business models for the Creative Industries.

Research areas:

- Music production technology
  - The sustainable 21st Century Orchestra
  - Film and television production and scriptwriting
- Research at the Creative Industries Faculty is boosted through its association with the Australasian Cooperative Research Centre for Interaction Design (ACiD) and Australian Research Council Centre of Excellence for Creative Industries and Innovation, which are co-located at the Creative Industries Precinct.

The Creative Industries Faculty is also the lead agency in the Institute for Creative Industries and Innovation (iCi) which is a multi-faculty research institute at QUT. iCi combines researchers and PhD students from Creative Industries, Business, Information Technology, Education, Law, Built Environment and Engineering, and QUT Carseldine in groundbreaking research and commercialisation ventures.

Discontinuation

Students should note that from Semester 1, 2007 this course has been renamed and recoded to IX36 Bachelor of Business/Bachelor of Journalism. Therefore, there will be no further intake into this course, however, students who are currently enrolled, or have already been made an offer into this current course for 2007, are able to remain enrolled in it.

For course structure information on the new course, please refer to the new course.

Overview

This four-and-a-half year professional course links Journalism with business studies in Advertising, International Business or Public Relations and is the choice of about one-third of commencing journalism students. In addition to the all-media journalism subjects, students cover a broad range of business subjects and specialise in advertising, public relations, globalisation, international business development or global economics.

Career Outcomes

Advertising graduates enter the marketplace as copywriters, media planners, account executives, media representatives, product managers and researchers. The International Business major equips graduates for careers in companies engaged in international trade, multinational companies and financial institutions dealing with international marketing and investments. Public Relations graduates enter the marketplace as public relations managers and consultants, editors of trade and specialist publications, speechwriters, information officers, corporate communication officers and professionals, and special events managers. Journalism graduates are prepared for careers in both print and broadcast journalism, and opportunities also exist to become press secretaries and media officers.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, extended major, or specialisation, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance.

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association and the Queensland Commercial Radio Association;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export;

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

The Journalism degree is recognised by the Australian Journalists Association section of the Media Entertainment and Arts Alliance.

Course Design

Students are required to complete 432 credit points, comprised of 240 credit points from the Bachelor of Business program and 192 credit points from the Bachelor of Journalism program.

For the Business component, students must complete the 96 credit point Faculty Core Units together with a 72 credit point Major and a further 72 credit points in which the student must complete one of the following: Double Major, Extended Major or Specialisation.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Overview

Media outlets operate in a regulatory environment in which changes occur rapidly and constantly. In an era where there is increasing public scrutiny of our media, the need for legal practitioners with specific media awareness has never been greater. This five-year double degree combines practical skills and contextual understanding of the media and communication industries with the skills to work as a legal practitioner.

Career Outcomes

Graduates may choose to use their combined skills to work in-house for media outlets, regulatory bodies, or in law firms with specialist interests in the media. As a lawyer you may find work in private practice as a barrister or legal practitioner, practise in law-related government departments or within large companies as in-house lawyers. Media and communication opportunities are similar to those for graduates of the Bachelor of Creative Industries (Media and Communication) course.

Course Structure

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units, 144 credit points from the Media and Communication major and 24 credit points of elective units.

The Law component is made up of 336 credit points of law subjects.

Professional Recognition

The law degree component covers all the law units required for admission as a legal practitioner in Australia and is approved for the purposes of the Legal Practitioners and Barristers Admission Rules.

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this program.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are available in this course.

Overview

This course is a joint offering by the faculties of Creative Industries and Business, designed to capitalise on the dynamic area of mass communication and the challenges faced by organisations in the digital age.

The flexible program design includes areas of study from both faculties, providing professional skills in areas such as international journalism, television, media and communication, advertising and public relations.

Career Outcomes

Graduates obtain employment in a wide variety of public and private sector organisations. Potential employment opportunities include careers as a public relations consultant, media planner, copywriter, corporate communication manager, specialist journalist, media production specialist, media adviser or event manager.

Professional Recognition

Depending on the choice of majors, graduates of the Bachelor of Mass Communication may satisfy the academic requirements for membership of the Advertising Institute of Australia (AIA) and the Society of Business Communicators (SBC).

Course Design

Students commencing the Bachelor of Mass Communication must complete 24 units of equal weighting totalling 288 credit points comprised of

- Faculty Core (six faculty core units)
- Major Core (two majors of six units each) and

- Electives (six units).

Although studies can be tailored to meet a specific career goal or create a wide variety of career choices, there is a set of recommended combinations of majors. Students are not required to take these combinations, however they do represent the more common and logical choices within a mass communication qualification.

The recommended combinations are:

- Public Relations and International Journalism
- Public Relations and Media and Communication
- Advertising and Television
- International Journalism and Media and Communication.

Why choose this course?

The combined expertise of these faculties gives you a unique opportunity to foster your skills in creative, technical and business communication. You can tailor your studies to meet a specific career goal or to create a wide variety of career choices.

You will complete two majors â some recommended combinations are: â public relations and international journalism â advertising and media and communication â advertising and television â international journalism and media and communication.

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee will apply to this program.

Overview

Your creative industries major will provide you with an up-to-date insight into the creative economy and an appreciation of interdisciplinarity and creative collaboration. You will also complete a creative industries second major from one of art and design history; creative and professional writing; dance; digital media; drama; fashion; film, television and screen; interactive and visual design; journalism, media and communication; or literary and cultural studies.

The defining nature of the QUT Law degree is its real-world applied nature which will equip you with the high quality knowledge and skills and that meet the needs of the legal profession, government, business and industry. In developing the Law degree the Faculty recognises that graduates are increasingly seeking a broad range of careers including, but not limited to, legal practice.

The flexible nature of the degree provides students with an opportunity to undertake a series of elective streams. These streams group legal content and legal skills units into alignment with the varied career destinations which a legal education opens to graduates and will allow you to study areas of the law that match your career aspirations.

Why choose this course?

This course allows you to combine your creative interest with your law qualification. Whether you choose to work in the legal fraternity or within the creative industries, you will graduate with a unique set of skills that will enhance your employment options.

Professional Recognition

The law degree component covers all the law units required for admission as a legal practitioner in Australia and is approved for the purposes of the Legal Practitioners' and Barristers' Admission Rules.

Career Outcomes

Graduates may use their combined skills to work in-house as a lawyer for cultural institutions, government or regulatory bodies, or in law firms with specialist interests in the creative industries. Alternatively, you may work in the legal environment as a solicitor, barrister or in-house lawyer.

If you choose to pursue a creative career, your legal knowledge will be of benefit in the process of commissioning projects, creative industries administration and contract negotiation.

Course Structure

The Law School is currently reviewing the law components of this course to continue to meet the needs of students and employers. As a result this program may change in 2009 and is subject to final approval.

From 2009 the Bachelor of Creative Industries will offer the Interdisciplinary study area only. The Creative Writing study area will continue for students currently enrolled in this course.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience. Further information is available at www.deferment.qut.edu.au

Overview

This double degree qualifies you to teach dance in Australian secondary schools. In the first two years you will study the technique and philosophy of a number of dance styles plus dance analysis, history and sociology, dance composition and basic kinesiology and alignment. Students generally participate in a daily class of various styles. In addition to Dance, you will study a second teaching area, choosing from Drama, Music, English, Film and Media, Geography, History and Languages. In the final two years you concentrate on teacher preparation.

Additional Entry Requirements

Applicants are selected on the basis of their audition and previous academic achievement. The final date to register for an audition and submit additional materials to QUT was 07 September 2007. Late registrations and submission of materials will not be accepted.

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this course.

Career Outcomes

Graduates of this course are qualified to teach in secondary education with a specialisation in Dance. Graduates may wish to explore the avenues of performance, freelance choreography, dance research and administration.

Professional Recognition

Graduates are eligible for registration as teachers in Queensland through the Queensland College of Teachers. Graduates looking for employment in other parts of Australia and overseas may be required to meet additional conditions.

Working With Children Check

Working With Children Check - As required by the Commission for Children and Young People and Child Guardian Act (2000), student teachers must undergo a criminal history check and be issued with a Suitability Card (Blue Card) by the Commission.

As soon as you enter your enrolment program for the course, you must submit your Blue Card application to the QUT Student Centre immediately. You must hold a Blue Card. to undertake activities in any unit which involves contact with children, including the required field studies blocks.

If you do not apply for a Blue Card. immediately upon enrolment in the course and allow sufficient time for the police check and issuing of the Card, you will be unable to participate in the required activities and may need to be withdrawn from the unit(s) and incur both financial and academic penalty. It may take up to 12 weeks for the Commission to issue the Card. The application form is available at bluecard.qut.com.

Computing Requirement

The increased and more creative use of online teaching technology in this degree requires that you have access to suitable computer facilities with a minimum equivalent of a Pentium 3 processor, 56k modem and internet access.

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are not available in this course. Tuition fees are only applicable to currently enrolled students who were unable to comply regulations regarding their original Commonwealth Supported place (i.e. failure to lodge an eCAF, has consumed of other their Student Learning Entitlement etc.) and who have been invited and accepted to continue as a fee-paying student.

Deferment

QUT's deferment policy does not apply to this course.

General

This four-year double degree qualifies you to teach Drama in schools in Australia and overseas. In the first two years you will undertake units in Drama, blending practice with theoretical concepts strongly focused on developing artistic, organisational and communication skills. In addition to Drama, you study a second teaching area selected from Dance, Music, Visual Art, English, Film and Media Studies, Geography, History and Languages. In the second two years you will concentrate on teacher preparation, equipping yourself through drama curriculum units with the skills necessary to be an effective drama educator.

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this course.

Career Outcomes

Graduates are employed as Drama teachers in secondary schools, work with the State Government in education, or as education officers with performing arts companies and in youth arts.

Professional Recognition

Graduates are eligible for registration as teachers in Queensland through the Queensland College of Teachers. Graduates looking for employment in other parts of Australia and overseas may be required to meet additional conditions.

Working With Children Check

Working With Children Check - As required by the Commission for Children and Young People and Child Guardian Act (2000), student teachers must undergo a criminal history check and be issued with a Suitability Card (Blue Card) by the Commission.

As soon as you enter your enrolment program for the course, you must submit your Blue Card application to the QUT Student Centre immediately. You must hold a Blue Card. to undertake activities in any unit which involves contact with children, including the required field studies blocks.

If you do not apply for a Blue Card. immediately upon enrolment in the course and allow sufficient time for the police check and issuing of the Card, you will be unable to participate in the required activities and may need to be withdrawn from the unit(s) and incur both financial and academic penalty. It may take up to 12 weeks for the Commission to issue the Card. The application form is available at bluecard.qut.com.

General

This four-year double degree qualifies you to teach as an art teacher in Australian secondary schools. In the first two years you will undertake practical and theoretical introductory studies about artistic ideas, concepts and aesthetic judgements as well as working in two- and/or three-dimensional media. Studio areas include Painting, Printmaking, and Sculpture with supporting areas of Drawing and Photography. Students study a second teaching area selected from Dance, Drama, Music, English, Film and Media Studies, Geography, History and Languages. In the final two years you will concentrate on teacher preparation, equipping yourself through art curriculum units with the skills to be an effective art educator.

Additional Entry Requirements

Applicants are selected on the basis of their portfolio and previous academic achievement. Applicants will be able to obtain the Visual Arts Application Guide online via addentry.qut.com or by phoning QUT Creative Industries Faculty on 07 3138 8114 in mid July. The final date to lodge the portfolio and other required materials to QUT is 19 October 2007. A $33 service fee applies; applicants applying for more than one Visual Arts course are required to pay only one service fee of $33.

Overview

This four-year program gives you the opportunity to allow your creative side to shine through as it complements your technical information technology skills. The integrated program consists of 16 creative industries units and 16 information technology units so that you will study both creative industries and information technology units in each semester. You will choose one information technology major from business systems engineering, databases, electronic business, games technology, information and knowledge management, information systems, information technology management, intelligent systems, security, network systems, software architecture, or web services and applications.

The Bachelor of Creative Industries emphasises the use of technology through digital media and film production in the interdisciplinary major. You can choose a creative industries Second major that will build complementary skill sets, such as digital media or film, television and screen. Alternatively, you may choose a creative industries area of interest to diversify your IT studies.

Creative Industries Second majors include art and design history; creative and professional writing; dance; digital media, fashion; film, television and screen; interactive and visual design; journalism; media and communication; literary and cultural studies.

Course Update

From semester one, 2009 this course will not be available for commencing students. IX27 will only be available for continuing students. New students - please refer to IX56. Please contact enquiry.scitech@qut.edu.au for any enquiries.

Career Outcomes

The creative industries Second majors in this double degree have been specifically chosen for their relevance to careers in information technology. You will undertake the Bachelor of Creative Industries interdisciplinary major as well as one creative industries second major. Your information technology degree component comprises eight core units and eight units in your information technology major.

You will learn creative and technical skills within a contextual framework, so you will be well placed to build your career in digital product and new media strategy.

Course Structure

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Creative Industries and Information Technology) comprises 192 credit points.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units, 168 credit points from Creative Industries interdisciplinary units.

The Information Technology component is made up of 120 credit points of Faculty core units and 72 credit points of units from an IT major.

Professional Recognition

Graduates of the Bachelor of Information Technology component meet the knowledge requirements for admission to the Australian Computer Society (ACS).

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this course.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are not available in this course. Tuition fees are only applicable to currently enrolled students who were unable to comply regulations regarding their original Commonwealth Supported place (i.e. failure to lodge an eCAF, has consumed of other their Student Learning Entitlement etc.) and who have been invited and accepted to continue as a fee-paying student.

Career Outcomes

Through the combination of creative industries with business, you will equip yourself for an exciting career in the growth area of creative industries.

If you wish to use your business knowledge more in your career, you could gain employment in arts administration, marketing, managing or balancing the books for creative projects and businesses.

Some combinations are particularly complementary in building related skill sets, for example digital media with advertising, television producing with marketing, or creative and professional writing with public relations. Alternatively, you may be interested in pursuing a professional business career, such as accounting, finance or human resource management within a creative environment.

You will also develop the entrepreneurial and business skills necessary to sell your abilities to a range of employers, or start your own creative enterprise in the performance, visual or production arts. Please refer to the Faculty of Business prospectus to find out more about the business majors.

Overview

This program consists of 16 creative industries units and 16 business units which are integrated so that you will study units from both areas each semester. You will undertake the Bachelor of Creative Industries major units as well as one creative industries second major from art and design history; creative and professional writing; dance; digital media; drama; fashion; film; television and screen; interactive and visual design; journalism; media and communication; or literary and cultural studies.

Your business degree provides you with a broad base of business knowledge, and you will choose a major from accounting, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations.

Course Design

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Creative Industries) comprises 192 credit points.

The Business component is made up of 96 credit points of Faculty core units and 96 credit points of units from a Business major.

The Business majors are accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing, public relations.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units and 168 credit points from a the Creative Industries major.

Professional Recognition

Prospective international students should refer to the additional entry requirement information in the International Students section in the Creative Industries web site.

Overview

If you are interested in a career in the fashion industry, maximise your options by adding studies in business. This course consists of 16 creative industries units, where you will major in fashion, and 16 business units. The program is integrated so that you will study both creative industries and business units in each semester.

Your business degree will give you a broad base of commercial knowledge, and you will choose a business major from accounting, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing or public relations. This understanding of business makes you more attractive to employers, even if you wish to work predominantly as a fashion designer. You will also develop the entrepreneurial skills necessary to sell your abilities within your chosen industry, and perhaps start your own business.

Career Outcomes

Opportunities in the fashion industry include fashion design, merchandising and marketing, fashion event management, or becoming a stylist. Options that use your business knowledge more include working behind the scenes in large fashion houses. Depending on your business major, you could help promote, control the finances or manage the strategic direction for your employer.

Overview

We have chosen a range of Bachelor of Fine Arts majors which lend themselves particularly well to a combination with business. You will build your creative practice in your fine arts major of fashion, interactive and visual design, drama, creative and professional writing or visual arts. You will graduate with not only advanced technical and creative practice skills, but also with highly developed business knowledge. You will be well equipped to work as either a creative practitioner or business professional.

You will be immersed in your fine arts major with 14 studio units, and have a broad creative industries perspective from the two foundation units. Your business degree component comprises eight business core units, and eight business major units.

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this course.

Course Structure

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Visual Arts) comprises 192 credit points.

Overview

This four year professional course links Journalism with business studies and is the choice of about one-third of commencing journalism students. In addition to the all-media journalism subjects, students cover a broad range of business subjects.

Career Outcomes

Journalism graduates are prepared for careers in both print and broadcast journalism. Opportunities also exist to become press secretaries and media officers. The combination of journalism with business majors can equip you for specialist journalism careers in finance, international affairs or political and social commentary. Your journalism degree will be of benefit even if you choose to pursue a career in business, as you will graduate with highly developed writing skills. Public relations students will find this particularly relevant in tasks such as editing trade and specialist publications, speech writing or in corporate communication roles.

Professional Recognition

The Bachelor of Business degree may, subject to choice of major, allow graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for membership as follows:

*All majors: Chartered Secretaries Australia (CSA) - enrolment in the Graduate Diploma in Applied Corporate Governance;

*Accountancy: CPA Australia (associate membership & enrolment in the CPA Program), Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia (ICAA)(enrolment in the CA Program);

*Advertising - Advertising Federation of Australia, Australian Association of National Advertisers, Australian Direct Marketing Association;

*Economics: Economic Society of Australia (Queensland Division);

*Finance: Financial Services Institute of Australasia (FINSIA);

*Human Resource Management - Australian Human Resources Institute, Australian Institute of Training and Development, Australian Institute of Management;

*International Business - Australian Institute of Export, the Logistics Association of Australia and the Chartered Institute of Purchasing;

*Management - Australian Institute of Management;

*Marketing: Australian Marketing Institute, Market Research Society of Australia, Australian Institute of Management, Australian Institute of Export (Qld) Ltd, American Marketing Association;

*Public Relations - Public Relations Institute of Australia.

* Some may depend on units completed.

The Journalism degree is recognised by the Australian Journalists Association section of the Media Entertainment and Arts Alliance.

Course Design

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Journalism) comprises 192 credit points.

The Business component is made up of 96 credit points of Faculty core units and 96 credit points of units from a Business major.

The Business majors are accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing, public relations.

Deferral

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Find out more on deferral.

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are available in this course.

Overview

The course consists of 16 human services units and 16 creative industries units, and the program is integrated so that you will study both human services and creative industries units in each semester. In human services you may choose to focus on corrective, disability, youth, or child and family services. You will also study a range of professional skills and then gain practical experience through professional practice placements in government or community organisations.

The Creative Industries course allows you to combine professional practice in corrective, disability, youth or child and family services with studies from a range of creative industries second majors, including art and design history; creative and professional writing; dance; digital media; drama; fashion; film, television and screen; interactive and visual design; journalism, media and communication; or literary and cultural studies.

Career Outcomes

This double degree prepares you as a multiskilled professional for careers in child safety and a range of welfare and community services. In particular you will have a set of skills which will be suitable for areas which combine human services and creative skills, for example, community development and cultural services, and youth arts.

Course Structure

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Creative Industries and Human Services) comprises 192 credit points.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 96 credit points of core units and a Creative Industries major (96 credit points).

The Human Services component is made up of 144 credit points of Faculty core units and 48 credit points of units from selected Human Services units.

Professional Recognition (Bachelor of Human Services)

Graduates are entitled to apply for membership of the Australian Association of Welfare and Community Workers.(Accreditation application in process).

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee does not apply to this course.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Find out more on deferment.

Working with Children Check

Working With Children Check

As required by the Commission for Children and Young People and Child Guardian Act (2000), students must undergo a criminal history check and be issued with a Suitability Card (Blue Card) by the Commission.

As soon as you enter your enrolment program for the course, you must submit your Blue Card application to the QUT Student Centre immediately. You must hold a Blue Card to undertake activities in any unit which involves contact with children, including the required field studies blocks.

If you do not apply for a Blue Card immediately upon enrolment in the course and allow sufficient time for the police check and issuing of the Card, you will be unable to participate in the required activities and may need to be withdrawn from the unit(s) and incur both financial and academic penalty. It may take up to 8 weeks for the Commission to issue the Card. Application form

Domestic student tuition fee (Dfee) places

Undergraduate domestic full fee places (Dfee) are available in this course.

No further intake

This course has been replaced by IX70 Bachelor of Health Science (Public Health)/ Bachelor of Media and Communication from 2009. No further admissions will be accepted.

Overview

This exciting new double degree will produce graduates who are media communication specialists with expertise in the ever-growing area of public health, nutrition and wellbeing. This degree combination will satisfy both your professional and personal needs. You will have a course and a career that is both creative and able to enhance people's health and their lives. The course has innovative and integrated industry placement options for practicum experience.

The media and communications component provides both practical skills in multimedia, writing and communication combined with study in local and international media industries, media and communication industries.

The public health component provides the knowledge and skills to address major health issues both nationally and internationally with a focus on assessment of a population's health needs and strategies to meet them. Students gain an understanding of health care planning, community health, health promotion, the health needs of Indigenous Australians and project management.

Why choose this course?

Health communication is a globally recognised and rapidly expanding field. Graduates can expect to gain employment in a range of public and private sector organisations.

Health professionals with superior communication skills and the ability to utilise the power of media technologies will make significant contributions to improving our quality of life, both locally and internationally.

Media and Communication

The course provides both practical skills in multimedia, writing and communication combined with study in local and international media and communication industries. Students combine core units in the creative industries (including practical skills in multimedia, writing and communication), with the study of media and communication, including media audiences, professional communication, new media technologies, and online communications.

Public Health

The course provides knowledge and skills to address major health issues both nationally and internationally with a focus on community health, nutrition and health promotion.

The course has innovative and integrated industry placement options for practicum experience.

Career Outcomes

This double degree prepares graduates as health communication specialists; health and nutrition writers; health promotion officers and educators; marketing and managerial roles in health and product promotions; health print and online editors; health communication managers; and e-health marketers.

Media and Communication

Graduates may work as advertising professionals; communication managers; media and cultural policy developers for government and community organisations; information officers; internet professionals; media buyers and planners; media marketers; media industry specialists; teachers and researchers; and print and online publishing professionals.

Public Health

Graduates may also work as community health officers; policy officers; program evaluators; health promotion officers in community health; project officers; and consultants. These practitioners work in both public and private sectors including state and federal health departments, population health units, community health centres, divisions of general practice, non-governmental health organisations, and international health agencies.

Course Structure

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Creative Industries and Health Science) comprises 192 credit points.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units, 144 credit points from Media and Communication units and up to 24 credit points of elective units.

The Health Science component is made up of 180 credit points of specified Health Science units and a 12 credit point elective.

Professional Membership

Graduates are eligible for membership of the Public Health Association of Australia (PHAA) and the Australian Health Promotion Association (AHPA).

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Campus: Gardens Point and Kelvin Grove

Study Areas

IX56 will not have nominated majors and minors and consequently there will not be a Study Area A shown on a graduate's parchment. Instead, IX56 will have specialisations. The specialisation areas that will be available for students will include:

• Business Process Management

• Data Warehousing

• Digital Societies

• Enterprise Systems

• Information Management

• Network Systems

• Software Engineering

• Web Technologies

Course Description

This degree equips you to build and apply creative, innovative IT solutions across diverse industries. A hands-on, real world based curriculum gives you the opportunity to explore a wide range of areas within the two strands of this degree, and gain deep understanding within your chosen area speciality, such as networking, software engineering, data warehousing, business process modelling, enterprise systems, information management, web technologies, or digital societies. You will experience an innovative, hands-on approach to learning through projects where you develop IT systems. You will be able to gain entrepreneurial skills if you wish to learn how to develop an idea into a commercial opportunity. You learn to harness your creativity and people skills to maximise the impact of your technical know-how in the booming IT marketplace. It positions you for a challenging and rewarding career within the global economy. Full-time students are eligible for the Cooperative Education Program; paid industry work experience with credit towards your degree. Students are also offered many other work-integrated learning opportunities where you receive first-hand industry experience.

Entry Requirements

Year 12 or equivalent

Prerequisites: Nil

Assumed Knowledge: English (4,SA), Maths A, B or C (4,SA)

Primary Fields: B

Secondary Fields: C

OP Guarantee: Yes

International Students

English language requirements

In addition to the above academic entry requirements, international students must meet the University's English language requirements of IELTS of 6.5 (with no lower than 6.0 for any one band).

Pathways to Further Studies

In 2001, an accelerated Honours program was introduced to increase the number of Bachelor of Information Technology students continuing their studies to complete the Honours year. The program allowed selected high achieving students the opportunity to undertake one postgraduate unit in the final semester of their a BIT degree (or double degree) which would be counted both for completion of the degree and towards the Honours program. The program also provided students with the opportunity to commence their Honours studies over the Summer Semester.

An alternative to the Honours program is the Master of Information Technology (Research). Students who complete a BIT degree (or double degree) with a grade point average equal to, or greater than 5 (7 point scale) and who have decided against enrolling in an Honours program, could undertake this course. In addition, students may wish to enrol in the re-designed postgraduate coursework Masters which has ten specialisations allowing students to either extend their area of interest or specialise in other areas at the Masters level.

Unit Incompatibility/Translation Information

Details on the translation and incompatibility of old and new units is located here:

Undergraduate Translation Table

If you have completed the unit(s) listed under the Translation Unit Codes column you are not permitted to enrol in the listed new code.

Cooperative Education

The School of IT's Cooperative Education Program gives you the opportunity of 10-12 months paid industry placement during your course where you can integrate real experience with what you're learning in your degree. Companies that QUT's Coop Ed students have worked with include Energex, Boeing, CITEC, CSC Mining, Environmental Protection Agency, Dialog, UNiTAB, RACQ and many Queensland Government departments. The Coop Ed Program is available to Australian citizens and permanent residents only.

Overview

Media outlets operate in regulatory environment in which changes occur rapidly and constantly. In an era where there is increasing public scrutiny of our media, the need for legal practitioners with specific media awareness has never been greater.

This five-year double degree combines practical skills and contextual understanding of the media and communication industries with the skills to work as a legal practitioner.

Your media and communication degree comprises 14 units to build your expertise in this area, alongside two creative industries foundation units.

The defining nature of the QUT Law degree is its real-world applied nature which will equip you with the high quality knowledge and skills and that meet the needs of the legal profession, government, business and industry. In developing the LLB the Faculty recognises that graduates are increasingly seeking a broad range of careers including, but not limited to, legal practice.

The flexible nature of the degree provides students with an opportunity to undertake a series of elective streams. These streams group legal content and legal skills units into alignment with the varied career destinations which a legal education opens to graduates and will allow you to study areas of the law that match your career aspirations.

Career Outcomes

Graduates may use their combined skills to work in-house as a lawyer for media outlets or regulatory bodies, or in law firms with specialist interests in the media.

Alternatively, you may work in the legal environment as a solicitor, barrister or in-house lawyer, or pursue a career in media and communication.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.

Overview

This course offers you a range of options in combining business knowledge with practical skills and a contextual understanding of media and communication.

This combination of media and communication with a business major in advertising, marketing or public relations provides proven professional outcomes in media sales, media marketing and promotions, and in media planning/buying for advertising agencies.

An international business major will equip you with an understanding of the cultural, financial and regulatory issues involved in doing business across borders.

Alternatively you may choose to study another of the business professions to diversify your career options. You will undertake two creative industries foundation units and 14 specialist units in media and communication. Your business degree component comprises eight business core units, and eight business major units.

Career Outcomes

Through the combination of Media and Communication with business, you will equip yourself for an exciting career in the growth area of creative industries.

If you wish to use your business knowledge more in your career, you could gain employment in arts administration—marketing, managing or balancing the books for creative projects and businesses.

The combination of media and communication with advertising, marketing or public relations provides proven professional outcomes in media sales, media marketing and promotions, and in media planning/ buying for advertising agencies. You will also develop the entrepreneurial and business skills necessary to sell your abilities to a range of employers, or start your own creative enterprise. Please refer to the Faculty of Business prospectus to find out more about the business majors.

Course Structure

This course is made up of 384 credit points. Each component (i.e. Business and Media and Communication) comprises 192 credit points.

The Business component is made up of 96 credit points of Faculty core units and 96 credit points of units from a Business major.

The Business majors are accountancy, advertising, economics, finance, human resource management, international business, management, marketing, public relations.

The Creative Industries component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units and 168 credit points from the Media and Communication major.

Course Structure

The Bachelor of Fine Arts component is made up of 24 credit points of Faculty Foundation units and 168 credit points from the Creative and Professional Writing major.

The Law component is made up of 336 credit points of law subjects.

OP Guarantee

The OP Guarantee will apply to this course.

Overview

Both writers and lawyers require high-calibre sophisticated communication and language skills. You will graduate from this specialised double degree with not only advanced creative and professional writing skills, but also with a recognised law qualification.

You will be immersed in creative and professional writing practice with 14 studio units, and have a broad creative industries perspective from the two foundation units. In your first four years you will study a combination of fine arts and law units and during your fifth year you will concentrate on law studies.

The defining nature of the QUT Law degree is its real-world applied nature which will equip you with the high quality knowledge and skills and that meet the needs of the legal profession, government, business and industry. In developing the Law degree the Faculty recognises that graduates are increasingly seeking a broad range of careers including, but not limited to, legal practice.

The flexible nature of the degree provides students with an opportunity to undertake a series of elective streams. These streams group legal content and legal skills units into alignment with the varied career destinations which a legal education opens to graduates and will allow you to study areas of the law that match your career aspirations.

Professional Recognition

The QUT Bachelor of Laws course is an approved degree for the purposes of the Legal Practitioners Admission Rules. Accordingly, it enables graduates to satisfy the academic requirements for admission to practise as a solicitor and/or barrister in all Australian states and territories. The QUT LLB degree qualification is also recognised for admission purposes in West and East Malaysia, Fiji and Papua New Guinea.

Career Outcomes

Through the combination of creative and professional writing with law, you will enhance your employability in your chosen field, whether in the legal fraternity or as a writer.

Graduates may use their combined skills to work as an in-house lawyer in the publishing industry or in law firms with specialist interest in this area. Alternatively you may work in the legal environment as a solicitor, barrister or in-house lawyer.

If you choose to pursue a creative career, your legal knowledge will be of benefit in the process of commissioning projects, creative industries administration and contract negotiation.

Deferment

QUT allows current Year 12 school leavers to defer their undergraduate admission offer for one year, or for six months if offered mid-year admission, except in courses using specific admission requirements such as questionnaires, folios, auditions, prior study or work experience.

Non-year 12 students may also request to defer their QTAC offer on the basis of demonstrated special circumstances.
