

A free online training program to support medical students

End of Life Law for Clinicians (ELLC) is a free online training program for all medical students about Australian law on end of life decision-making. Knowing about end of life law can prepare medical students to apply the law in clinical practice, manage legal issues in practice, and deliver optimal end of life, palliative, primary and aged care.

Learn about:

- › Medical practitioners and the role of law in end of life care
- › Capacity and consent to medical treatment
- › Withholding and withdrawing life-sustaining medical treatment
- › Advance Care Planning and Advance Care Directives
- › Substitute decision-making for medical treatment
- › Legal protection for providing pain and symptom relief
- › Children and end of life decision-making
- › Futile or non-beneficial treatment
- › Emergency treatment for adults
- › Managing conflict
- › Voluntary assisted dying
- › Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples and end of life law
- › Inclusive end of life decision-making with people from diverse populations

Enhancing medical school curriculum

ELLC's online training modules can be implemented in medical schools' curriculum to support teaching on medical law and ethics and palliative and end of life care.

Schools can use some or all modules to compliment teaching. To find out more contact ELLC at endoflifelaw@qut.edu.au

Register at ellc.edu.au

Certificates of completion are available.

ELLC is funded by the Australian Government Department of Health. It is administered by the Australian Centre for Health Law Research, Faculty of Business and Law, Queensland University of Technology (QUT), in partnership with the Faculty of Health, QUT. For more information contact endoflifelaw@qut.edu.au