

Online training module: Inclusive end of life decision-making with people from diverse populations

End of Life Law for Clinicians (ELLC) is a free online training program for medical practitioners, nurses, allied and other health professionals, and health professional students about Australian law on end of life decision-making.

Delivering safe, quality, inclusive care

ELLC's training module Inclusive end of life decision-making with people from diverse populations focuses on end of life decision-making with:

- LGBTIQ+ people
- People from culturally and linguistically diverse and/or refugee backgrounds
- People with disability
- People with frailty.

The Module can support health professionals to:

- understand relevant legal considerations when caring for people from diverse populations at the end of life, and
- deliver high-quality, safe, inclusive, and accessible end of life care.

12 other modules about the law on end of life decision-making are also available:

- The role of law in end of life care
- Capacity and consent to medical treatment
- Withholding and withdrawing life-sustaining medical treatment
- Advance Care Planning and Advance Care Directives
- Substitute decision-making for medical treatment
- Pain and symptom relief
- Children and end of life decision-making
- Futile or non-beneficial treatment
- Urgent treatment for adults
- Managing conflict
- Voluntary assisted dying
- Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander peoples and end of life law

Register at ellc.edu.au

CPD points may be claimed from your professional body. Certificates of completion are available.

ELLC is funded by the Australian Government Department of Health. It is administered by the Australian Centre for Health Law Research, Faculty of Business and Law, Queensland University of Technology (QUT), in partnership with the Faculty of Health, QUT. For more information contact endlifelaw@qut.edu.au